POLICE AND BANDITS IN GUN DUEL

Today

Ben Franklin's Day
2,000,000 Prayers
Earth's Ozone Blanket
A Busy Birthday

—By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1930, King Features Synd., Inc.

HERE is good advice for youth or old age:

"Dost thou love life? Then do not squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of."

"He that goes a borrowing goes a sorrowing."

And for a nation in which ninety old men out of a hundred die worth less than $100, this is valuable:

"A man may, if he knows not how to save as he gets, keep his nose to the grindstone."

All those wise things were said by Benjamin Franklin, born 224 years ago today.

There is material for a thousand good sermons in Franklin's common sense talks. Perhaps some will be preached next Sunday.

It may comfort Protestants, Hebrews, Mohammedans, Confucians and Buddhists to know that next Saturday 2,000,000 good Catholics will pray for their conversion to the Catholic faith.

Following the recent important statement by the Pope to the effect that Protestants are turning toward the Catholic church, Cardinal Hayes, of the New York diocese, has instructed congregations in 444 churches under his control to begin next Saturday an eight-day period of prayer, fasting and penance for the return of Anglicans and other Protestants, originally a part of the Catholic church, into the Catholic fold, and that all others of whatever race or religion may embrace Catholicism.

Increase in the number of converts to Catholicism will enable observers to form valuable estimates of the immediate effect of prayer on a great scale.

The widespread effort at conversion should offend nobody. Conversion will not occur unless it is God's will that it should occur. And no one can object to that.

Scientists of Smithsonian Institution hope to learn about magnetic disturbances and weather phenomena generally by studying the earth's "ozone blanket."

That "blanket" is a thin layer of superior atmosphere, lying 30 miles above the earth's surface.

By measuring the thickness and contents of the earth's zone blanket it may be possible to tell what is happening on the sun, 93,000,000 miles away.

It might be possible also, later to bring down some of that ozone, with its wonderful qualities, for the improvement of the lungs and blood.

Going up 30 miles from the earth's surface seems a great achievement.

But a microbe living on the face of an ordinary apple would do as much if he rose from the surface of his apple as much as one-hundredth part of an inch.

Thirty miles is much less than one two-hundredth part of the earth's diameter.

Prohibition had an extremely busy tenth birthday. Maj.-Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, commander of the 26th (Yankee) Division in the war, tells Boston, in Faneuil Hall, that prohibition is fomenting a new war.

Mr. Wadsworth, recently senator from New York State, defeated for re-election by the drys and by Governor Smith enthusiasm, tells "dry" Republicans he will not take that sort of treatment lying down or sitting down either.

The next New York election will see a "wet" Republican ticket, which is expected to keep the "dry" Republicans from carrying the State.

The Tulsa Tribune, about to celebrate its 10th anniversary under the owner-editorship of Richard Lloyd Jones, emphasizes the growth of Tulsa and Oklahoma by opening the largest newspaper plant in the State.

Easterners, with money to invest and interested in "new territory," might well investigate Tulsa.

Other cities are interested in the fact that the Tulsa airport not only puts Tulsa on the "air map," but also pays all expenses and brings in an excellent profit.

This should encourage the building of more airports. What Tulsa can do, other cities can do.

The real ocean is the air, and no enterprising city can afford to remain inaccessible to ships of the air.

Pity poor parrot, now in the limelight because of his disease, psittacosis, which, when human beings contract it, usually kills them.

POLICE HUNT COLLEGE YOUTH

Told Professor He Was Tired of College Grind; Father Fails in Hunt in N. Y.

"Fed up on studying," Robert W. Wright, 20, of Westwood, has vanished from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, it was learned today.

The last heard of the student was through a telegram he sent from New York, declaring that he had decided to drop out of college.

Today the boy's father, Samuel Wright, lumber contractor, of Huckleberry Farm, East st., Westwood, and another son, Samuel, Jr., were in New York searching, with police, for the missing student.

SEARCH UNSUCCESSFUL.

Because he has been interested in aviation, the search included flying fields on Long Island, but no trace of the youth was found.

Wright is a third-year student at Tech, specializing in electrical engineering.

On Tuesday, according to a professor, the student went to the professor and asked how he stood in his studies. The professor replied that he was in excellent standing. Young Wright then remarked that he was "fed up on studying.

On Wednesday a telegram, signed with Wright's name and addressed to the electrical engineering department, was received at Tech from New York.

The telegram said merely that Wright had decided to drop out. It included no address through which he might be traced.

MOTHER MYSTIFIED.

His parents were notified. His mother said she could not understand his going away. She said he accompanied her and his father to a theater Tuesday night and appeared cheerful and unworried.

So far as the parents and his fellow students at Tech know, young Wright has no girl friends beyond casual acquaintances.

Kick of Horse Fatal to Somerville Man

Harvard Scrubwomen Lose Hope for Jobs

Discouraged and disconsolate, most of the 20 scrubwomen discharged by Harvard University awaited today, but with scant hope, the results of a plea to Harvard authorities by a committee of women labor and welfare officials.

A few of the scrubwomen have obtained other jobs, it was learned today, but the majority want to be back at the posts they have filled for years—one of them for 33 years.

They were let out by Charles R. Apted, superintendent of the Harvard yard and buildings, following a ruling of the minimum wage commission that they should receive 37 cents an hour instead of 35.

Without bitterness, but with disappointment evident in her voice,

Capt. Frank Hawks had a narrow escape when he wrecked his record-breaking coast-to-coast plane and three other ships at West Palm Beach, Fla., today. He was unhurt but two others were injured. (International Newsreel photo.)

HAWKS' PLANE WRECKS 3 MORE

West Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 17 (AP)—Capt. Frank Hawks, noted aviator and holder of the coast-to-coast non-stop flight record, wrecked his record-making plane and badly damaged three other ships at Roosevelt field here today in attempting to take off for New York.

Hawks was not injured, but two occupants of the machine were. Hal P. Henning, Houston, Tex., received a broken arm, and P. J. Clausen, New York mechanic, had several ribs broken.

Hawks came here from the All American air meet at Miami. He said he was traveling "blind" when the accident occurred. He was watching a line of planes parked on the right of the runway and failed to see three ships standing on the left.

Veered sharply to miss a muddy spot ,the record-making plane crashed through the other ships. Hawks 'plane was moving at great speed.

'REDS' TO DEFY COURT ORDER

New Bedford, Jan. 17—Balked in their plan for holding a demonstration today, strike agitators announced they would stage protest meetings Sunday regardless of the police.

Fred E. Beal, who was leader of the strikes at Gastonia, N. C., declared that at these protest meetings plans would be formulated for demonstrations in front of all mill gates on Monday and Tuesday.

"We are determined to hold our meetings regardless of the police," he said.

DRYS FOR EARLY VOTE ON RUM LAW REPEAL

Declare Blaine Resolve Faces Prompt Defeat; Borah Says "Prohibition Will Stay"

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Supremely confident, congressional drys today snapped up the challenge of Senator Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, for repeal of the 18th amendment and passed the word they were ready for a vote.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, one of the dry champions, said he welcomed the direct issue on the 18th Amendment and "I am ready to vote."

"I think it might be well to have Congress go on record and make it clear that this amendment is there to stay," he asserted.

Senator Blaine's resolution is before the judiciary committee and Chairman Norris of the committee said he was ready to give it consideration at the next meeting Monday. He said he expected an adverse report, but thought it would do no harm.

"That is the courageous way to go about this question," said Senator Jones, Republican, Washington, another dry leader.

"After all, that is the only issue. I have no objection meeting it, and I have not the slightest doubt of the outcome."

The Blaine repealer did not get before the Senate for discussion but the drys were speaking freely off the floor

Senator Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, co-author of the 18th amendment, predicted the repealer "will never pass either house of Congress."

"Nothing so represents the hopelessness of the wet cause," said the Texan in a statement, "as the prospect in Congress for this amendment. It represents the only way in which prohibition can be repealed and Congress is so overwhelmingly against it that it has no chance of passing either house.

"The talk of amending the Volstead act so as to bring about light wines and beer is equally vain. Even if such an amendment to the Volstead act passed it would be declared to be in violation of the Constitution by the Supreme Court and would become null and void."

MUST GET AT TRUTH.

At the House side of the Capitol today, Representative Maas, Republican, Minnesota, said he proposed to suggest a plan to the unofficial House committee on modification of the prohibition laws, looking to concentration of the work on the anti-prohibitionists.

He said he would present a resolution to the wet bloc at its meeting on Monday to appoint a subcommittee to consider all measures to repeal the prohibition law, as it was impossible to get the regular House committee to give consideration to any bills proposing a change in the present prohibition law.

"The greatest drawback," he said, "to the modification movement so far has been the impossibility of airing the true conditions properly and the lack of a uniform law.

ASKS DRAPER'S ATTITUDE ON VOLSTEADISM

R. M. Washburn of Roosevelt Club Queries Candidate for Senator

Robert M. Washburn, president of the Roosevelt Club, today called upon former State Senator Eben S. Draper of Hopedale, the only avowed candidate to date seeking the Republican nomination for United States Senator, to explain the platform on which he will seek the nomination.

"It has been the practice of the Roosevelt Club, as you know as a director," the letter read, "to interrogate the candidates for Republican federal and state nominations on the platforms on which they are making their campaigns and on their attitudes toward the leading issues of the hour.

"I note that you are a candidate for the Republican nomination for the senate; in fact the only one as of this day, and that you have ventured to announce your candidacy without a license from Rye Beach (where Alvan Fuller lives), which is highly to your credit. When if other candidates come into the field I shall interrogate them as I am interrogating you.

"Pursuant to the foregoing the immediate purpose of this letter is to ask you to state, if you care to do so, the platform on which you are making your campaign and on which you think you ought to be nominated and elected.

"As you doubtless recognize, the issue of prohibition is not to be forgotten by your platform and I hope that you will include your attitude towards this in your reply, not only in general but also that you will answer specifically these questions:

Do you endorse the principle of the 18th Amendment?

Do you stand with the President for an honest and efficient enforcement of the Constitution and the law?

Are you for or against the repeal of the Baby Volstead Act?

Have you any other observations to make on prohibition?

Stimson, McDonald in 3-Hour Conference

London, Jan. 17 (INS)—Secretary of State Stimson, unaccompanied by any other members of the American delegation to the five-power naval arms conference, went to 10 Downing st., the official residence of Premier MacDonald, this afternoon, where the two statesmen were closeted in a private conference for three hours.

The conference, it was believed, was held by the leaders of their respective delegations to enable them to acquaint each other broadly with their aims at the forthcoming disarmament parley.

The fact that Secretary Stimson visited the Premier alone was rather unexpected. In all previous preliminary discussions which Mr. MacDonald has held with other delegations all the members of the visiting delegations were present.

The American delegation arrived here from Plymouth at 2:10 p. m. today and received a rousing wel-

Hearst Editorial in Record of Congress

Washington, Jan. 17—The editorial by William Randolph Hearst, published in the Hearst newspapers on the tenth anniversary of prohibition, has been ordered printed in the Congressional Record on motion of Senator Wagner of New York. Unanimous consent was given by the Senate for publication of the editorial in the official organ of the Congress.

The editorial was entitled: "On this, its tenth anniversary, results of prohibition policy should be carefully weighed." It outlined the stand of the Hearst newspapers for true temperance, and surveyed the effect of the national prohibition policy on the life of the nation.

"Mr. Hearst has accurately taken stock of prohibition's shortcomings," declared Senator Wagner, commenting upon the editorial.

WILL FORECAST RADIO STATIC

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Static, that bane of dial twisters the world over, is to be forecast.

Predictions, just like those for the weather, which would tell the radio listener what kind of reception to expect within a certain period, are planned.

Prevalence of magnetic storms, which produce more or less serious static conditions, would be the basis for the forecasts.

Researchers have concluded that fairly accurate forecasts can be made of such storms, accompanied by predictions of the kind of radio

COP'S KILLERS FLEE AFTER BATTLE IN STREET

State Troopers Reinforce the Posse and Hunt Leads to Wooded Area

Waterbury, Ct., Jan. 17—Two men, believed to have been the slayers of Patrolman James McNamee in Forestville last night, engaged in a gun battle with police today in upper North Main st. and escaped.

Although guns blazed for 10 minutes or more, and many shots were fired, the only damage was to the uniform of Patrolman Joseph Thompson of the Bristol department, which was pierced by bullets.

The clash occurred when heavily-armed squads of Waterbury, New Britain and Bristol police were cruising the city in search of the men who shot Patrolman McNamee to death after he had stopped their automobile.

SEARCH ON IN WOODS

Immediately after the battle ended state troopers came swarming into the city to join the hunt, and this afternoon heavily-armed law forces were scouring the woods between Buck's hill and Chestnut hill, in the North End.

Auto loads of police from Bristol, New Britain and Waterbury had been patrolling the city for many hours when one group came upon two young men in front of 2190 North Main st. Immediately the police halted the car and moved to question the pair.

One of the two began shooting with an automatic pistol. His companion took to his heels and disappeared. The armed bandit backed coolly away, firing at the police who returned the fire.

Not a bullet touched the youth, who having emptied his gun, calmly reloaded and resumed firing. Policeman Thompson, of Bristol, was knocked over by a shot.

Taking advantage of momentary confusion the youthful bandit slipped into the nearby woods and was lost. Meantime news of the shooting was telephoned to police headquarters and a squad armed with riot guns was rushed to the scene.

LIKE DEATH SHELL.

After the bandit had disappeared, detectives picked up many shells at the scene of the fray. Later they declared they were similar to the shell taken from the body of the slain policeman.

McNamee had halted the automobile as it was entering a gas station in a suburb and questioned the driver. The policeman was seeking a stolen machine. Without warning one of the men in the back seat fired at McNamee, the bullet entering his back.

The policeman collapsed, and the machine with its occupants sped away. McNamee died at a hospital.

Police of Connecticut and Massachusetts then began a hunt for the fugitives, which culminated in the spectacular skirmish in one of the main streets of the city.

An armed force of 12 policemen was sent from New Britain to aid the officers already on the scene. Police were of the opinion that one of the youths who sought refuge in the woods may have been a 19-year-old Waterbury youth who has a record here and in New Britain as an auto thief.

In New Britain two suspects were pucked up and held for grilling. They were believed to possess knowledge of the identity of the slayers of the Bristol officer.

Near the scene of the killing of McNamee, a six-chamber pistol containing five shells was found. It was thought that it might have been dropped by one of the gang which did the shooting. The weapon was taken to New Britain for examination for finger prints.

come from an imposing throng of statesmen and officials.

When the special train carrying Secretary Stimson, the other delegates and two American ambassadors, who had gone to Plymouth to greet them, Gen. Charles G. Dawes and Hugh Gibson, pulled into the Paddington station, they were met by Foreign Minister Arthur Henderson, First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander, Premier MacDonald's private secretary, Admiral Madden and Malcolm MacDonald, all of whom represented the British premier.

Outside the gates of the station a huge throng had waited more than an hour to accord the American delegation a tremendous popular ovation.

Secretary Stimson was the first to leave the train. He was warmly greeted by Foreign Minister Henderson. Ambassador Dawes, taking the role of master of ceremonies, introduced the various delegates and other members of the official American party to the British foreign minister and the others of the welcoming committee.

OVATION ALONG ROUTE

A number of automobiles awaited the American delegation. After chatting briefly, the visiting delegates, accompanied by the welcoming party, stepped into the waiting vehicles and were whizzed away to the Ritz Hotel.

As the delegates appeared outside the station the waiting throng let out a rousing roar of welcome which the American delegates gracefully acknowledged.

The fifteen-minute ride through the streets of London to the hotel was marked by similar ovations all along the route.

At the hotel, the delegates immediately went to the suites assigned them to rest after the long train ride from Plymouth.

Delegates Are Received Warmly at Plymouth

Plymouth, Eng., Jan. 17 (INS)—Pledged to aid in a conference designed to bring about the most drastic naval armament cuts in the history of the world, the American delegates to the five-power parley starting in London on Tuesday arrived here today aboard the liner George Washington.

After a brief but imposing welcoming ceremony staged by the city fathers of Plymouth, the delegation, headed by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, departed for London aboard a special Pullman train of the Great Western Railway.

The George Washington anchored in the outer harbor of Plymouth at 6 a. m. Soon after, a tender arrived from Plymouth and took the entire delegation, including advisers, technicians, secretaries and stenographers, aboard. The tender arrived at the dock at 8:15.

The delegates betrayed no ill effects from the last few days of the voyage, during which the George Washington battled bravely against mountainous seas and winds of gale force, which seriously impeded its progress.

Secretary Stimson, accompanied by his wife, was the first to disembark from the tender. He was followed soon after by the other chief delegates, Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, Dwight W. Morrow and Senators Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas and David A. Reed of Pennsylvania.

Secretary Stimson declined to make any official statement regarding the suggestion of Prime Minister MacDonald that battleships be eliminated entirely from the fleets of the world. It is understood that members of the American delegation do not hold with Premier MacDonald that battleships should be abolished.

Prince Pignatelli Not to Be Deported

Mexico City, Jan. 17 (AP)—Officials of the Interior Department told newspapermen President Portes Gil had instructed them to cancel the order for deportation of Prince Antonio Pignatelli.

The prince has convinced the government he did not sell archives of his ancestor, Hernando Cortes, conqueror of the Aztecs, as has been charged, to American millionaires and museums. He said he presented a few records to friends in the United States, but did not sell any of the papers relating to his ancestor.

SCRUBWOMEN LOSE HOPE

Mrs. Mary Gately of Mt. Auburn st., Cambridge, told today of the years she had worked as scrubwoman in the Widener Library and of the "Christmas present" she received—her notice of dismissal.

WHAT THE MEN DID

Mrs. Gately has been getting up at 4 a. m. for 20 years, she said, and for 10 of those years has been at the library.

She was forced to take up that work, she explained, because when she was left a widow, she had three girls to bring up.

After the first batch of women had been let go at Thanksgiving, the widow declared, two men were hired as cleaners in the library.

"We used to go in in the morning to see what the men had done," she said, "and you couldn't tell that they had lifted a mop. It didn't look as though they had done a thing."

According to Mrs. Gately, only three of the women who were let out have been given other work, as Harvard authorities informed them would happen.

These are Mrs. Felina Taylor of Allston st., Cambridge; Mrs. Catherine Donlin of Laurel st., Cambridge, and Mrs. H. Malloy of Templeton parkway, Cambridge.

A fourth woman, Mrs. Catherine F. Lovett of Mt. Auburn st., secured work for herself in a club opposite the Widener Library. She is the sole support of four children, the oldest 17 years.

Mrs. Catherine Donahue, one of those dismissed, is through working for the rest of her life, according to the married daughter with whom she lives in Upland rd., North Cambridge. She was employed 33 years at the college and was unbelieving when she got her dismissal in a registered letter.

WOMEN INTERCEDE.

According to Mrs. Gately, another woman, Mrs. Keleher of Green st., Cambridge, had just returned to work, after a layoff of three months for an operation, when she received her notice. Mrs. Keleher had ben at the university 14 yaers.

The woman's committee to intercede for the dismissed scrubwomen today was composed of the following: Mrs. Mary G. Thompson, president of the Woman's Trade Union League; Mrs. Julia O'Connor Parker, president of the Telephone Operators' Union and a member of the Women's Trade Union League; Mrs. Lois B. Rantoul, Mrs. Bernice Rogers, secretary of the Cambridge Central Labor Union.

Harry Joel, president of the Cambridge Central Labor Union, was to accompany the committee.

WARNED BY COURT

All pleaded not guilty and the cases of all except Beal were continued to Jan. 31, bail being set at $100 each.

Th leader, who is at liberty under an appeal of a 20-year term imposed in North Carolina on a manslaughter charge, was held for a hearing Jan. 22.

Three of the defendants, Peter Hagelias, Manuel S. Perry and Martin Russack were in court December 31 on similar charges, and will be granted hearings on them January 22.

At the conclusion of the court proceedings Judge James Doran warned the defendants that under no circumstances should they carry on further demonstrations while their cases are pending.

Beal announced that he is to speak in Lawrence tonight, and in Fall River on Sunday.

After the court session the defendants with their sympathizers filed into the street and gathered before the courthouse, where cameramen started to snap their photographs.

TOLD TO MOVE ON.

Police ordered them to move on, however, declaring they had been instructed to do so by Judge Doran.

The defendants were arrested during a riot which followed their attempt to stage a meeting at the gate of the Dartmouth Mill to recruit employes for the Textile Workers Union.

They are:

Germaine Madeiros Almeida, Fred E. Beal, Augusto C. G. Pinto, Joaquim Duarte Milano, John Vincent, Peter Hagelias, Frank Araujo, Helen Oken, Martin Russak, Manuel Perry, Frank Gomes, K. O. Byers, George Gill, Antone Lisbon, Joseph Nova, John Neto, Raphael Pires, Joaquim Furtado and Antonio Costa.

Extra details of officers, each carrying the long police clubs, were on duty at the Dartmouth mill today, prepared to quell any disturbance that might occur.

N.H. OBJECTS TO VALUATION OF $404,000,000

Claims I. C. C. Figures Are $130,000,000 Too Small, Even for 1915

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—A statement objecting to the recent $404,604,213 final valuation as of June 30, 1915, placed upon the operated system of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad by the Interstate Commerce Commission, was issued today at the company's offices here.

"The company claims," the statement said, "that the final valuation for the same property should be at least $130,000,000 higher, even as of June 15, 1915, and being as of that earlier date, does not include the large amount of money which the company had spent on additions and betterments to its property since then."

The I. C. C. valuation includes non-carrier real estate and buildings, but does not include steamship lines, investments in other railroads or electric, trolley and motor-coach properties which the statement said are carried on the books of the New Haven at $166,628,010; the company's ownership in the passenger terminals in New York and Boston, valued by the railroad at more than $70,000,000, or the Central New England Railway, which has been merged with the New Haven since valuation date.

Investigation of the relationship between magnetic disturbances and reception have been undertaken by the Bureau of Standards, the Naval Research Laboratory, the General Electric Co., and Dr. G. W. Pickard, of Newton Center, Mass., research associate of the Carnegie Institute department of Terrestrial Magnetism.

A proposal that reports of daily magnetic disturbances be transmitted on short waves along with the weather forecast and seismic activities is to be made next August at the Stockholm meeting of the section of terrestrial magnetism and electricity of the International Geodetic and Geographical Society.

Dr. D. L. Hazard, assistant chief of the division of terrestrial magnetism and seismology of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, so announced today.

Magnetic storms differ from rain, snow and wind storms which make themselves known physically. They rage just as terrifically, but their presence is not apparent to man until he either turns on his radio or uses other devices that detect their presence.

The fact that magnetic storms have had a serious effect on radio reception long has been known. Careful studies have been made, and it has been determined that certain storms will affect signals differently on different wave lengths.

USE PHOTOS NOW.

Dr. Hazard expressed the opinion that the first broadcasts of reception forecasts would be on short waves and would not be made on an international basis, as each country could learn with its own instruments the movement of the disturbances. That aspect of the question is among others to be decided at the Stockholm meeting.

Presence of the atmospheric disturbances is now obtained by photographs. Such a method makes for a delay in obtaining information. Delays could be eliminated, Dr. Hazard explained, by using instruments which would give instantaneous visual records.

EARLY VOTE ON REPEAL URGED

"The strength of the organized minorities who put over prohibition lay in their united support of one plan. The same tactics must now be employed to undo the harm that was done.

PROHIBITIONISTS SPLIT.

"The ranks of the prohibitionists are broken. They cannot longer agree among themselves about their future program. They blame everything but the unsoundness of the law itself for its failure.

"The fanatics, in their frenzied desperation, call for trial without jury, the repeal of the fourth amendment so as to permit them to raid every man's home without warrant, cause or reason. They demand the nullification of the whole Constitution to enforce this one section of the Constitution. If it really be a legitimate section at all.

"It is not merely methods that are at fault, it is the nature and extent of the law itself."

DRY LAW'S FATE IS SETTLED FOR GOOD BY 1940

This Is View of Majority of Leaders on Both Sides of the Issue in Senate

Ten years of prohibition have made national temperance a dominant issue, requiring the constant attention of the President and Congress. What will another 10 years bring? The drys predict effective prohibition; the anti-drys forecast repeal or modification. The accompanying article presents the conflicting opinions of leaders in the Senate.

THE WET VIEW

(Copyright, 1930, by International News Service.)

Washington, Jan. 17—The wet army in the Senate today predicted another 10 years will bring repeal or modification of national prohibition. Five outstanding senatorial liberals shared this belief. Their views follow:

Senator David I. Walsh (Dem.) of Massachusetts: Resistance and revolt against the present prohibition system will provoke during the next 10 years the most serious political crisis the country has experienced since the Civil War.

I look forward with grave misgivings of the danger to our institutions that these questions present, unless the principle of state rights is soon invoked.

Senator Cole Blease (Dem.) of South Carolina (who announced he was opposed to prohibition): If this prohibition law is left on the statute books as it is today, it will be dead within 10 years—just as dead as the 14th and 15th amendments are today. The only way to save it is to strengthen it by modification.

SEES LASTING ARGUMENT

Senator Robert M. Lafollette (R.) of Wis.: The controversy over prohibition will go on for the next 10 years between those who say flatly it is a complete success and those who say flatly it is a complete failure So we'll have the controversy stronger than ever 10 years hence.

Senator Robert F. Wagner (D.) of N. Y.: The lesson we must draw from the first 10 years of this prohibition law is its utter unenforceability. If we want to bring about genuine temperance, it can only be done by modification of the law, so that prohibition will reach the conscience of the American people.

Senator John J. Blaine (R.) of Wis. (who proposed repeal of the 18th amendment): The 18th amendment will have been repealed and the nation will have adopted a program of moderation and common sense in dealing with the liquor question before another decade ends.

THE DRY VIEW

Copyright, 1930, by International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 17—The dry army in the Senate today predicted another 10 years will bring better enforcement and broader observance of national prohibition. Five prominent senatorial drys, expressed this belief. Their views follow:

Senator Wesley L. Jones (R.) of Wash., author of the "Five and Ten" law: In my judgment, the nation will make great steps forward in adequate enforcement of prohibition and the sentiment for national temperance will be much stronger 10 years hence than it is today.

Senator Henry J. Allen (R.) of Kas.: In 10 years, there will be shown a very great progress of public sentiment in favor of prohibition and by reason of that, there will be many corrections in the present difficulties that beset prohibition.

As the public becomes more and more aware of the economic benefits of prohibition, its enforcement will become easier. As the consciences of the American people awake to the social benefits of prohibition, society will demand a spirit of obedience to the law.

Senator Robert B. Howell (R) of Nebraska: Prohibition will make great progress in the next 10 years, I realize that in the East, especially in the big cities, the eyes of the people have been blinded to what has been accomplished by prohibition.

In 10 years, there still will be opposition, but the great majority of the people will be more impressed than ever before with prohibition and its benefits to the country.

GANNA VICTOR IN CUSTOMS DUTY FIGHT

Court Finds She Has "Legal Residence" in France; Escapes Levy on Gems

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—The right of wives to maintain a domicile apart from that of their husbands is upheld in a decision of the United States Custom Court in favor of Mme. Ganna Walska, opera singer and wife of Harold F. McCormick.

Mme. Walska resisted efforts of customs officials to levy duty on jewels and other personal property she brought with her when she arrived in this country to visit her husband in Chicago a year ago last September.

She claimed she was exempt from paying duty on the ground that her legal residence was in Paris and that as a resident of France she had a right to the exemption allowed foreign visitors. The customs officials held that as the wife of Mr. McCormick her legal residence was in Chicago.

The decision of the court was unanimous, although Justice Genevieve R. Cline, only woman member of the court and the first woman to hold a position in the federal judiciary, wrote a concurring opinion in which she made a strong plea for greater recognition of the rights of women.

The majority opinion, written by Justice George M. Young, said:

"The wife is now a distinct legal entity. She stands upon terms of equality with her husband in respect to property, torts, contracts and civil rights.

"The wife may acquire a domicile separate and apart from her husband by reason of his misconduct, or abandonment, or by his agreement either express or implied."

The decision calls attention to the fact that Mme. Walska and Mr. McCormick, by express agreement, always maintained separate residences, she in Paris and he in Chicago.

SHIP IS BLOWN ACROSS OCEAN

Tobermory, Scotland, Jan. 17 (AP)—The crew of the sailing bark Neptune of St. Johns, N. F., was safe in this port today after drifting helplessly across the Atlantic.

The three-masted vessel, which set out from Newton to Stamjohns seven weeks ago, was buffeted by severe storms for 48 days and eventually came into sight off the Scottish coast and was towed into the harbor yesterday by the steamer Hesperus.

The bark's boats and bulwarks were smashed on the hazardous trip, but the crew was not injured.

Relating their adventures today the crew, which included the wife of one of the fishermen, said that the Neptune was within 30 miles of her home port when she was caught in the terrific storms which were raging then and drifted helplessly across the Atlantic. During the crossing only two steamers were sighted.

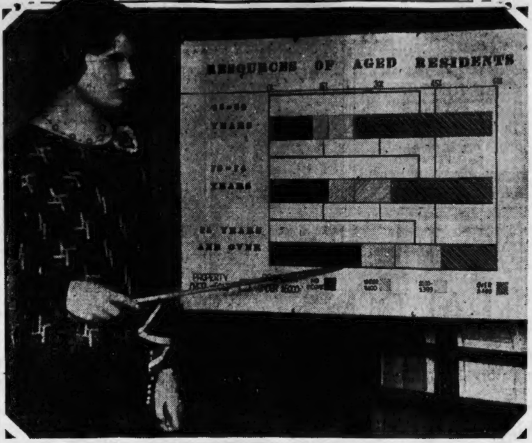
Seeing the rocky coast of Scotland, the captain anchored off the Ardnamurchan lighthouse, whose keeper signalled the Hesperus, which brought the boat in safely. The Neptune's crew had plenty of eatables, but suffered from a lack of water.

(On Dec. 14 the Neptune, with 19 on board, was reported "all right" about 720 miles southeast of St. Johns by the liner Cedric which passed on a request for a tug.)

Military Rites Planned

Bridgeport, Ct., Jan. 17 (AP)—Col. Alexander Arseny, naval architect for the Russian government at Sebastopol, Crimea, during the World War, will be given a military funeral by the Russian colony here tomorrow. He died of peritonitis.

Figures Show Aged Near Penury



A Statewide survey of the financial resources of persons over 65 years old compiled by Dr. Lucile Eaves of the Woman's Educational and Industrial Union, shows 60 per cent of 20,000 aged persons interviewed to possess less than $5000 worth of property. The black spaces on the chart shows the decreasing incomes as age advances and the shaded spaces beneath represents the same condition in 1892. (Staff photo.)

Hub Institutions Aid Some 1400 Children

Nearly 1400 children, 86 per cent of whom were under 14 years old, were affected by unemployment in families to whom Boston public and private relief agencies gave almost $6,350,000 in 1927-28. This amount is exclusive of institutional and medical care, or administration costs.

The total sum given to needy families during 1928-9, not yet figured, was much larger, in the opinion of Dr. Lucile Eaves, research director of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, who compiled statistics that made delegates to the conference of the Savings' Bank Association, at the Chamber of Commerce, fairly gasp.

Dr. Eaves and her staff showed a series of charts which also brought out the financial resources of aged persons as found through a Statewide survey, during which 20,000 persons over 65 were interviewed.

In Boston, out of 2345 persons over 65, interviewed, 26 per cent had no incomes at all, and 5 per cent had less than $100 a year income, thus creating a heavy burden upon relief agencies. Data was furnished by 96 Boston relief agencies, 31 medical agencies, 24 churches, and the city and State welfare departments.

One out of every five of 123 women recorded as having lost recent jobs was disabled through sickness, accident or physical defect.

Lack of available work ranked with sickness as the cause of unemployment among women since one in every five had been laid off. The wages of women applying for aid had averaged from $10 to $14 a week.

R. I. AUTO TOLL 128 LAST YEAR

Providence, Jan. 17—Automobile accidents in Rhode Island in 1929 cost 128 lives and more than $5,000,000.

These figures were announced today by the State Board of Public Roads, which compared the accident record with an estimate compiled by the National Safety Council, showing the nation's loss in 1928 to have been about $1,000,000,000.

Forty-five of those killed by motor vehicles were children. The number of persons requiring medical attention following automobile accidents last year was 6496.

BALKANS HALT YOUNG PLAN

The Hague, Jan. 17—The Little Entente nations notified the big six powers at the reparations conference today that they would not sign the Young plan unless an agreement was reached with Hungary. The powers will discuss the subject later.

The Little Entente nations include Austria, Bulgaria, and Rumania and other Balkan states.

The conference, having decided that the question of Oriental reparations cannot be settled at this meeting, probably will close Sunday with signature of a protocol containing its points or agreement. This will be left open for adherence by the smaller reparations creditors when they shall have reached agreement.

Honor 'Ben' Franklin

Mayor James M. Curley and pupils of the Dearborn school paying tribute to Benjamin Franklin at the Franklin monument in City Hall yard today. It was the 10th year the city has celebrated the birthday of the famous patriot and printer. Mayor Curley was once a pupil at the Dearborn school, the principal of which was in charge of the day's ceremonies. A wreath purchased with pennies of school children was placed at the foot of the statue. (Staff photo.)

SEVEN SAVED AT BLAZE IN SPRINGFIELD

Five Children Among Those Rescued as Home Is Destroyed by Flames

Springfield, Jan. 17—Five children, a nurse and the grandfather of three of the youngsters were rescued today during a fire that destroyed the $15,000 home of Fred Stephenson, executive secretary of the Family Welfare Association.

In the excitement of the rescues, none of the neighbors thought to sound a fire alarm for some time and when the firemen finally were called the dwelling in Kenwood ter., the Forest Park section, was beyond saving.

Mrs. C. A. Scollard was awakened by smoke in her bedroom on the first floor and aroused her husband. While she rushed out to call neighbors, he went to the second floor and aroused Mr. and Mrs. Stephenson.

Into the arms of neighbors, Scollard then dropped from a first-floor window his three children—Catherine, 10; Nora, 8, and Cornelius, Jr., 4.

Meanwhile, Stephenson was rescuing his two children, Elizabeth, 13, and Clark C., 3. Both were overcome by smoke.

Also overcome was their grandfather, Fred E. Cheney, 70. He was carried to safety by Stephenson and Scollard.

Sleeping with the Stephenson children on the third floor was their nurse, Miss Jeanette McLaren. She was partly overcome and was removed to safety by two men.

It is believed the fire started from an overheated furnace.

Two Firemen Hurt in Fall River Blaze

Fall River, Jan. 17 (AP)—Hoseman John Moran sustained serious internal injuries when he fell from the roof of a three-story wooden apartment house during a fire at Rock and Bank sts. this morning At the same fire, Lieut. Richard Brightman was struck by a falling hoseline which broke one of his legs.

Firemen carried five women from the building. Two men escaped unassisted. The blaze, of undetermined origin, apparently started in the basement. The damage, while considerable, has not been estimated.

Saves Wife and Four and Leaps to Safety

Shrewsbury, Jan. 17 (AP)—Dropping his four children and wife from a second-story window early today when other exits were cut off by flames in his home, Alexander Dillon leaped to the ground.

Chief Logan says this is the third time in four years that a house has been burned on the site without satisfactory solution of the cause. The last fire, which was less than a year ago, followed an explosion that terrified the neighborhood and jumped the building from its foundation. The building was unoccupied at that time.

Confesses $100,000 Stock Crash Theft

Springfield, O., Jan. 17 (AP)—A man registered as James Atkinson Smith of Hartford, Ct., who, police said, confessed to them that he had embezzled $100,000 from a brokerage office in Hartford, when collapse of the curb market caught him short, was held here today for investigation.

Identification of Smith, a native of Wilmington, N. C., was made through the State Bureau of Investigation at Columbus, where fingerprints were sent by police. The bureau also advised that Smith was wanted in several other cities on forgery charges.

Coast Guard Rushes Man to Hospital

Gives Justinian Law Ruling in Divorce

Chicago, Jan. 1 (AP)—The law of the Emperor Justinian has been invoked in the court of Judge Joseph Sabath and applied to the case of Mrs. Teresa Caporale vs. Guona Coporale for separate maintenance.

The Caporales have been married 48 years.

"These people," said Mrs. Caporale's attorney, "have never been naturalized. They are still subjects of Italy and therefore governed by Justinian law."

Justinian, long centuries ago, decreed: "Husband and wife shall not be separated in divorce until their marriage shall have proved its unsuitability during a reasonable trial period of 50 years."

The attorney for Mrs. Caporale, E. Libonati, said to the court:

"I ask that the trial run its full course as Justinian decreed. That is two more years. "I believe by then that these two people—Mrs. Caporale, who is 67 years old, and her husband, who is 72—will have recognized that their present trouble was only a temporary misunderstanding, slight in contrast to the force of affection in their long years together."

APPEALS COURT TRUST RULING

Judge Pierce in Supreme Court today dismissed a bill in equity brought by the Boston Mexican Petroleum Trust to hold a number of trustees personally responsible for losses alleged to have been sustained by the trust. An appeal was taken to the full bench of the Supreme Court.

The defendants were: R. March. H. Harper of Milton, J. Bradford Hardon of Brookline, Elton Clark of Framingham, Allan Forbes of Westwood, Robert H. Munson of York, Me., Kenneth H. Lewis of Boston, Reginald C. Heath of Brookline, Joshua Crane, Philip W. Wrenn of Dedham and B. Nason Hamlin of Dedham.

According to the evidence the defendants organized a trust to enable the future investments and business of the Boston Mexican Petroleum Co., and affiliated organizations, to be conducted in such a way as to impose a minimum amount of taxes under the U. S. Revenue Act.

The trust went into effect May 20, 1919, and the declaration fixed the terms of the trust to continue for 20 years after the last survivor of Forbes, Wrenn, Munson, Crane, Heath, Lewis and Clark.

It was provided that no trustee should be personally liable for any act omission or neglect, default or miscount of any or all of the trustees. The trust became insolvent.

Two Phone Girls Hurt in Mast Crash

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Two telephone operators were slightly injured today when an antenna mast that was being removed from the roof of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company fell and dislodged a portion of the ceiling on the seventh floor, plaster showering on operators who were working below.

Moves to Dismiss Packers' Petition

Washington, Jan. 17 (INS)—Asking for a dismissal of the petition of Swift & Co. and Armour & Co. for a modification of the meat packers' consent decree of 1920, the Justice Department today filed its answer to the petition in district supreme court.

DEATH TOLL IN WEST NOW 8

Denver, Col., Jan. 17 (AP)—East of the blizzard-bound peaks of the Rocky Mountains there lay today a vast land of snow and Arctic temperatures, lashed by the climatic spasms of the winter's worst storm. Approximately one-third of the United States was whipped by frigid winds which brought a temperature of 56 degrees below zero in Montana.

Two persons, Carl Miller, 35, and Mabel Dennis, 28, were frozen near Pioche, Nev., bringing to eight the death toll of the killing cold in the last three days.

During last night a blinding blizzard swept this city. An official reading at the weather bureau today was 17 degrees below zero.

Zero Blasts Add to the Misery of Flood Victims

Chicago, Jan. 17 (AP)—Zero carved its name upon the snow-covered chest of middle America today.

Rivers that had run wild earlier in the week slunk back to their beds, but the cold that checked their rampages brought added misery to persons who had been driven from their homes by the high waters. Many places were drifted high with snow, and in the urban centers sheets of glass carpeted the boulevards.

Coming out of the Rockies, the cold descended upon virtually the entire central and northwest, but it was upon the Mississippi river banks of Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota

Youth's Chances Best Ever, Says Curtis

New Haven, Jan. 17 (AP)—Vice-President Charles Curtis, writing for Yale Daily News, undergraduate paper, today, expressed his opinion that opportunities for youth on the threshold of their careers are unlimited and that the world is calling for leaders. Mr. Curtis said in part:

"I have no patience with those who say: 'Everything worth while seems to have been done—what's left for the young man of today?' Never have opportunities so literally crowded themselves upon youth at the threshold of a career as today. Youth is at a high premium; its courage and zest is a priceless asset, and the world so appraises it.

"Today youth is splendidly endowed by school and college and university in training and preparation.

"Furthermore, the world today is more and more realizing that its greatest reliance is upon its human resources. Progress in business, in government or in science is possible only with the persistent and intelligent application of the qualities of mind and heart and soul.

"America's interests are now worldwide. They offer many opportunities for service in industry, government and foreign relations, but they also impose upon us, both as individuals and as a nation, new and increasing responsibilities. . . .

"Leadership of the highest order is demanded by the accelerated changes of today in business, government, in science and in the field of human relations. . . . The continuance of the present high levels of national prosperity and international comity rests upon the quality of leadership which is being developed and sponsored in the youth of today—the leaders of tomorrow."

3 LAND ON RAILS AS FAST TRAIN SPEEDS ON

Danielson, Ct., Jan. 17 (AP)—After mistaking a railroad platform for a state highway, Charles Atherton, of Humboldt ave., Providence, is prepared to add his bit of testimony in substantiation of the claim that rum and gasoline cannot co-operate safely in the operation of an automobile.

While passing through here today with two companions in a car—one a woman—Atherton, mistaking the railroad platform for the state highway, drove over a four-foot bank wall at the end of the platform, the machine and occupants landing "face up" on the tracks in front of the State of Maine express as it came roaring along.

The woman screamed a warning and all leaped from the car just as the locomotive crashed into the machine. The engineman brought the train to a stop in his train's length.

In court Atherton was fined $151.74 on a charge of operating while under the influence of liquor. He said he hired the car of J. C. Harvey Co., Boston. He said he was looking for a gas station when he leaped over the bank wall.

Plan Federation of Lutheran Churches With "Papal" Head

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—The New York Herald-Tribune says organization of a world federation of Lutheran churches, with headquarters in New York, has been started.

The significance of the movement, the Herald-Tribune says, may be ascertained from the fact that the Lutherans will be the first Protestant body to employ a world executive who will be comparable in administrative respects to the Pope of the Roman Catholic Church.

$6,000,000 FOR FLOOD LOANS

Washington, Jan. 17 (INS)—A $6,000,000 appropriation for loans to farmers and stock raisers in the flood and storm stricken areas of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia was authorized by the Senate today. The measure must be approved next by the House.

The funds will be made available for loans on the purchase of seed, stock or fertilizer. A similar provision was made last year and most of the loans were repaid.

PADDLE? YES, BUT THERE IS THE LIMIT

Evanstown, Ill., Jan. 17 (AP)—The point whereat paddling ceases to be a good thing, and becomes cruelty, remains undetermined, despite efforts of Dean James W. Armstrong of Northwestern University.

Dean Armstrong has issued an order against "excessive brutality" at fraternity initiations.

"Dies that mean we can't paddle the candidates at all?" an upper classman inquired anxiously, fearful that one of the joys of a higher education was being usurped.

"Well, I'd hardly say that," said Dean Armstrong. "A certain amount of paddling is probably beneficial."

"But when do we quit?"

"When paddling becomes brutal, it is time to stop," the dean said.

Some upper classmen hold that paddling is good for freshmen. Freshmen, on the other hand, dislike it.

"The London Naval Parley" will be the topic of the address of the Rev. Jones I. Corrigan, S. J., professor of sociology at Boston College, at a meeting of the League of Catholic Women at Emmanuel College, Fenway, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Women Have Country Club All Their Own

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—The National Woman's Country Club—organized, owned and directed exclusively by its feminine members—formally opened the pretentious house it plans to make a mecca for prominent women.

About 1000 guests, including husbands and friends of the membership, passed along the receiving line that was headed by Lady Isabella Howard, wife of the retiring British ambassador. She is chairman of the board of governors.

The club grew out of a desire of a group of women to find a place to play golf on Saturday and Sunday, when they were not allowed the privileges of clubs to which their husbands belong. They began to work on an all-woman's social and sports center last May. Now there are 500 members, all of whose names are well known in their own states, and many of whom are nationally known. Virtually every state already is represented, and women of 22 other countries, including four ambassadors' wives, have become members.

Husband and sons of members have full privileges of the club at all times.

VATICAN MOSAIC IS READY TO BE SENT TO U. S.

Vatican City, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Vatican Mosaic Works, one of the most unusual manufacturing plants in the world, is ready to consign to the Catholic University at Washington, D. C., its latest production, a copy of Murillo's "Immaculate Conception," valued at $25,000.

Very few American tourists making the rounds of the Vatican galleries and St. Peter's know of the existence of the Mosaic Works, almost beneath their noses. Yet the shop is one of the oldest in Rome, and one of the best known in the art groups of Europe.

Established by Pope Sixtus V 300 years ago, the Mosaic Works has done much to beautify Rome. There are many Mosaics in St. Peter's, 356 portraits of the Popes in the Church of St. Paul, outside the walls; scenes wrought in Mosaic in the Pope's private studio, and in scores of churches, all from this one plant. Few large cities in Europe are without one or two Vatican Mosaics.

A visit to the plant is an education. Here one sees master craftsmen whose skill has been passed on to them through generations of fathers and grandfathers who were artists in Mosaic before them. They are men of infinite patience in addition to skill, for a Mosaic may take them from two to ten years to complete.

The mosaic for Washington required two years, although it is only eight and a half by six feet. It was done by three men, Prof. Ludovico Lucietto, dean of the Vatican Mosaicists, and his assistants, Luigi Chiaserotti and Romolo Bellini.

Three men working two years! Why? A single visit to the mosaic factory is not enough to make the reason plain. A few statistics, however, help.

When the visitor is told that there are actually 27,000 different colors or shades of color from which the mosaicists must choose, and also when he is told that thousands of small pieces of material, first heated to an intense degree, are later inserted one by one into a special form, each one being chosen meticulously for its shade of color, he will begin to understand why.

One Mosaic has been known to require 20 years for completion.

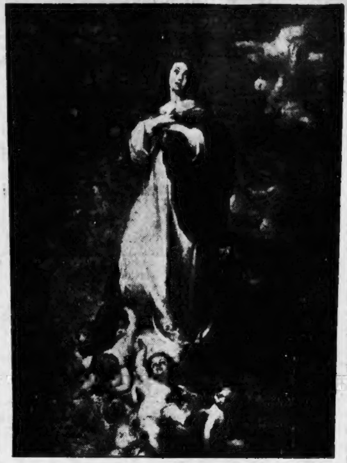
Masterpiece for America



Reproduction of Murillo's masterpiece, "The Immaculate Conception," copyright by Eugene A. Perry. It is from this great painting that the Vatican mosaic works made a copy, valued at $25,000 and requiring the labor for two years of three skilled mosaicists, for the Catholic University in Washington. Today it was announced the mosaic is ready to be shipped to America.

Forceps, Left in Body, Kills Young Woman

Richmond, Va., Jan. 17 (AP)—Coroner James N. Whitfield said today after an inquest that evidence showed that the death of Mrs. D. W. Timberlake, 28, of this city, who died in a hospital, came as a result of the presence of a pair of surgical forceps having been left in her lower abdomen after an operation in Washington, three years ago.

An autopsy resulted in the finding of the forceps, five inches in length, in the right side near the appendix. The physician in charge of the autopsy testified that he and three internes were present when the forceps was discovered.

Mrs. Timberlake's attending physician testified that his patient had been in ill health for the last year and that she had told him she underwent an operation in a Washington hospital in 1927. The autopsy, it was testified, showed no evidence of any other operation.

SCARED BY COP, DROPS DEAD

New York, Jan. 17 (INS)—Henry J. Fieger, 46, was literally scared to death by a policeman today. It was not the policeman's fault.

Fieger, who had been separated from his wife, Valerie, 36, had followed her into East 78th st., pleading for a reconciliation. He became so fervent that a large crowd gathered. His wife suddenly called for a policeman.

Officer Patrick Walsh confronted Fieger. The man turned pale, gasped—and fell dead. A physician said death apparently was due to heart disease.

JEWS PROTEST BAN ON MEAT

Jerusalem, Jan. 17 (AP)—All shops, factories and workshops closed, busses stopped and public works were interrupted in the Jewish city of Telaviv, while the inhabitants protested against the city's being meatless for 23 days.

The condition was brought about by the government, after riots, prohibiting butchers the use of a provisional abattoir in the Jewish city, while the butchers themselves refused to use an Arab Abattoir in the city of Jaffa.

A delegation of women and children staged a procession through the city, carrying banners, "Give Our Starving City Meat" and "Down With Infringement of Our Elementary Rights."

ADVERTISING CUTS COST OF DISTRIBUTION

Advertising decreases the cost of selling; lowers the cost of production on account of increased volume, lowers prices to the consumer and thereby raises the standards of living; aids in the education of the general public; stabilizes production and quality. Thus recently reported the Committee on Market Analysis of the National Distribution Conference.

CURLEY FAVORS HARBOR BRIDGE PROJECT

Probability that the War Department at Washington will insist upon a 200-foot clearance for any bridge across Boston harbor, loomed today as a serious obstacle to the plan to substitute a toll bridge for the much-mooted East Boston vehicular tunnel.

Dispatches from Washington quoted Gen. Lytle D. Brown, chief of the engineers corps of the army, as of the opinion that such a clearance would be neccessary.

"Of course, I cannot make any decision now, "Gen. Brown was quoted, "but if this bridge is to cross any main ship channel it must have 200 feet clearance. Offhand I should think that the same conditions applying in New York harbor would apply in upper Boston harbor.

The bridge project came to the forefront at a meeting of planning experts in City Hall, where Everett E. Stone, member of the Public Utilities Commission and the Metropolitan Planning Division, presented plans for a span.

Mayor Curley bestowed his virtual approval, but in the discussion that followed it was conceded that if the War Department demands a clearance of more than 155 feet, the project must be dropped.

As the cost of the bridge would be determined by the height which would be required by the War Department so that the structure would not interfere with battleships entering and leaving the Charlestown Navy Yard, the transit commission with Henry I. Harriman and Stone planned to leave immediately for Washington to bring back the facts.

Mayor Curley is more interested in the probable revenue from a traffic connection to East Boston than in other phases of the project which, during the last months of the Nichols administration, were matters of bitter controversy.

"I believe," he said, "that the revenue from a toll bridge will be at least 100 per cent greater than from a tunnel and I also believe that those who will derive the most valuable benefit from either a bridge or tunnel will not be the people of Boston or East Boston but the people who live to the north of East Boston."

Stone, in his plan, pointed out that although, as a member of the metropolitan planning division a few years ago, he had favored a tunnel, he explained that in the interim, tunnel construction costs had trebled, while the cost of bridges had not changed.

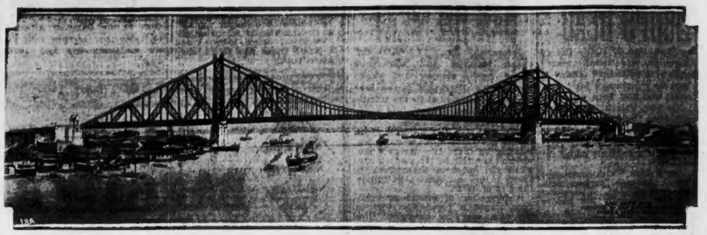
How Proposed Bridge to East Boston Would Appear



Announcement of Mayor Curley's preference for a bridge over the harbor from the city proper to East Boston instead of a vehicular tunnel revives interest in this plan for a $13,000,000 span proposed in 1926. Sponsors of this bridge plan included Gen. Edward L. Logan, former State Treasurer James Jackson and associates of the East Boston Bridge Company. The bridge was designed by Joseph B. Straus, Chicago consulting engineer, engaged by the bridge company. The approach in Boston would be near Fort Hill sq., run parallel with Atlantic ave. and turn near Lewis wharf, then cross the harbor to the line of South Ferry slip, with approaches on the East Boston side at Chelsea and Porter sts., near Central sq.

STEAM ROLLER GOES A-ROLLING

Milburn, N. J., Jan. 17 (AP)—Chauffeuring a 15-ton steam roller would seem a rather prosaic job, but then see what happened to Anton Boslavage all in a day's work.

Anton was piloting his roller at a stately pace up old Short Hills road when it got beyond control and started backward down the hill with Anton clinging to the wheel. As it rolled into Main st. at a speed estimated by police at 45 miles an hour traffic policemen gave it the right of way and motorists and pedestrians scurried to safety.

Two automobiles were caught in its path and demolished, their occupants narrowly escaping. The roller then climbed over a curbstone, crushing it beneath its weight and crashed into the corner of a building. With that it turned over on its side. Boslavage, thrown from his seat by the impact, suffered a broken collar bone, but he had had his day.

VETS, SHOT IN WAR, ARE 'GOLD BRICKED'

Washington, Jan. 17 (INS)—Declaring that men wounded in actual battles of the Worl War are being "gold bricked" in distribution of $500,000,000 soldiers' benefits every year, Representative Royal Johnson (R.) of South Dakota, chairman of the House veterans' committee, today opened a campaign to give them "a square deal."

Johnson's contention was backed by Maj.-Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans' Bureau, who testified Congress had given groups of soldiers advantages over others in building up the present system of aid for disabled veterans.

WOULD ADD 10 PER CENT

Representative Fitzgerald (R.) of Ohio, also subscribing to the declaration, announced he favored legislation adding 10 per cent to the disability compensation of soldiers wounded in battle.

Under measures now before the committee, Johnson asserted, a veteran who lost a leg in battle may find himself drawing $43.50 a month from the Government, while a stevedore who suffered an ailment when he entered the service would get $235 a month.

Gen. Hines advised a change in the system of awarding compensation on the basis of pre-war earnings.

HINES FOR UNIFORMITY.

A bookkeeper may get a 30 per cent disability and a structural iron worker an 80 per cent disability for the same injury, he said.

"I feel we are rapidly approaching the time when Congress should adopt a policy regarding veterans of all wars to bring about uniformity in allowances," said Gen. Hines.

"The veterans of the Spanish War could point to apparent inequalities in favor of some World War veterans, and some veterans of the late war could point to apparent inequalities in favor of the Spanish War veteran."

Soviet's American Tractors Crippled

Moscow, Jan. 17 (AP)—Valerian Kuybyshev, chairman of the Supreme Economic Council, today revealed that 75 per cent of the American tractors supplied the Soviet government for its farm scheme are crippled because of the lack of spare parts.

All machine building trusts have been warned that they must immediately remedy this shortage of spare parts which threatens to thwart the government agricultural plant.

Letters From Our Readers

State Fund for Families of Police and Firemen Heroes

Editor Boston American:

As a traveling salesman, I wonder if the citizens of Boston realize that they have as fine a police force as can be found anywhere in the country?

It is the deep-rooted conviction of this writer that in this modern day and age it's a poor-spirited community that cannot afford ample financial aid and protection to the family of any policeman or fireman killed in the line of duty. Why should not such protection be automatic and a matter of course through established legislation?

Since policemen and firemen protect lives and property within the State as well as the municipality, the pension for their families, which should equal their salaries, could be borne jointly and equally by the State and municipality to which they are attached.

This pension for the wife should, of course, cease in the event of her remarriage, but continued adequate provision should be made for the children, if any, until they reach their majority.

Policemen and firemen are human beings just like the rest of us. It's easy to argue that we pay them to take risks and it's their job. But I ask all reasonable and fair-minded people how many of the rest of us would face a desperate criminal in a dark alley or basement, or risk the most terrible of all deaths by fire for the few dollars of salary paid to the police and firemen?

Are the families of these brave men to be the objects of hit or miss charity?

Let us have an end of this crying neglect!

Student Charges School Committee With Laxity

Editor Boston American:

What is wrong with the school system of Boston? Last September the Boston Trade school ordered books and tools for the new course—aviation—and nothing has been done about it yet. The course, being a two-year course, was begun four months ago.

What is expected to become of the boys, who are handicapped by the school committee, at the expiration of their school term? Four months have passed and yet the school committee has not acted.

I believe this is a serious matter. The boys have given up much to come to this school in order to learn about aviation. The instructors are excellent, the pick of the land, but what can they do to the boys if they are handicapped by the lack of books and tools?

They can't teach much in two years without material and the boys would have wasted two years of their lives. If any citizen feels the same way about the school committee, voice your opinion to the public.

Figures Show Gravity of Divorce Problem

Editor Boston American:

A friend visiting me from Chicago tells me that divorces in Cook County are greatly on the increase. He said that every 65 minutes in Cook County, where Chicago is located, one divorce takes place.

This means that one family out of every 103 in the county had a divorce and that 5793 children were taken either from father or mother by divorce.

The total number of divorces in that county during the past year was 9968, an increase of 220 over 1928.

Eighty per cent of the defendants were guilty either of cruelty or desertion; drunkenness figured in 12 per cent and infidelity 8 per cent. The total alimony was estimated to be $4,500,000. This sort of information sets you thinking and wondering what can be done to prevent such disruptions in family life. There is no problem in my mind so necessary to solve as this. Massachusetts has this problem, too.

Bird Benefactors Should Be Treated Right, He Says

Editor Boston American:

Human beings are a penny wise and pound foolish lot. People kill birds and then spend millions in killing insects the birds would have eaten. During the winter, when the snow is on the ground, it would take but a little effort to throw crumbs of food to the birds who are around and treat them as friends of humanity. Keep the birds, civilization needs them.

Boys and others should be stopped killing these benefactors of mankind with air rifles.

Give birds a fair chance to live. I know of a woman who has surrounded her small home with bird houses and every left over piece of food, she gives to these wanderers. The birds come and go to her little houses, nailed to trees at the back of her house. Think of her joy in doing this kind of work. Save the birds and thereby knock out insects!

"Right From the Start I Could See Results," Says This Charlestown Lady

Mrs. Caroline Florence Duffy, 236 Bunker Hill St., Charlestown, Mass., states: "I will never tire of telling about the great good Bon-Tone has done me. I spent dollar upon dollar trying to regain my health, but it remained for this medicine to give me the desired results. My stomach was out of order and after eating I would be distressed with gas and acid. Finally I got so I just couldn't eat because of the suffering I would be forced to endure, and I lost about thirty pounds and felt miserable. Dizzy spells were terrible and I felt tired and was pretty much discouraged. Then a friend told me about Bon-Tone, and what a wonderful change it made in me. I can eat now and not have the least bit of distress afterward. Right from the start I could see results, and now after taking five bottles I can truthfully say that I am enjoying good health—dizzy spells and all my other troubles are things of the past."

Call on Mr. Ryan, the Bon-Tone man, who is meeting the public daily at Epstein Drug Co., Inc., Scollay Square, Boston. Have him tell you why this medicine has become the sensation of the drug trade and a household word all through New England. Bon-Tone is also for sale in Cambridge at Cole Drug Store, 636 Mass. Ave., Central Square, and in South Boston at John S. Austin's Drug Store, 436 Broadway, Perkins Square.

SPALDINGS TO ENTERTAIN AT OPERA

MR. AND MRS. ELIOT SPALDING of Berkeley st. are plannnig several opera parties. On the opening night, Feb. 3rd, of the Chicago Civic Opera here in Boston, when the magnificent notes of "Die Valkurie" will resound through the house, they are giving a dinner to ten in honor of their charming debutante daughter, Miss Betty R. Spalding. Among their guests will be Miss Betty Fitzpatrick, Miss Nancy Morison, Miss Meriam Winslow and Miss Dorothy Preston. The Spaldings will again entertain at dinner preceding the opera on February 7. The honor guest at this party will be Miss Elizabeth Hobbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Hobbs of the Riverway. Feb. 15, Mr. and Mrs. Spalding will entertain for Miss Rosamond Holton, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Holton, reside on Beacon st. For the third time they will take their guests to the opera.

DURING THE YEAR THERE are three Junior supper dances, invitation subscription affairs for the post-deb and younger married group. The first of these take place this evening in the Copley Plaza ballroom. The committee is made up of 15 matrons and young girls, and a contingent of men who decide to which young men invitations shall be issued. Serving on the committee are: Mrs. S. Huntington Wolcott, Mrs. F. L. Richardson, Mrs. Henry Lyman, Mrs. John S. Ames, Mrs. Rudolph Weld, Mrs. Hugh D. Scott, Mrs. Henry Morgan Bohlen (Margaret Curtis), Mrs. James Jackson, Jr. (Sally Pratt), chairman of the committee on arrangements, Mrs. Daniel Simonds (Elizabeth Sprague), Mrs. William C. Cox (Jessie Bancroft), Miss Jean Sears, Miss Helen Mosely and Miss Evelyn Royce. Other members are Harrison Gardner, E. Mauran Beals, Jr., Morris Brownell, Whitney Stone, Austin T. Gray, and Forrester Clark. The next of this group of supper dances is to take place St. Valentine's night, and the third and final one on March 14. This latter is to be a costume party.

A FULL MOON ADDED A natural and exquisite atmosphere on Wednesday evening when about 300 guests gathered for dinner at the opening of the Colony Club at Palm Beach. Still others came in for the dancing later in the evening. This attractive club, situated in the Beaux Arts Gardens, is more charming than ever this season, as the terrace surrounding the outdoor dance floor has been enlarged and covered with a blue awning, while the lights of amber hue shine forth from wrought iron crescent moons. Another attractive feature is the rock garden at one end of the patio with a fountain illuminated by colored lights. Mrs. Charles M. Amory of the Savoy Plaza, New York, whose husband is a former Bostonian—their names still appear in the Boston Social Register—was one of those being entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Kern that night. Mr. and Mrs. Kern are spending the winter on their yacht, "Show Boat."

A NUMBER OF BOSTONIANS are enjoying the gayeties of Miami Beach at the present time. Hugh Bancroft, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Jane Bancroft, and his nephew, Harold Haviland, is staying at the Roney Plaza Hotel. The Countess de Mandurt of Rome, the former Miss Priscilla Griffin of Boston, her daughter, Miss Yolande Mandurt, and her mother, Mrs. Eugene Griffin, are the guests of Mrs. Julian Southerland at her Miami estate. Mr. and Mrs. Leon Abbott are residing at the Nautilus Hotel.

THE DEBUTANTES ARE turning their minds from the frivolities and festivities of their social life to finding other interests. Miss Rosamond Holton has a position at the Massachusetts General Hospital. Another of the season's buds, who is doing hospital duty, is Miss Vivian Kendall, who is one of the secretaries at the Eye and Ear Infirmary. Her sister, Miss Betty Kendall, a post-debutante, was among the society girls who took a position in a department store during the Christmas rush. The latter Miss Kendall is now devoting the greater part of her time to studying music. Miss Katherine Weeks is also a music devotee, singing being her particular avocation.

EARLIER IN THE WEEK Mrs. John H. Harwood, of Dudley st., Brookline, had a neighborhood tea to introduce Mrs Isaac Edmond to some of her friends. Mrs. Edmond, who summers at Marblehead, as does also Mrs. Harwood, formerly resided in Buffalo, and now on Dudley st.

NOTICES HAVE BEEN SENT out for a lecture by Angelo Patri on "Some Aspects of Child Growth" to be given at the Hotel Statler on February 8 at 11 o'clock for the benefit of the Home and School Visitors Association. Dr. and Mrs. Richard Cabot, Miss Rose Dexter, Mrs. George H. Monks and Mrs. Charles J. Loring are of the group interested in this affair.

MEMBERS OF THE VERY young set whose debutante season is still several years ahead are anticipating the Buckingham Hall dance which takes place tomorrow night in the gymnasium of the Buckingham school in Cambridge. Mrs. Campbell Bason, Mrs. Francis R. Boyd, Mrs. Huntington Faxon, Mrs. Fisher Nesmith and Mrs. Charles C. Peabody are the patronesses for "The Buckingham Hall dances."

ARRANGEMENTS HAVE been made by Mrs. John P. Marquand of West Cedar st. for a second appearance in Boston of Harald Kreutzburg and Yvonne Georgi on Jan. 23. The recital, which will benefit the Habit Clinic of Boston, will be held in Symphony Hall. The repertoire of these gifted Russian dancers is to be an entirely new one. Already several dinners have been planned whose hosts will take their guests on to this performance.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM DeFORD BEAL of Crafts rd., Chestnut Hill, are expected home this week-end from a trip to Atlantic City and New York.

Betty Alden

Mrs. Harold F. McNeil (Virginia W. Brown) of Devon rd., Chestnut Hill, is interested in the success of the Wednesday morning musicales.

POVLA FRIJSH CAPTIVATES AUDIENCE

By MOSES SMITH

Povla Frijsh, Danish soprano, one of the few performers who can come, unheralded by fanfares of extravagant press-agentry, to Jordan Hall and attract a large audience, sang last before an enthusiastic assemblage that almost filled the hall.

A Frijsh concert is a strange thing—and a rather extraordinary thing in Jordan Hall. For an evening that auditorium ceases to be a mausoleum where moribund debutantes display their feeble wares, and where audiences sit by chilly. For once an audience applauds lustily, as if it were at a celebrity concert in the more pretentious Symphony Hall. Last night it was again evident that Mme. Frijsh has a public.

The reasons for this were clearly in evidence. Again one heard an extraordinary artist—a musician, first of all, who sings her songs as musically as a violinist would play them; a temperament that runs deep and straight to the emotional source of the music she is singing and the words she is declaiming; a remarkable imagination which, combined with this temperament, makes her interpretations glow to incandescence.

Her program included two ancient pieces, songs by Brahms and Schubert, by French and Scandinavian composers. For each, Mme. Frijsh found the "right" mood, the enlivening interpretation. At all times she was interesting, at most times moving. If she was not equally successful with all her songs, it is because her voice is, as compared with her artistry, an instrument of limitations.

The audience did everything but cheer. Three numbers on the program were repeated, extras were added, and the listeners waited for more at the close.

State Fairs Assn. to Meet Jan. 22, 23

Making the fairs of Massachusetts more attractive and educational will be the chief topic for discussion at the coming meeting of the State Fairs Association at Northampton, Jan. 22 and 23.

It will be the 10th annual meeting of the association and after the banner year of 1929 the secretary, A. W. Lombard, expects to hear of some vigorous plans for progress for the 1930 season.

Printed Frocks Return to Charm With Bright Tones

NOW is the season for printed frocks to bloom anew—and they never have been more charming or more feminine. A small clover motif in bright tone is printed on the dark background of the smart model illustrated here. Note the interesting way the detail is handled, especially in the collar and full skirt.

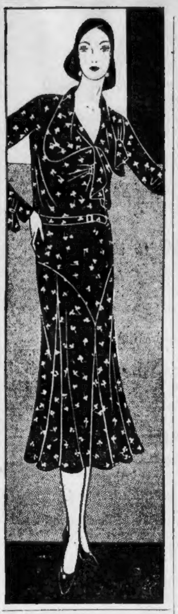
It's still a question whether the extremely long skirt will survive for another season. A new development in the controversy was the comment of Madame Schiaparelli, designer, especially noted for her smart sport clothes. She called attention to the fact that skirts are worn longer in New York than they are at present in Paris. The skirt of moderate length is her choice and she expressed the opinion that extreme length would prove a fad. This is a decided victory for the feminine faction that bewails the possibility of skirts that sweep the floor.

SUCH little things can add a delightful fillip to a season's mode! Little things that are of big consequence when the sum of chic is totaled. Have you been so eagerly scanning the BIG fashions for the south that you have scarcely had time to note some of the LITTLE ones? If you have, we must beg you to consider several items which simply have to find a place in your southward bound trunk!

There is, for instance, the jolliest jacket fashioned of Rodier's hand-blocked cotton kerchiefs. It is sleeveless and quaintly peasantlike. These printed cotton kerchiefs of Rodier's promise to be quite a rage for any number of uses.

And then there is a smart beach shoe fashioned like a Roman sandal. It comes in every imaginable color of leather with a rubber sole. It puts a decided kick into the beach costume!

Lastly there is an intriguing version of the practical beach bag. It is made of glazed chintz with bizarre modern yellow animals cavorting on a black background. It is finished with a wooden frame and lined with rubber. A striking beach coat to match may be chosen if desired.



Accessories Provide Delightful Touch to Season's Mode

WHETHER the gay printed or embroidered linen jacket that accompanied the tennis would survive this season is a question to be answered in the affirmative. The new version of this colorful wrap, however, is very different from any that promenaded last summer's smart board walks. The designs are larger and more modernistic, the colors are even gayer and the fitted, flared jacket of the new mode has nothing in common with the loosely hanging jackets of other years.

WHETHER it is the general trend toward more elaborate costumes or whether long skirts and uneven hemlines have brought shoes into greater prominence, slippers are becoming more and more decorative. One slipper recently shown consisted merely of sole with wide straps crossed above the toes and a strap about the heel. Another of white and gold tinsel cloth showed a cut-out effect across the toes and a jeweled buckle held the back of the shoe in place. The heel was unusually high.

YOU may have wondered whether or not the vogue for elegance would affect accessories. So far as the handbag is concerned there is an element of conservative elegance in the fall and winter models. Clasps are fashioned of gold, silver, jade, galalith, while the bags themselves are rather simple. One unique bag is trimmed with wide ribbons of fine gold links. Braided self-fabric thongs are a new note in trimming.

NOBILITY AT WEDDING OF HUB GIRL

Even though her bridal attendants have come from the far corners of the earth, the wedding tomorrow of Miss Rachel D. Smith, Back Bay society beauty, to Count Frederick Franz Grote of Mecklenburg, Germany, will be an American wedding of marked simplicity.

A countess from Germany will be maid of honor, a count from Egypt will be best man, and a count from Switzerland will be chief usher.

The bride will be given away by her father, Henry Pickering Smith, of 34 Commonwealth ave., the Count and Countess Grote, parents of the groom, will occupy conspicuous places in the wedding party.

There will be no bright-colored uniforms to contrast with the wedding gown of the bride. The groom, his best man and the chief usher will wear conventional morning suits, Prince Albert coat and striped trousers. Even the number of invited guests will be very limited.

All because Miss Smith, a graduate of the exclusive Bryn Mawr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pickering Smith of 348 Commonwealth ave., wants it to be just that way. Just plain Mrs. Grote is good enough for her.

The ceremony will take place tomorrow noon at 12:30 o'clock in the Lindsay Memorial Chapel of Emmanuel Church on Newbury st., and will be performed by the Rev. Benjamin Washburn, rector, assisted by the Rev. Charles E. Park of the First Church of Boston.

The bride will be given away by her father, and immediately following the ceremony there will be a reception at the Algonquin Club. The couple plan to go to St. Moritz for six weeks, thence to Cannes, where they will spend the Easter holidays, and in June take up their residence at the Grote estate, Varchentine, in Mecklinberg, Germany.

Count F. Blucher, a long-time friend of Count Grote, was in Egypt when the wedding plans were made and in response to a cablegram he immediately started for Boston to act as best man. He arrived in Boston together with Count Grote's parents, Count and Countess Otto Graf Grote, and their daughter, the Countess Zia Grote, who will be maid of honor, and Count H. Puchier of Switzerland, who will be the chief usher.

HARVEY BUILDS SMALL BOATS UPSIDE DOWN

By ALFRED D. WHELTON

Twenty-eight years ago a young man startled this section of the world in general and his boss in particular by building a boat "upside down."

Today the same man is regarded as a wizard craftsman where boats and small racing craft are discussed by sporting men.

He is John Harvey, "just turning 66," who is in charge of the small boat division of George Lawley & Son Corporation at Neponset.

Ship builders in general scorned the ideas of this newcomer to the ranks of New England craftsmen, and the late George Lawley, the newcomer's boss, thought his new man was "plumb crazy."

During the succeeding years, however, John Harvey was destined to turn out some of the world's floating masterpieces, using his system of upside down building. To his division went the orders for tenders, rowboats and launches.

Under Harvey's system the wooden keel is prepared and mortised to receive the butts of the frame. The molds are then spaced along the keel to conform to measurements on the designer's plan, and are ribbanded-off to give the basket-like structure its first appearance of a boat.

A steam process is used to make the white oak ribs pliable so that they may be forced into proper position with each end in a mortise in the keel.

For the steaming a box or casing, 40 or 50 feet in length, is used. The stock is allowed to stand a specified time in live steam fed to the casing by a boiler.

The next process is the planking. The planks are treated by the steam process to insure a give where they tend toward the bow and stern. As the steam leaves, the wood retains the shape it has been forced into.

The upside down system makes it much easier to work. The workman looks down at his work instead of from the strained position under the frame. Boats as long as 100 feet have been built in this manner.

When the craft is ready for positioning on the lead keel, used on heavy boats, it is simply turned over so the wooden keel rests onto the lead one, which, in turn, is set in a cradle on rollers so that it may be easily trundled from place to place.

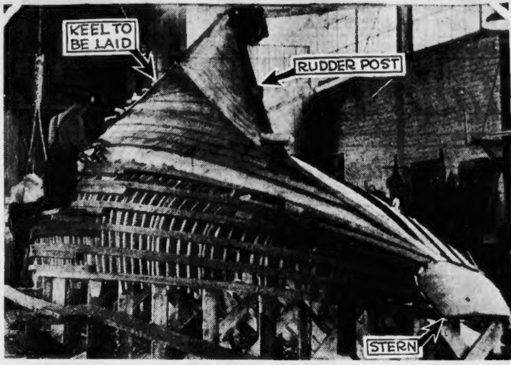
While Harvey has seen many changes in the building of boats, most of them have been in the materials used. His pet "upside down" system is still considered the best by him.

He built his first boat at the age of 11 years, and always prided himself on the fact that he earned the money to buy the stock.

That the business of boat building is in his blood may readily be seen from the fact that both his father and grandfather were boat builders in Scotland, the land of his birth.

He maintains, however, that America boasts the best set of boat builders he knows—and Harvey knows boats.

Art of Boat Building Upset



Here's how John Harvey, master boat builder at Lawley's, constructs his craft. Before he introduced this system the boats were usually built right side up, but Harvey, though all the experts decided he was "crazy," proved the value of his system. (Staff photo.)

Police Shots Rout Pair at Judge's Home

Scranton, Pa., Jan. 17 (AP)—Police today exchanged shots with two men found loitering around the homes of a judge and prosecutor. The men escaped.

Guards at the home of Judge E. C. Newcomb, who is conducting an investigation into the activities of a local slot machine syndicate, attempted to question the men who ran as the police approached. The police then opened fire, which was returned by the fleeing men. They escaped in an automobile driven by a third man.

Detroit Men to Seek Treasure of Incas

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Two Detroiters and a descendant of the Incas have gone to Peru believing they possess the secret of buried treasure. Robert C. Jackson, real estate operator, and Gideon L. Leasley, plumbing contractor, are accompanied by Inca Tititl Cusi Ticcapato, also known as Alberto Rosell, an engineer.

They plan to drain a lake into which tradition says a two-ton chain of gold was dropped when the Spanish conquerors came. On the chain in code was a key to the location of the tombs of 14 Inca emperors, containing vast wealth.

Coast Guards Fish Up 3 Cases of Rum

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 17 (AP)—Members of the Rye Beach coast guard station observed the 10th anniversary of prohibition by going fishing for liquor off Rye Ledge. They met with success and today the "catch," three cases of fancy foreign liquors, was locked in the customs house here.

The submarine cache of rum runners at Rye Beach has thus far yielded 594 cases of expensive foreign liquors.

Beautiful Complexion Without Rouge

Do you want a beautiful complexion? Without the use of rouge? And color that is all your own! If you suffer from constipation give your system just a tiny calcium wafer! Don't take that customary pill on Saturday night—let a Stuart Calcium wafer help Nature do its magic work for you!

Don't take anything you have to double each time—take something you can cut in two each time.

One of our best manufacturers, in a critical financial condition because of wholesale cancellations by big stores elsewhere—due to warm weather—must raise cash to meet payroll and other expenses. Because banks refused to loan further, drastic sacrifice of his stock presents his only means of avoiding bankruptcy. We know the man and the high quality of his merchandise and are glad to be able to help him in his distress and at the same time to offer BARGAINS that will set all Boston talking. A smaller lot, sent us for last week-end, was sold out in two days. Bridge Supper Burden Is Made Easy for the Hostess

MARTHA'S MENU LETS THE GAME GO THROUGH

Secret Lies in Choosing Items That Can Be Cooked Early in the Day, and Served on Short Notice

Bridge parties are certainly one of the most popular of all winter indoor sports—popular for the guests anyway but not too easy for the hostess who has the planning of the all-important bridge supper. In choosing your menu you will probably want to plan something that can be prepared early in the day and will keep in good condition until serving time.

In this way you can really enjoy the game yourself, secure in the certainty of a perfect supper 'most ready to serve.

Here's a menu particularly suitable for this type of entertainment.

Jellied Tomato Ham Ring Salad
With Cheese Center
Olives Pickles Celery
Caramel Coffee Mousse
Coconnut Cake Coffee Nuts
Candies

For this menu, which will serve 8 to 10 portions, use the following recipes:

JELLIED TOMATO HAM RING MOLD SALAD

1 qt. canned tomato
1½ cups water
1 bay leaf
4 cloves
1 medium sized onion minced
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. mustard

Cook the ingredients for ½ hour. Strain and add 2 tbsps. gelatin soaked in 3 tbsps. cold water. When gelatin is dissolved, cool as quickly as possible. When mixture begins to jell, add the following ingredients:

1 cup diced celery
2 cups diced ham
1 green pepper chop in small pieces.

The green pepper should be parboiled for 10 minutes then cooled in cold water, the outer skin removed before dicing. Mix the ingredients with the jelly and turn into a ring mold rinsed in cold water. Place in the refrigerator to set.

For the center of the mold, use a bowl or tin can that is about the same diameter as the opening in the center of the ring mold. An empty coffee can often does very nicely. Mix 1 pound of cottage cheese until creamy. Add ½ tsp. salt, ½ cup celery, and the contents of 1 small bottle of pimento olives, chopped.

Soak 1 tbsp. gelatin in 2 tbsps. cold water. Heat over hot water until dissolved, then stir into the cheese mixture. Pour into the mold that has been rinsed in cold water. Place in refrigerator to chill.

This may be done the evening before or the morning of the party. Dip ring mold in hot water and unmold on a bed of lettuce—then unmold the cheese mixture in the center of the ring. Serve at the table with mayonnaise or boiled dressing.

CARAMEL COFFEE MOUSSE

For the caramel coffee mousse, use the yolks of 4 eggs, ⅓ cup brown sugar, ¾ cup granulated sugar, 1 tall can evaporated milk, ½ cup boling water, 2 tbsps. coffee, 1 tsp. vanilla, 2 cups heavy cream. Caramelize the brown sugar, then add the evaporated milk and coffee scalded in the boiling water.

Stir until the sugar is thoroughly dissolved; then strain through a cloth. Beat the yolks of the eggs until thick and lemon colored; add the granulated sugar and beat in the hot liquid. Cook over hot water until thick, stirring constantly. Chill.

When cool, add the vanilla and fold in the whipped cream. Turn into a vacuum freezer or mold and freeze in a mixture of one part salt to three parts ice. It will take from three to four hours to freeze this mousse. The custard for the mousse may be made the previous day or morning, and the cream added just before the mixture is ready for the freezer.

PARKER HOUSE ROLLS

2 c. scalded milk.
3 tbsps. butter
2 tbsps. sugar
2 tsps. salt.
1 yeast cake dissolved in ¼ c. luke warm water
Flour (about 5½ c.)

Add butter, sugar, and salt to milk; when lukewarm, add dissolved yeast cake and 3 cups of flour. Beat thoroughly, cover, and let rise until light; cut down, and add enough flour to knead (it will take about 2½ cups). Let rise again, toss on slightly floured board, knead, pat and roll out to 1-3 inch thickness. Shape with biscuit cutter, first dipped in flour. Dip the handle of a case knife in flour, and with it make a crease through the middle of each piece; brush over ⅓ of each piece with melted butter, fold, and press edges together. Place in greased pan, one inch apart, cover, let rise, and bake in hot oven 12 to 15 minutes. As rolls rise they will part slightly, and if hastened in rising are apt to lose their shape.

Parker House Rolls may be shaped by cutting or tearing off small pieces of dough, and shaping round like a biscuit; place in rows on floured board, cover, and let rise 15 minutes. With handle of large wooden spoon, or toy rolling pin, roll through center of each biscuit, fold, press lightly, place in buttered pan one inch apart, cover, let rise, and bake.

French 'Pye' Ideal for Dinner

I have for you today an old-time recipe for Frenech Pye—an open meat pie garnished with asparagus tips and served with green peas and broiled tomatoes. It really makes an ideal Sunday dinner and is as "different" as it is delicious.

FRENCH PYE

1 c. cooked left-over roast veal or lamb.
1 c. sauteed mushrooms
1 c. cooked asparagus tips
2 c. white sauce made from:
  4 tbsps. butter
  4 tbsps. flour
  1 c. milk
1 c. veal or chicken stock (canned chicken broth may be used)

Line a baking dish with a rich pie crust and bake until it commences to turn pale brown. Add the veal and mushrooms to the sauce and heat together for about 10 minutes to blend the flavors. Pour this mixture into the pastry lined baking dish. Over the top lay the hot, cooked asparagus tips and dot with butter. Serve at once.

Went Home With Secrets of Choice Recipes

Wind and rain failed to put even a dent in a record attendance on the opening night of the mid-winter term of Martha Lee's class for Boston Brides and Business Girls. These are a few of the early arrivals. They are Miss Marjorie Moore, Miss Adeline Hutchinson, Miss Mary Major, Miss Mary Connelly, Miss Ann Brown, Mrs. Mary Fopiano and Miss Alice R. Barlow.

Swedish Health Bread Tempting in Flavor

Martha Lee's cooking classes this week were especially interested in a new Swedish health bread displayed and sampled and used in the Bacon Delight Sandwiches.

This delicious bread is quite different from many health breads, because it is not coarse and tasteless, but a deliciously flavored tempting bread that is as good to your taste as it is for you.

The long, narrow loaf cuts into 24 dainty slices and if you are fortunate enough to have a few leftovers you'll be enthusiastic about the excellent toast that it makes. Give the youngsters all of this bread they can eat because it has just the qualities they need for health and vitality.

There are over 60 delivery routes in Boston servicing this bread so that you can easily get it without inconvenience from your local grocer.

Choice of Chinese or American Dishes

One of Chinatown's most popular restaurants, The Young China, located at 32 Harrison ave., has proven a bigger and better place to dine and dance. They are offering a special noon day lunch, served from 1 a. m. until 2:30 p. m., with a choice of Chinese or American dishes.

The management announces that an a la carte luncheon will be served at all times. It is one of the few restaurants on Harrison ave. where the patrons can enjoy a dance before or after lunch.

COOKING CLASS LEARNS HOW TO SAVE

Brides and Business Girls Get Real Serious About Recipes That Help Them Beat the January Budget

Old Jupiter Pluvius at his worst failed to dampen the enthusiasm or lessen the attendance at the opening night of the midwinter term of Martha Lee's Cooking Class for Brides and Business Girls. The Boston Evening American auditorium was one of the few places in Boston on that wet night, where the Standing-Room-Only sign was out.

The opening lesson was on penny-saving recipes, since most of us are busily trying to beat our budget—in January, at least.

Bacon Delights (toasted sandwiches), combining cheese, bacon, tapioca, tomato juice and seasonings, were all that their name indicates, and are guaranteed by Martha Lee to bring any young man to heel.

Warm gingerbread, put together with layers of fluffy marshmallows and topped with toasted marshmallows, proved attractive and delicious, as did an old-fashioned Apple Tapioca Pudding, brought up to date by a new method of preparation requiring only five minutes' baking and a decorative meringue for topping.

Another economical recipe was a meat loaf put together with tomatoes and tapioca, in place of the usual bread crumbs and eggs. This proved exceptionally tender and delicious as well as economical. Meat Rolls with Brown Gravy—the gravy made literally from "nothing at all," and Cheese Biscuits to serve with salads completed a lesson as practical as it was interesting.

We have prepared a few extra copies of the recipes in this first lesson of the new series, and if you will drop Martha Lee a line, giving your registered membership number in the Martha Lee Women's Club, she will be glad to send you a copy.

If you haven't a registered number, why not get one today? There's no charge, you know, for membership in this club of no dues but many privileges.

Lee Confirmed

Washington, Jan. 17—The nomination of William E. Lee of Idaho to be a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission was confirmed by the Senate.

Stay Proud of Him

HE'S too little to care now . . . too young to realize. But later, he will thank you . . . over and over again . . . if you will help him now to develop a firm, robust body, strong bones and solid teeth.

See that he gets plenty of sunshine, fresh air and rest. And when he is hungry . . . give him wholesome, body-building food.

Give him Ralston . . . the quick-cooking cereal that supplies all the vital nourishment of whole wheat. Children love it for its rich, appetizing flavor of golden wheat ripened in the sun.

Growing children and grown-ups also like Ralston Wheat Flakes . . . temptingly crisp, crunchy whole wheat flakes. Try them both . . . soon.

WHOLE WHEAT CEREAL

Ice Box Cake Is Made of Goodies

ORANGE ICE BOX CAKE

2 cups water
3 tbsps. lemon juice
Pulp of one orange shredded
½ cup marshmallow whip
1 cup chopped nuts
1 cup sugar
1 cup orange juice
2 cups cream
24 lady fingers or sponge cake
3 tbsps. gelatine

Boil water and sugar 20 minutes. Soak gelatine in cold water to cover for five minutes, add to boiling syrup; add lemon juice and strain. Add orange juice and pulp and chill. Beat until light. Add whipped cream mixed with marshmallow whip. Beat thoroughly. Line cake pan with oiled paper, separate lady fingers and place around edge. Crumble remaining lady fingers. Put crumbs, nuts and cream mixture in pan in alternate layers. Chill in food compartment until firm. Serve with marshmallow whip.

Corn and Beef Loaf Looks Mighty Good

Mix together one pound of ground rump of beef, one-half pound ground fresh pork, one beaten egg, one tablespoon chopped onion, one-half tablespoon of salt, one-fourth teaspoon of pepper, one-half cup of bread crumbs and the contents of an 11-ounce can of corn. Form into a roll. Place in a well-greased loaf pan and bake in hot oven, 400 degrees F. for about 45 minutes. Serves eight.

Salt Water for Cold in Head

Colds in the head and stopped up nostrils are cleared by sniffing a solution of warm salt water. Sniff several handsful carefully so as not to get it too far back in the nose. Even better, a bulb syringe might be used to inject the salt water gently into each nostril, while the head is bent forward. This washes away the mucous and other irritating secretions, clears the sinuses and shrinks the swollen and inflamed membranes.

Tired, Aching Feet Relieved by Salt

Put new life into your feet by bathing them in hot salt water. This stimulates the circulation and removes the waste products which are responsible for the fatigue. Add two handfuls of salt to a basin of hot water. Place your feet in it and receive their everlasting gratitude.

Right Use of Leisure at Home Vital for Happiness

Mrs. John D. Sherman Offers "Tips" in Federation News

If you want happiness, you must know how to use leisure time. leisure time.

If you would make mother a successful homemaker, allow her leisure interests of her very own, apart from thoughts and deeds of her family. This is the advise of Mrs. John D. Sherman, former president of the General Federation.

Perhaps the only nation in the world which has recognized the importance of happiness to such a marked degree is our own country, according to Mrs. Sherman, America is the only nation that considers happiness one of its aims of government.

The "Right Use of Leisure" was first brought into prominence by Mrs. Sherman, now chairman of the department of American Home of the General Federation. Since, programs and lectures devoted to the subject have been staged throughout the land.

In the General Federation News, the official organ of the national federation, Mrs. Sherman again calls for the use of leisure within the family group.

She points out:

"Family life is lived in leisure moments. Modern economic conditions separate members of a family during working and school hours. for an increasing number of men and women, more time and energy is being rendered available when the day's work is done to devote to a welding together of the family through many avenues.

"We believe the home is essential for the deepest realization of individual and group life. We believe that only the home in which the family spends a part of its leisure happily is worthy of the name.

"Homemakers, upon whom rests the responsibility of directing a joyous use of leisure in the home, must understand the emotional and mental as well as physical needs of human beings of all ages; they must have insight into human heart and mind, and must know the activities that will give the human soul a chance to express itself fully and will permit development of real value.

"It is with this end in view that the General Federation conducts a campaign for adequately equipped homes, so that the homemaker might be released from needless labor and have the leisure time to devote to the ethical, moral and spiritual needs of herself and her family."

WOODBOURNE WOMAN'S CLUB

An imposing bulletin of three pages was sent to me by Mrs. William H. Prescott of this splendid group; a bulletin "newsy" and informative on recent accomplishments of the club, prefaced by greetings from the President.

A bulletin informs that it seems to be the unanimous wish of the club members that we should do our bit in raising the Endowment Fund." The method is to be left to the individual, and although several have at this early date signified their intention of paying the whole amount of $2.50 to "get it over with," this club will be 100 per cent when the final roll call is taken

"The real Christmas spirit was made manifest by the generous way in which you all responded to our call for gifts for the sick boys at Rutland," Mrs. Charles H. Danforth, state federation chairman of the department on inter-racial unity, and founder of the Woodbourne Woman's Club, writes in the bulletin. Eight stockings were filled and for the leftovers, three husky-sized boxes did the trick

The club is very proud of its Red Cross canvas. The amount collected was $138.20, and those who participated in the canvas included Mrs. Elizabeth Higgins, Mrs. Marjorie Higgins, Mrs. John Parks, Mrs. David Harrison, Mrs. Dana Sargent, Mrs. O. E. Dodge, captain; Mrs. Ada Amidon, Mrs. J. H. Weld, captain; Mrs. F. L. Blaisdell, Mrs. Horace Guild, Mrs. Caroline D. Morse, Mrs. J. H. Sheppard, Mrs. Alfred Guyon, Mrs. Louis Neal, Miss Erie Budd, Mrs. Frank S. Pierce, Mrs. A. R. Martin and Mrs. Alice Prescott Jones.

NEW ENGLAND HOME ECONOMICS ASSOCIATION

The mid-winter meeting of the association will take place tomorrow in an all-day session at Simmons College, opening at 11 a. m. with a talk on "Supplementing the Home Kitchen" by Miss Helen Leighton of New Hampshire University. The session is to be presented by the Institutional Managers Section.

"Supplementing the Home Kitchen for Adults," discussed by Miss Alice Carter of the Women's City Club, will come next, followed by brief reports on "Supplementing the Home Kitchen for Children," by Mrs. Claus Sandwald of the Frank Day Junior High School, Newton; Miss Daisy Treen, Women's Educational and Industrial Union; Mrs. Basil F. Collins, Pawtucket, R. I.; Miss Katharine L. Baker, Medford high school, and Miss Easter T. Hamilton, Newton Junior High School

At the afternoon session Miss Lillian Locke of Teachers College, Columbia University, will lecture on "Some Present Day Silhouettes and What They Mean to the Future."

WOMEN ORGANISTS CLUB

The evening meeting will be held at the Copley M. E. Church, Exeter and Newbury sts., January 20 at 8 o'clock with the president, Mrs. Mina del Castillo, in the chair. Groups of songs will be sung by Mrs. Pauline Jackson Kempton, soprano, soloist of the Universalist Church of Newtonville, and Miss Gladys Hodnott, contralto soloist of the Central Congregational Church of Chelsea, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Agnes Allen. Miss Carrie Henry and Mrs. Allen are to be hostesses.

CANADIAN WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

Preparations are now under way for the club's outstanding social event—the annual ball to take place at the Copley-Plaza, this year on February 18. The women are assisting the men's Canadian Club in the affair. Capt. Roy Edwards is chairman and the women who are helping him are Mrs. Charles E. Cowan, vice-chairman; Mrs. W. A. Thompson, publicity; Mrs. George Miller, reception; in addition to hosts of the members at large.

The regular business meeting is scheduled for January 21 at 8 p. m. in Brown Hall. A group of songs by the Perkins Girls' Glee Club will be the entertainment. For the social hour to follow, Mrs. Frank Mitchell will be hostess.

The convention of the New England Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers closed at the Copley Plaza, following a banquet and ball

FARM BOARD TO STUDY THE N. E. CO-OPERATIVES

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—To determine the type of business conducted by numerous scattered organizations as a basis for the establishment of sound regional co-operatives, the federal farm board will make a study of local farmers' co-operative associations in 12 northeastern states.

The survey, to be started not later than July 1, will be conducted in co-operation with agricultural colleges, experiment stations, extension workers and departments of agriculture in the following states: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia.

Other objectives of the study announced today by the farm board are to obtain detailed information concerning the volume of business, and costs of operation of each co-operative; to provide the basis for effective extension work with co-operatives in order to get them on a sound basis; to find which, if any, of these co-operatives are not organized in accordance with the Capper-Volstead act; to indicate the board's interest in the co-operatives' problems; and to enable a revision of the associations' records.

It is planned that findings in all 12 states will be available early next winter.

JUDGE DEFENDS SELF IN BABY SLAYING CASE

Camden, N. J., Jan. 17 (AP)—Judge Joseph A. Corio of Atlantic City took the witness stand today in the trial of Gladys May Parks, charged with the murder of two children, and made a complete denial of the defendant's statement that he had slain one of the children.

Miss Parks in one of her five statements made to Prosecutor Clifford A. Baldwin and read in court yesterday, said that Corio came to her Camden home, saw Timothy Rogers, two years old, who was in her care, and became so angry that he choked the child and then held his head under a faucet of running water.

In other statements Miss Parks said the child had died after an accidental fall downstairs.

This child and Dorothy Rogers, a four-year-old sister, were the children of Alan A. Rogers of Woodbury. She is charged with murder in the first degree in connection with their death. Dorothy, Miss Parks has said, died after she had whipped her.

Judge Corio was questioned by Prosecutor Baldwin

Q.—Did you see the defendant on August 22, 1929, in Atlantic City? A.—No

Q.—In Camden? A.—No

Q.—Do you know this defendant? A.—Yes.

Q.—When did you last see her? A.—At my office in Atlantic City the latter part of 1928. I have not seen her since.

Q.—How did this defendant come to visit you? A.—She called with her sister about an estate. They were to get some property when their father passed on. She demanded money at once. I told her I could not give her any money. She became angry and said I had sold her out and that the lawyer on the other side had paid me off. I gave her back her papers and ordered her out of the office.

Soviet Plans to Revolutionize Agriculture in Five Years

This is the fifth of the series of six articles on the modern Soviet Russia which Frazier Hunt, internationally known war correspondent, newspaper man and magazine writer, has written exclusively for International News Service.

By FRAZIER HUNT

European representative for Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Written Especially for International News Service

Copyrighted, 1930, by International News Service in the United States and All Foreign Countries. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited.

London, Jan. 17—It is a super-dream, this five-year program of the Soviets. Until a little more than a year ago it centered around the idea of turning the villages into co-operative farming units, each owning and operating its own tractors and machines.

To grasp all this we must for the moment forget our own American scene. Here in Russia are millions upon millions of acres of black rolling prairies, rich river bottoms, great open lands. Nowhere are there fences or permanent farm divisions.

Here and there are scattered villages, but no isolated farm buildings. The village is the unit; here the farmers live, going out each morning to their unfenced strips of land.

STATE OWNS ALL

All land is owned by the state, but each peasant can have what he can work—about seven to eight acres for each soul in the family. He can not sell or dispose of his strip, but it is his as long as he works it.

In the million villages there have been little changes in the past 50 years no modern machinery, no schools, no culture, but always the unconscious dream and hope of a better life, of education, of good homes. By forming co-operatives and introducing machinery it was thought they could be pulled up by their own bootstraps.

Hundreds of these co-operative villages were consequently organized and tractors brought in—but something was wrong. Peasant boys and girls handling these imported machines were untrained. This new machine god demanded an exact worship. It demanded priest-mechanics and missionary-engineers.

Then less than 18 months ago there was thought out the "tractor center" scheme—a brand new idea of efficient mechanized co-operative farming. Naturally, it must be changed, re-drawn, and made to fit the varied country conditions of this endless land.

But it is the idea that eventually will remake all Russian country life. It is the basis of the real revolution—the deep and solid foundation upon which will be built the Russia of the future.

HOW PLAN WORKS

For the moment it is planned as follows: A tractor center is established, preferably on a railroad. From this point a circle is drawn with a radius of ten miles. In this tractor center will be housed some 250 tractors, with other farm machinery in proportion. Here will be machine and repair shops and in the winter a tractor school.

In the spring groups of tractors, ranging in number from eight to twelve or fifteen, will move out to the various villages in the "county" or "township" community. Each group will be under the general charge of a skilled mechanic, but the tractors and machines will be manned by the young men and women in each village.

All labor, except technical and expert mechanics and agronomists, will be supplied by the local villages. Machines will do all the plowing, harrowing, planting and harvesting at a charge of from 25 to 33 1-3 per cent of the crop.

Each peasant family will be given its proportionate share according to the amount of land and labor contributed. With the fall plowing finished, the tractors and machinery will be brought into the tractor center, overhauled and repaired and made ready for the spring work.

It will mean, if it succeeds, that eventually Russian agricultural life may pass American country life. To date the mechanical genius of America has not been turned on our own agricultural problems. Our city factories have shot ahead with incredible speed while our farming methods have lagged behind.

Horses are gone in our cities, but they still do 90 per cent of the work on our farms. The small factory unit has been absorbed in our great industrial organization—and yet the small farm hangs on.

Here in Red Russia they have the temerity to build a new and efficient modern agriculture. They see that the machine is as important to the farm as to the city, and they are attempting to leap across a half century of static country conditions into new agriculture world of the future.

OUT OF MUDHOLES

Eventually they plan to make this tractor center a social and economic center as well. Here will be established small packing plants, cheese factories, flour mills and a score and one manufacturing establishments to utilize the raw products and the labor of the community.

Here, too, will be the community high school and the workers' college—as well as the tractor and machine school. Here will be a central power station that will send light and power to the furthermost corner of the district.

A new economic life will bring education, culture and a whole new social life. Once successful it will lift the peasant out of the mudhole of the past.

Such is the dream. It will be changed, re-drawn and made to fit into the actualities and necessities of the time and place. But it will all be based on the coming of the machine to the country, the industrialization of the land. Only through the machine and modern methods can this bearded peasant ever be shaken from his old life of poverty and ignorance.

This is the idea that the peasant is being asked to subscribe to; to throw in his land, his horses and cattle, his equipment and labor, and to become part of this new farm factory. Under the spell and leadership of the powerful, individualistic "Kulak" he hesitates for the moment.

But he is going Red. The great unconscious mass movement for machinery and co-operation has caught him. He is beginning to worship the machine god. He bows and crosses himself before the tractor ikon.

And this tractor will remain the symbol of all this mechanization and industrialization — tractors by the thousands, the tens of thousands, the hundreds of thousands.

With tomorrow's article Mr. Hunt concludes this series of six articles on Soviet Russia, and sums up his opinion of the movement for the mechanization of Soviet agricultural life and the eventual importance of this movement. It means, he says, that the cities, with their great five-year plan of industrial efficiency, are at last attempting along practical lines to get in tune with the Russian land—at last they are carrying the real revolution to the Russian masses.

"And in the meantime Russia turns Red in one great, overwhelming mass movement."

It means that Russia is raising up a new peasant, of a new stature. He will no longer be the ignorant, illiterate, superstitious peasant of the dark villages. He will be a man of the new world of machines.

A SIMPLE STEP TOWARDS HEALTH

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a Daily Essential and Millions Know Its Effectiveness in Relief of Constipation

Perhaps the one simple thing you are not doing to guarantee permanent health is having sufficient roughage in your food. Absence of this roughage is the direct cause of constipation which results in so many other ills—headaches, listlessness, general depression, indigestion and, sometimes, serious disease.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is roughage. It is positively guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation or the purchase price will be refunded. Two tablespoons daily (in serious cases, with each meal) is the proper amount.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also helps you to health in other ways. It is rich in iron, practically all of which goes into the blood, bringing red, healthy color to the complexion. It helps prevent anemia. Be sure to include it in reducing diets.

Many eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with cream or milk added. It is a delicious addition to cereals, fruits and soups. In cooked foods, such as bran muffins, it is just as effective in the relief of constipation. Recommended by doctors. Ask your grocer for Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. POLICE SEEK DRIVER WHOSE CAR INJURED 2 PERSONS

A Wonderful Love Story by Author of 'Hollywood Girl,' 'Easy.'

What Has Happened Before

Happiness and love have remained steadfastly with Tom and Lovejoy Nicholson during their first year of married life. The arrival of Tom, Jr., brought more joy to the little, green bungalow. Then comes Mrs. Arline Alderson, rich but childless neighbor, to sow the first seeds of discontent.

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER VII

THE more Lovejoy saw of Mrs. Alderson the more discontented and dissatisfied she became.

And she saw a good deal of her in the next few weeks.

Sometimes she would come dropping in during Lovejoy's busy morning, to say "Hello" to her on her way to a riding lesson.

At such times she would be beautifully and plainly dressed in a black habit and shiny boots, and she would talk carelessly of "English saddles" and "Kentucky five-gaited horses" and other things that were Greek to Lovejoy.

One morning in early December she came to the house, all wrapped up in silver fox furs and black cloth that brought out her golden blondness.

"Just look at this," she said to Lovejoy, and held out a big diamond ring in the palm of her gloved hand. "Yesterday was my birthday, and my husband gave this to me. I'm on my way down town to change it for another, and I thought perhaps you would go with me."

"But why do you want to change it?" Lovejoy asked, her big eyes bigger than ever with her amazement. "That ring is the loveliest thing I ever saw in my life—"

"No, it isn't. It's old-fashioned," Mrs. Aulerson broke in. "I wanted one of the new baguette diamonds instead of this thing. They aren't cutting diamonds like this any more. You ought to know that."

She dropped the jewel carelessly into her gold mesh bag.

"How about going downtown with me?" she asked again. "Can't you find someone who'd take care of the baby for a couple of hours? It would do you good to get away from that infant for a while. I'll be glad to let one of my housemaids come over here and look after it while we're gone, if it's all right with you."

But it was not all right with Lovejoy.

She wouldn't have even dreamed of leaving the baby in the house with a maid.

On the rare occasions when she went shopping she always wrapped Thomas, Jr., up in his little coat and bonnet and took him to Aunt Em for the afternoon. And even then she was worried about him every minute she was away from him.

"No, I can't leave the baby," she answered. "But it was nice of you to ask me to go along."

From behind the net curtains of her little living room she watched Mrs. Alderson get into her shining black closed car and drive away . . . She didn't envy her exactly, she told herself. But it must be wonderful to be free to go wherever she pleased at any time of day . . . with a car to ride in and plenty of money in her pocket.

For the first time it struck Lovejoy that the little house had become a kind of prison for her, these day

She never got out of it any more unless it was in the morning when she took the baby in his little buggy to do the marketing for the day. Or on the day when they all went to Aunt Em's for dinner.

And yet it was a pleasant prison. The days were peacefully pleasant for the most part.

It was fun to get up in the chill of the early morning to put on the breakfast coffee while Tom laid the wood-fire in the living room.

Fun to sweep and dust and go to market in the morning. Fun to bathe and dress the baby late in the afternoon so that he would be fresh as a rose for Tom's homecoming

And it was pure pleasure to put the dinner on to cook, set the little table, and then rush into the bedroom to make herself pretty for him.

For they were still sweethearts. Tom never had loved her in the early days of their marriage as he cared for her now.

He couldn't get home soon enough at the end of his day's work to see her and the baby.

And there was scarcely a night when he did not bring some small present with him — a rattle or a teething ring for the baby, who was still too young for such things; or a new egg-beater or an armful of magazines.

He and Lovejoy always did the dishes together after they had had their simple dinner.

The baby quieted down for his night's sleep — and then the nicest part of the long day began for the two young Nicholsons.

They would settle themselves in two deep comfortable chairs in the living-room, with a wood fire singing to itself in the grate, and a

FAIL IN ATTACK ON BACON BILL

An attempt in the House today to defeat a bill sponsored by President Gaspar G. Bacon of the Senate, to stop special legislation through the enactment of general laws, failed signally and the bill was ordered to a third reading

The bill would empower the Senate and House council to submit recommendations from time to time to take care of special matters through changes in the general laws, when such change can be made without detriment to the public interest.

Representative James J Twohig of South Boston, opposing the measure, said it would limit the right of free petition

Representative Maynard E. S Clemons of Wakefield declared there is a universal demand to cut down the number of unnecessary bills.

Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware said

Liggett Will Return, Says Girl Psychic

Walter Liggett, author of the "Bawdy Boston" story in Plain Talk Magazine, is coming back to Boston soon. At least this is what Miss Gene Dennis, psychic "mind reading" girl from Kansas, told Supt. Crowley at police headquarters.

Without any preliminary explanation, the girl was asked what the word "Liggett" meant, and if he would come to this city. "Something is disturbing him here in Boston," she commented, and promised his return. Miss Dennis also said that the Reinstein murder would be solved, but only one man would be arrested. He is shielding a woman, the girl said.

At that hour it registered 8 above, the lowest mark of the season thus far. A gradual climb was forecast for today with indications that it would be slightly warmer tomorrow and that the week-end would be quite wintry, with occasional snow flurries.

Greenville, Me., reported the lowest temperature in New England at 10 below, Northfield, Vt., 6 below; Eastport, Me., 2 below, and Barrington, Vt., zero.

The coldest spot in the country was Lander, Wyo., with a mark of 38 below. The sharp change was general throughout the country with many ordinarily warm sections reporting temperatures well below normal

TOOK GIRL TO HOSPITAL AND FLED

Won't Let Anyone Pass, but Firemen on the Run Get Him Finally

Fields Corner police are searching for the driver of a speeding automobile that injured two persons at Columbia rd. After taking one of the victims to the City Hospital, the driver vanished without leaving his name.

Registration of the car is known, but the driver cannot be identified by that means until the new registration lists are compiled at the State House.

The victims, Gertrude Siegle, 23, Devon st., Dorchester, and Maurice Gordon, 63, Stanwood st., Roxbury, were standing on the car stop reservation at Columbia rd

The driver of the speeding car, in passing another machine, was forced to swerve into the safety zone, striking Miss Siegle and Gordon.

Wife of Victim Seeks "Hit-and-Run" Driver

An appeal to the public to help identify a "hit and run" driver who injured her husband, was made today by Mrs. Cecil Flintoff of Johnson st., East Saugus.

While on his way home from work on Leverett st., Cambridge, Flintoff was struck by an unknown driver and severely hurt. Someone took him to North Station and he later arrived home in a dazed condition.

The man was too seriously injured to take the number of the driver's car. Police are also trying to find some person who witnessed the accident, which occurred on Wednesday, December 8, between 5 and 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Flintoff is making the public appeal because they cannot afford hospital expenses, which she feels ought to be paid by the driver or his insurance company.

Calls New England Council U. S. Model

Praise of the New England Council is contained in the current issue of the Business Week, McGraw-Hill publication, which declares that body to be "a model organization for the promotion of economic growth in an area of common economic problems."

The weekly suggests that similar regional councils covering the entire country be immediately organized. Because of the New England council, New England "is really ready to carry out the Hoover program quickly and efficiently," it is stated

Puffs Cigar in Upset Auto During Rescue

When your closed car is overturned in an accident and a big crowd gathers around watching unsuccessful efforts to open a door and release you—

George W. Glover of Green st., Wollaston, did just that under just those circumstances today

"Take it easy, don't get excited, I'm not hurt," Glover shouted to the crowd that gathered about his overturned sedan at Morton st. and Blue Hill ave., Mattapan.

He sat coolly smoking for fully six minutes while all attempts to open the doors and free him proved futile. Then Sergt. Patrick Flaherty, four patrolmen and a score of spectators pulled the car upright with Glover inside.

Still smoking, he stepped out shook hands with the sergeant, brushed a little oil from his trousers, stepped in again and drove away.

$210,000 FOR COUNTY COURT

An attempt by Rep. Roland D. Sawyer of Ware to reduce from $210,000 to $182,000 the amount to be appropriated by Hampshire county for adequate courthouse accommodations at Northampton was defeated in the House today and the bill was passed to the engrossment stage.

Sawyer argued that $160,000 was appropriated and the lowest bid was in excess of that amount by $22,000. He felt that no more money should be spent than is absolutely necessary

Rep. Frank O. Scott of West Springfield said the property cost $60,000 and the lowest bid for the building is close to $122,000. But he believed that the full amount of $210,000 asked for in the bill should be granted

Rep. Edwin L. Orlander of Northampton, also against the Sawyer amendment, contended that the lowest bidder has admitted that he figured the job $15,000 too low.

Condition of Bishop Babcock Unchanged

No change is reported today in the condition of the Rt. Rev. Samuel Babcock, D. D., suffragan bishop of Massachusetts, who is confined to the City Hospital as the result of an automobile accident last Tuesday night.

Considerable uncertainty has prevailed as to the exact nature of his injuries pending X-ray examination Mrs. Babcock is spending the entire day at her husband's bedside.

Gordon C. Brown of Tufts, organist, will be the accompanist. Dr. William L. Stidger of Boston University School of Theology will be the speaker

CAMBRIDGE POLICE WILL GIVE $1 EACH

So. Boston Branch Bank Is Repository for Relief Funds

Social groups, theaters, entertainers and individuals today came forward to swell the fund being raised by Joseph W. Bennett of South Boston for the family of Patrolman James J. Troy, murdered by a thug

The fund officially got underway today, and by the first of the week a liberal amount is expected to have accumulated. Two checks came in the first mail, as well as several pledges of support.

Michael Venis, president of the Lithuanian Citizens' Association of South Boston, announced he will call a special meeting of the 400 members for Sunday to take up a collection for the fund. Cambridge police have pledged a sum of $1 each

Two checks received today brought the first actual cash to hand for the widow and her four children. They were from Richard C. Kirbs, head of the East Boston Improvement Association, who sent a check for $25, and from Charles C. Gilbert, a public spirited citizen, of Milton, who sent a check for $10.

With the receipt of this money, Joseph L. McNamara, of the South Boston Branch of the Federal National Bank, and treasurer of the fund, took steps to have the official Troy fund account opened at the bank. McNamara also announced that he would lend his personal aid to the solicitation of funds and assist in the canvas of South Boston business men.

McNamara has also added one of his bookkeepers to the drive staff, and she will file and take care of all correspondence incidental to the fund

As contributions are received either at Bennett's office, No. 150 Orleans st., East Boston, or at the banking rooms of the Federal National Bank, in South Boston, the Boston Evening American will be immediately notified and the names and amounts of donors will be tabulated in these columns every day until the drive is closed

Contributions however should not be mailed to the Boston Evening American but to Mr. McNamara.

PLAN MIDNIGHT SHOW

The first benefit performance in aid of the Troy family will be held Friday afternoon at the Park Theater. The manager of this popular playhouse showing the latest release in motion pictures was one of the first theatrical men in the city to come to the aid of the officer's family.

All money taken in at the theater on Friday will be turned over to the Bennett fund. The total amount will be listed with other contributions in this paper.

Somehow the theatrical folks are always with anything that is real charity. It is the unwritten law of the theater to give to charity and when others have failed, it has been the actor, the theater manager and even members of theater orchestra's who have come to the rescue of striken people

When a reporter asked one of the members of a leading production now playing in Boston the real reason for the charitable tendencies of the theatrical people her answer was brief but said a whole lot. It was, "Well don't the folks remember our sick and infirmed when we have our annual drive during N. V. A. week"

That's real appreciation. And as a means of illustrating this girl's statement, the theater owners are coming through for "Jimmy" Troy's family and so are the actors.

On January 23 at a midnight show the actors after completing a night's work in their Boston theaters will rush over to East Boston to give the folks something for the money they will contribute to the Troy fund when they purchase a ticket

This performance will be held in the Central Square Theater and Billy Barker has agreed that he will assume the task of master of ceremonies. With Billy in charge one can imagine what a show the people are going to witness.

Over in South Boston there is to be another performance at a later date. In two other cities outside of Boston there will be a benefit for the Bennett fund and these will be announced later

SCHOOL CHILDREN PAY HOMAGE TO MEMORY OF FRANKLIN

MAYOR LEADS IN CITY HALL CEREMONIES

Wreath Purchased With Pennies of Pupils Is Placed Beside the Statue

Mayor Curley officiated today at the school children's celebration of the 224th anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin, under the direction of his old school, the Dearborn school, John C Riley principal.

The exercises took place in the City Hall grounds at the Franklin statue, a wreath being placed by Charles McLean and Frank Toy, pupils.

Some 123 boys and girls were present and listened to the mayor's address on the life of Franklin, during which he urged them to emulate the great philosopher and patriot by being frugal, truthful, sober and obedient.

Mayor Curley touched briefly on his own early days as a pupil in the old Dearborn school in Roxbury.

A chorus of children under the direction of Miss Roma Murphy, sang: "To Thee, Oh Country," and speeches were made by Earl Clark and Thomas Foran, pupils. Foran read an address of Franklin's, and recitations from "Poor Richard" were given by other children, representing different schools.

The exercises, which were under the immediate direction of Miss Louis C. Macdonald, were the 10th of their kind and were participated in by pupils studying printing in the intermediate classes. The wreath was paid for by pennies contributed by the children.

Mayor Russell Tells of His Plans

Cambridge Chief Executive Reveals That He Will Improve the Sport Fields

By FRANK J. SULLIVAN
Boston American Cub Reporter

I suggested a Russell family name plate for Cambridge city hall.

And then it occurred to me that Mayor Richard M. Russell has no sons. He has four daughters. However, and some day one of them may be mayoress of Cambridge.

That being a good idea, I am still suggesting the name plate. Instead of tacking it up, it might be better to paint it right on, because the tacks might fall out.

This was my first and, maybe, my last assignment as a reporter, but if this is a fizzle, I'll be satisfied to know that I interviewed a good man on by only attempt. And that I made my debut, as they say in the society column, in a real city.

Cambridge is a real city, and I don't think it is famous just because Harvard is there.

I took a long breath for courage and asked Mayor Russell: "Is Cambridge a 'jerk town' as claimed by a representative from Southie?"

"No," he said. "Cambridge is a $300,000,000 corporation, more or less. It ranks with the leading educational and industrial cities in the country. Representative Twohig, who made the remark, was not in a serious mood when he said that.

"What do you think about it, Mr Sullivan?"

Whoof! "Mister" Sullivan. The gang all calls me Sully, and I nearly lost a button when the mayor called me mister.

"I think it's a wonderful place," I said.

GREAT MINDS, ETC.

"We think so, too," said the mayor, so you can see great minds run in the same channel.

"They told me before I came to interview you that you were manager of the baseball team when you were at Harvard. Is that so?"

"No," replied the mayor. "I did go out for the team, but the nearest I got was catching the slants of pitchers throwing up the ball in batting practice."

"Do you take in the big football games, Mr. Mayor?" was the next question.

"Most of them," he said. "In fact, I don't think I missed a major game last year in spite of a busy political campaign."

I reminded the mayor that "Bibber" McCoy, wrestler, was a resident of the University City. "What do you think of him?" I asked.

"Bibber is one of the best wrestlers in the game. His recent tussle with Gus Sonnenberg indicates that he is a contender for the world's championship," he said.

"Has Cambridge any provision for the entertainment of children during the summer months?" was another question I managed to ask.

"Yes," he replied. "Vacation schools and day camps are available to all the children of the city in the summer months.

"In addition to the usual run of games which they play under the supervision of trained teachers, they take part in a program of setting-up exercises, corrective gymnastics, tooth brush drill and other drills for the preservation of their health. Shower baths are available and pure milk and crackers are served the children each afternoon."

"What is your opinion of Mayor Curley's proposal for an overpass and bridge acros sthe Charles river, Mr. ——, I mean Mr. Mayor?" I asked.

"It is my opinion that additional bridges are needed across the Charles river. I think that Mayor Curley's proposal would relieve traffic both on the Boston and on the Cambridge side. I'm not sure whether there is more need of a bridge between Harvard and Longfellow bridges than the one proposed by Mayor Curley. This question should be given considerable study," said the mayor without hesitating.

ON THE WATER SYSTEM

"I was tipped that Cambridge has a pretty good water system. Is that so?"

"I am happy to say that it is so," he answered. "The city has wisely spared no expense in providing clean, wholesome water for its inhabitants. Germs, gases and other forms of poisons are removed from the supply by a most modern and elaborate system of chemical treatment. We in Cambridge are proud of the system. It guarantees the health of our citizens."

I asked what he intended to do to improve the playing conditions of the playgrounds of the city and especially that of Cambridge Field. His response to this one was that everything in his power would be done to alleviate the poor playing condition of Cambridge Field.

Some of his plans are to resurface the grounds and endeavor to transplant soft loam and grass.

This is the last in a series of articles between the newly elected mayors and embryo members of the Boston Evening American reportorial staff.

Frank Sullivan, office boy for the Boston Evening American, gave Mayor Richard Russell of Cambridge a good quizzing when he went over the river to the University City.

CHARITIES ASK A 'COMMUNITY CHEST' IN HUB

Social Agencies Support This Method of Organized Work Among Poor

This fact was stressed by speakers at the annual meeting of the Boston Council of Social Agencies at Hotel Westminster.

This plan has been in the minds of many social leaders here who want to put the Hub on a par with many other large communities which handle their charities in this organized manner, speakers said. The time has not been considered opportune until the present.

Coming as a surprise to members, the resignation was announced of Stockton Raymond, for 10 years executive secretary of the Family Welfare Society.

Mr. Raymond had conducted the affairs of the society in many branches in Boston, and his resignation was accepted with regret.

The meeting of the social agencies was considered by many a tribute to Mr. Roy Cushman, newly chosen secretary. More than 300 delegates from over 100 social and charitable agencies assembled to elect officers, listen to reports and to an address by Charles M. Rogerson, Boston lawyer and manager of the permanent charity fund.

Mr. Raymond will go to Columbus, O., to take charge of a "community chest."

Robert B. Stone was re-elected as president. The treasurer, four vice-presidents, clerk and an executive committee of 14 were chosen for another term.

Marsino Stays in Jail Despite Court Order

Despite the federal court order to release Joseph B. Marsino from State Prison, the Warren bank wrecker was behind the bars today and there seemed no immediate prospect of his getting outside them.

Judge Elisha H. Brewster's order, unique in court annals, was still a subject of debate between him and Asst. Atty.-Gen. Stephen C. Bacigalupo, with Marsino's attorney, Peter Maggio, sitting in on the conference.

The state's representative declares he will test the legality of the order in the higher courts.

In the meantime, he said, he had no objection to Marsino's release from prison on bail. Why any bail should be demanded, in view of Judge Brewster's order declaring Marsino's imprisonment by the state null and void, and who should set the amonunt of bail if bail is finally required, was one subject of dispute.

The state's contention is that in view of a separate two-year jail sentence still hanging over Marsino's head, bail should be required until the higher court decides whether he must serve the term.

Judge Brewster feels that both the State prison and the jail sentences were illegal because Marsino already has served sentence in the federal prison for the misappropriation of $200,000 from the Warren National Bank.

The legal technicalities at issue may be ironed out, but in the mean time Warden Hogsett has not at hand the court order for Marsino's release and therefore will not release him.

Harvard Professor to Talk About Snobs

What a Harvard professor thinks of "snobs" such as outlined by Prof. Rogers of M. I. T., will be told at the next meeting of the Longfellow Home and School Association in the Washington Irving Hall, on Jan. 24. The speaker will be Prof. Ernest S. Griffith, expert on municipal government, and author.

Prohibition, politicians and the "effect of Abie's Irish Rose on city development" will also be discussed by this former Rhodes scholar.

Benefit Dance

A benefit dance and cabaret show, the entire proceeds of which will be given to the family of Patrolman James J. Troy, slain by a bandit's bullet, will be staged at the New Ambassador Ballroom, Berkeley st. and Warren ave., on Thursday evening, January 30.

'PARROT FEVER' CASES FOUND TO BE FLU

Dr. Bigelow Says Couple Under Observation Not Disease Victims

Coincident with the statement of State Health Commissioner George H. Bigelow that his department had found no cases of so-called parrot fever in Massachusetts, two Newton patients under observation today were found to have pneumonia or influenza.

Mr. and Mrs. Allison Day have mild cases of pneumonia, but at first were supposed to be ill with parrot fever, because of the recent death of their bird pet.

Dr. Bigelow believes that an erroneous public impression has arisen in regard to this "parrot fever," which, he feels, in every instance can be diagnosed as ordinary influenza or pneumonia.

Day bought a parrot last month as a Christmas gift to his wife and two children. The bird died suddenly about a week ago, with the illness of the man and his wife developing shortly afterward.

The two children are entirely unaffected, a fact which made the state authorities hesitate in naming the illness as the famed parrot fever.

TRUCK ON FIRE, DRIVER SPEEDS ON, REFUSING TO HEED WARNINGS

HORN TOOTS OF AUTOIST IGNORED

Struck Man and Woman in Safety Zone Passing Other Car

Many motorists became jealous today when they heard about the truck driver who wouldn't be passed in Centre st., Jamaica Plain, and about the experience of Thomas Robinette in trying to pass it

Robinette, who is custodian of the Margaret Fuller School in Glen rd., Jamaica Plain, wanted to pass the truck because its cargo of paper was afire and he thought the driver might be interested

The custodian, driving a small car, blew his horn, but the truck driver put on speed. Burning paper and smoke whipped back at Robinette riding under the lee of the five-ton truck. He blew his horn again but the truck continued to roll its fiery way, with Robinette hunched over his wheel and driving desparately.

In this fashion the strange procession whistled past the house of Engine 28, smoke and flame trailing out behind.

Engineer Thomas Cuddihy rubbed his eyes, then sprang into action. Shouting for the crew, he cranked the big fire truck and the firemen climbed aboard, wheeled out into Centre st. and joined the procession.

The truck driver drove. Robinette blowing his horn like a madman, scorched behind. The engine's siren sounded in the wake.

And finally, in a desperate burst of speed and ducking like a rabbit, Robinette wheeled around the truck at Centre st. and Spring Park ave., brought his tortured car to a halt and leaped for a fire alarm box as the truck stopped.

He ran the alarm and turned back—and, lo, he had firemen almost in his lap. The firemen extinguished the blaze.

Old Boston in Pictures—No. 159

On the "18th of April, in '75," William Dawes rode over narrow Boston Neck to carry word to the "embattled farmers" that the British were coming. A half century later the filling in of the adjacent marshes was well under way and in a few years "Boston Proper" was the widest where once it had been the narrowest. During the early decades of the 19th century, "Neck" was a favorite sleighing stretch for Bostonians, as was the Mill Dam in later years. More pictures of Old Boston will be printed in the Boston Evening American.

24 TAKE TESTS FOR CAPTAIN

Twenty-four Boston police lieutenants today participated in an examination at the State House before the civil service commission for promotion to the grade of captain.

Over the objection of Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson, the test is a competitive one, and vacancies must be filled from the head of the list. The practice has been for the commissioner to make appointments from any position on the list.

Those taking the examination were: Lieutenants Jeremiah E. Sheehan, Frank H. Thompson, James J. Hoy, John McGrath, William P. Gaffney, Harry N Dickinson, John T. O'Dea, Harry T. Grace, George A. Mohoney, Murray Munro, Edward J. Welch, Harry P. Burns, John J. Coughlan, Daniel J. Hines, William J. Hyland John F. Lyons, Charles B. McCloskey, Joseph McKinnon, Philip E. O'Neil, Jeremiah J. Riordan, William Lewis, Alpheus W. Parker, Mathew Killen and Dana W Fisher.

FULLER URGES PENSION LAW

In a public statement, ex-Governor Fuller pleaded for legislation to protect the families of police officers killed or maimed in line of duty and called attention to a similar recommendation which he made in his message to the 1928 Legislature.

Declaring that he wants to put his name down for a subscription to assist the practically destitute family of Patrolman James J. Troy, the former governor said he believes it is unfortunate that the dependents of a policeman killed in performance of his duty should be forced to rely on a subscription paper

"It occurs to me," said ex-Governor Fuller, "that my recommendation to the 1928 Legislature might be worth reprinting at this time. I asked the members of the body to take action in this matter."

East Boston Dance

The sixth annual dance and cabaret of East Boston City Club will be held in Music Hall, East Boston, Jan. 22. Music will be by Charles Dagle's orchestra. A feature will be the appearance of the Beacon Trio, a WLOE radio group.

Cudahy Sees Busy Year for Packers

The New England convention marks the 40th anniversary of the company. The program will be largely devoted to outlining plans and policies for the coming year Other speakers include G. C Shepard, vice president; W. Diesing of Omaha, and A. A. Scanlon of Chicago.

BILL FILED FOR ANNUITY PLAN ACCEPTANCE

Would Have Cities and Towns Vote Payments to Police, Firemen Kin

A bill to require cities and towns to vote at the next State election on the question of accepting a permissive act now on the statute books which provides for the payment of compensation to widows and children, or dependent parents, of policemen and firemen killed in the performance of their duties was filed with the Legislature today by Senator Frank W Osborne of Lynn

The act states that any municipality, upon acceptance, shall pay to the widow an annuity not exceeding $1000 a year, increased by a sum not exceeding $200 for each child under 18 years, payments to continue as long as the widow remains unmarried. In the event of their being no widow, the annuity would go to a dependent father or mother

Local acceptance of the $1000 annuity act would automatically repeal the validity of a mandatory law which provides for a flat payment of $2500.

"The subject of just and adequate compensation for the dependents of policemen and firemen killed in the discharge of their duties comes repeatedly to public attention but only upon the regrettable but inevitable recurrence of such cases as the murder of Patrolman Troy," Osborne declared.

"No one realizes as do policemen and firemen that a similar situation may at any moment confront their loved ones. Some shortsighted opposition to local acceptance of the $1000 annuity act is known to exist on the part of a few individuals who object to this local termination of the $2500 payment, preferring the larger cash payment to the annuity which is of far greater value."

Imports Increase 110,000 Tons Here

Imports through the port of Boston in 11 months of 1929 increased 110,196 tons over the same period in 1928, according to a report of the Maritime Association of the Chamber of Commerce

Raw sugar jumped from 231,922 tons to 311,469 tons, wood pulp from 170,389 tons to 214,839 tons, and other commodities correspondingly

Catches Hit-and-Run Driver, Is Rewarded

A check for $25 as a reward of the governor and council for his work in capturing a "hit-and-run driver" today was received by William H. Wimberly of W. Springfield st., Boston.

Last July the young man witnessed an automobile accident in which Thomas F. Crawford of Northfield st., Boston, was killed The driver started to run away after his machine overturned, but Wimberly chased the man for a block and captured him after a struggle. The man was sentenced recently to 10 months in jail

Nolan, toastmaster, into the organization, and the 50th anniversary of Nolan's election as the president of the association.

"I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was 14 years old. My mother read your advertisement in the paper and tried the medicine to see if it would build me up. I had been frail and nervous and after taking three bottles I was in normal condition. Since then I occasionally have a rundown feeling which makes me weak, nervous and irritable and I find by taking two or three bottles of the Vegetable Compound I am back to normal. I recommend it to any woman and will answer all letters."—Mrs. Jerry C. Jarvis.

"I was all run-down and out of spirits before my third baby was born so I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as I had heard so much about it. It helped me with all my troubles and gave me an appetite where before I didn't eat at all and had to stop work and rest every once in a while. I did all of my housework up to the day my baby came, as I am a farmer's wife and could not afford help before. I feel just dandy now and I will tell every one how good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is."—Mrs. Ira Arnold.

"I was working very hard in the factory and also had to do my housework when I got home. I began to get tired, had no appetite, no strength and finally wasn't able to do anything around the factory or at home. My husband had to do all the work for me. One day I said that I would do anything to get my strength back and a friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took four bottles and I feel very much better, have a good appetite and more strength. I would be very glad to answer any letters asking about it."—Mrs. Anna Soltis.

JOHN BARRYMORE SETS HEARTS AFLUTTER IN FILM AT METROPOLITAN

LOVE ANGLE WHERE HE SHINES

The Cast

General Crack	John Barrymore
Leopold II	Lowell Sherman
Arch Duchess	Marian Nixon
Fidelia	Armida
Count Hosedorf	Hobart Bosworth
Countess Carola	Jacqueline Logan
Colonel Gabor	Otto Matieson

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

"GENERAL CRACK," at the Metropolitan, is extravagantly romantic, but it gives John Barrymore the chance for a strong comeback aftera more or less floundering about in the movies. His worshipers will find their idol at his best in looks, and, barring several flaws, in ability, in this, his first talkie. Out of snatches of historic fact, there has been built up for the star a role which surrounds him with the paraphernalia for putting across the 100 per cent Barrymore appeal. Loving is one of his fortes, and here there is abundance of the warmest embracing and kissing. So the Barrymore sun shines with much brilliance.

* * *

John Barrymore

THE name Crack, as you will get from the dialogue, was seized out of the old soldier of adventure's stringed necklace of cognomens—Christian Rudolph Augustus Christopher Kettlar. He is supposed to be an uncouth, swashbuckling hero, a maker of kings, and a maker and breaker of women's hearts. The son of the Duke of Courland and a gypsy girl, he demands in marriage Maria Luisa, archduchess and sister of the Emperor Leopold II of Austria. He thinks her fat and unattractive; and on his way to Vienna, is bewitched by a gipsy dancer whom he weds. Presenting her at court he finds the archduchess to be exquisitely beautiful. While the General is making war later, the Emperor wins the favor of the gipsy. For this the General dooms the emperor to be hanged; and this death is averted only when the archduchess, about to have the love of the general forced upon her discovers that she has long held him dear in her heart.

* * *

MANY things happen in this fast moving picture. One of its best points is that it combines good acting and lavish attention to costumes and sets, with camera play, action may come into its own. Banqueting, battling, splendid court scenes, a gorgeous coronation sequence in Technicolor, combine to show something of the sweep of "General Crack." Warner Bros. gave free hand in the attainment of pleasing pictorial entertainment, and here it is, in generous measure. It will find great favor with the public, especially the admirers of Mr. Barrymore.

* * *

THE star is best in the first reel, as the father of the General. His greatest excellence as the General are his diction, the timing of his speeches, the general cleverness of his acting. His weaknesses are his several violent outbursts which brought laughter from the audience; and his too great eagerness to display his profile. His language is commendably clear and correct save in his pronunciation of the name of his home duchy. He spoke of it as if it had some connection with a cur-dog. But one easily forgives that, and also the fact that he never suggests a gypsy woman's son in his work; he is pretty nearly always a heroic figure.

* * *

NATURALLY, Mr Barrymore dominates the screen, but he has able support. Hobart Bosworth is good as the minister of war; Lowell Sherman, satisfactory as the emperor. To our way of thinking, the surprise of the piece comes in the work of Marion Nixon; she is beauteous to behold. Not only that, but she gives her role an atmosphere that awards her importance, as when she kisses the gypsy bride of the General, and again toward the end when she makes confession of her own love. This young lady is making progress in filmdom. She helps make that love's confession scene so tense that all that follows becomes somewhat lackluster. Armida is vivacious Mexican jazz lass, who makes good as the gypsy bride.

* * *

ON stage, there is a superb revue, "Tip-Topper," staged by Lewis J. McDermott, and the equal of the best in the "legit." Al Mitchell and his playboy band assist ably. The grand orchestra plays in usual splendid manner. The film shorts are notably superfine.

PARIS FROLIC AT MIDNIGHT

THE fun begins tonight at a midnight show at the New B. F. Keith Theater when Victor McLaglen, star of "The Cock-Eyed World," together with El Brendel, the rollicking Swede comic of "Sunny Side Up," and Fifi Dorsay, that irresistible mademoiselle, join forces and present their newest comedy sensation, "Hot for Paris," the latest Fox film. From New York, Chicago and Los Angeles, where "Hot for Paris" is now playing, come the reports that both box office and attendance records attained only by "The Cock-Eyed World" have been shattered in each city.

"All seats at the midnight performance are reserved and the performance starts promptly at 11:30. Other features, all in sound and color, are on the program.

Two New Players Signed for Tiffany Production

Two additions have been made to "His Woman" cast with the signing of William Janney and Gino Corrado. Monte Blue, Lila Lee, William Boyd and Betty Compson are already working in the film under the direction of William Beaudine.

Indian Pictures

Chief Robert Redwing is producing a series of features based upon Indian legends. The pictures are being made in sound and color with all-Indian casts. Princess Rose-Marie, an Osage Indian girl, is featured.

MARION DAVIES STARTS "THE GAY NINETIES"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Jan 17—What could be more appropriate than for Larry Grey, who made his first conspicuous success in the talkies in "Marianne," to again play opposite Marion Davies. This time his role is that of a high society gentleman in "The Gay Nineties," a tentative title which Irving Thalberg tells me will be changed. Listening to Gene Markey's scenario the part sounds as if it had plenty of possibilities.

Louella O. Parsons

"The Gay Nineties," the first Marion Davies picture for the new year, is already in production. I visited the set and watched a rehearsal in which Marion, Ilka Chase and Vivienne Oakland took part. The big floppy hats, the rakish pompadours and waspish waists are all a part of the period and let me tell you, the girls looked like Charles Dana Gibson's famous beauties.

Harry Beaumont, the director, has evidently been studying the styles of that era for he talked most interestingly about the days when the chorus girls married all of New York's best known millionaires.

* * *

SHADES of another day. How "Mlle. Modiste" recalls Fritzi Scheff to our minds. You can scarcely mention the musical comedy for which the late Victor Herbert wrote the music without remembering Fritzi with the naughty, naughty eyes. First National owns the rights to "Mlle. Modiste" and will convert it into a pretentious screen musical comedy with William Seiter directing. It is to be made entirely in color. After my advance glimpse of the "Rogue Song" I am almost convinced that color will soon be as tangible part of the talkies as sound has become.

* * *

PAULINE FREDERICK, who set out so gaily for a tour with her play, "The Queen Was in the Parlor," must be returning to Hollywood. I base that conclusion on the word that she will play the role in "Courage," which Janet Beecher created on the stage. I shall be curious to see what small boy gets boy's part. Davey Lee is too young and Phillip de Lacey is more ethereal in appearance than the lad who had the part on the stage. Archie Mayo, who has been over at Columbia Studio, borrowed by Harry Cohn, returns to the home fireside to direct Miss Frederick. Whatever small boy is selected he will share honors with Miss Frederick, for the role is nearly as important as hers.

* * *

JOSEPHINE DUNN, admittedly one of Hollywood's prettiest blondes and an actress of more than ordinary ability, is again finding herself in the movies. Josephine expected to go to San Francisco to play in the Kolb and Dill show. In fact, her bags were packed, her reservations made and her plans completed when Paramount gave her a call and asked her to play one of the feminine leads in "Safety in Numbers," Buddy Rogers' next opera. This is the picture in which so many of Hollywood's beauties are being given a part. There is Carol Lombard and Kathryn Crawford. We had announced Sharon Lynn, but, as we have oft remarked, there is nothing certain in this life, and it seems that Sharon at the last minute accepted another offer to play elsewhere.

* * *

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Natalie Talmadge Keaton, being asked how she rescued her two sons in the fire at the Keaton house. The two Keaton boys have been heroes at their school ever since the fire. Marie Mosquini and Tom Moore dancing at the Roosevelt Hotel. Al K. Hall paying marked attention to Doris Arbuckle. Mrs. Eddie Robinson saying good-bye to Hollywood on her way to New York. Ina Claire's long bob being greatly admired at the Roosevelt Hotel, where she was dining with friends. Lila Lee, Evelyn Brent, Mrs. Ned Marin, Chester Hope, well-known syndicate expert on the Hearst papers, and others, lunching at the Embassy. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

HEARST NEWS BIG FEATURE ON SCREEN

THE voice of John D. Rockefeller is heard for the first time on the motion picture screen in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News that is being shown this week at Loew's Orpheum.

Until recently, Mr. Rockefeller has steadfastly refused to make a statement for the talking screen and it is very likely that this would have continued to be his attitude were it not for the fact that the Standard Oil Co. were celebrating their 60th anniversary at Cleveland and because of inclement weather and his advancing age it was thought dangerous for him to attend.

It was then that he was persuaded by the officials of the Hearst Metrotone News organization to convey his message to the Cleveland delegation through the medium of the talking screen. The issue will continue to be shown four times daily, up to and including Sunday.

"PARTY GIRL" IS NEW IDEA IN FILMS

Hollywood's latest major production, "Party Girl," will be given its New England premiere tomorrow at the Modern and Beacon Theaters. This is a Tiffany motion picture, which means that "Party Girl" is richly entertaining, having been filmed in lavish manner.

In every way "Party Girl" is stellar—it has a big cast, gorgeous sets, tuneful music, and it has a story that is something new, which is a distinct asset.

Among the high lights of the cast are Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., who is declared to be at his best in this picture; Jeanette Loff, Marie Prevost, John St. Polis, Florence Dudley and Lucien Prival.

High Paid Players Alarm Canadian Hockey Moguls

FEAR FELT FOR FUTURE OF GAME

By BILL GRIMES

FOR the past four years players' salaries in the National Hockey League have been increasing with such rapidity that the powers-that-be across the border have become greatly alarmed.

They are almost unanimous in the belief that the American pro[illegible] are responsible for the [illegible] they believe are a menace to the future of hockey in Canada.

[illegible] has been, apparently is, customary to place blame for [illegible] which does not [illegible] with the approval of Canadians upon the Americans. The Yanks were even held responsible for the change in the rules. Therefore, it did not take the American promoters by surprise when they were informed that the salary increases had their origin in the "States."

Bill Grimes

If the future of professional hockey in Canada is in danger, the [illegible] for such a condition [illegible] to the Montreal Maroons [illegible] than any other club in the [illegible] Hockey League.

When the Maroons were admitted to the N. H. L. in 1924, Les Canadiens were the holders of the [illegible] Cup by virtue of their victory over the Western and Pacific coast champions in the Mt. Royal Arena.

President James Strachan and his directors realized that if the Maroons were to compete for favor with the Flying Frenchmen, they must have the best available talent, regardless of the cost.

MAROONS START BIDDING

Although the Maroons had signed up a good line, in Frock Lowery, Leo Berlinquette and Punch Broadbent, with Denny Dinsmore, Reg Noble, Sammy Rothschild and Scott as spares, they needed another defense man to work with Cain.

As will be recalled, 1924 was an Olympic year and Dunc Munro was an important factor in the Granite's winning the amateur championship of the world at Chamonix.

The Maroons went after Munro, as did every team in the league, offering unheard of salaries to the great Olympic star. Munro was content to sit back and allow the clubs to bid for his service, but finally, when the Maroons offered him a very remunerative position in one of the Montreal banks, along with one of the biggest contracts ever drawn up by a National Hockey League club, he cast his die with the Strachan outfit.

The Munro case was the start of the competitive bidding for players. The following season, the Maroons purchased Nels Stewart from Cleveland and you can put it right down in your book that Nels cost the Maroons a pretty penny, for he was a stand-out and drawing down big money for his amateur playing.

Next in line came the Trottier case. Trottier was supposed to have been headed for Toronto, for he had played under Connie Smythe with Varsity. However, the Maroons discovered that Trottier was working in Cornwall, Ont., sent a representative to investigate his feelings towards the Maroons and the next heard from Trottier was that if he could not play for the Montreal Maroons he would stay out of professional hockey. As everyone knows, Trottier went to the Maroons.

MAROONS GET STARS

Recently, the Maroons were tangled up in another deal, the Ratt Phillips case, which did not ring any too true. In fact, there has been so many incidents where players on the reserve lists of other clubs have finally landed in Maroon uniforms that the other club owners are beginning to be suspicious that players are being tampered with through a leak in the office of the chief executive with whom claims for players are filed.

Under the system of having a player whose ability has been brought to the attention of some other club scouted, then assigning a third party to act as agent, Maroons have annexed some valuable talent.

With the exception of Col. John S. Hammond of the New York Rangers none of the American promoters have "gone overboard" in their efforts to acquire playing strength.

Col. Hammond did talk in telephone numbers when he was sign-

GENE TUNNEY is now resting comfortably: who wouldn't with a couple of millions?—ol' John Barleycorn, whose demise was observed yesterday, is still the knockout king—John may be dead, but his spirits go marching on; and how.

Johnny Buckley gave away half a dozen fighters yesterday so that he would have that much less to worry about in Florida—Shires, the windy one, is preparing to set a new word record for holdouts — Al Simmons knocked in more runs than the Babe last year, but he will not ask for $85,000; it's how it's done that counts—Bob Quinn doesn't want his players to fight about contracts, either—Jake Zeramby is scrapping in New York tonight time he won one—The prices at the Miami track will be the shortest known, if that opening day meant anything

THEY call Phil Scott a fainting fool,
A quitter, and palooka,
But he just smiles and keeps quite cool,
And rakes in wads of lucre.

PAUL BERLENBACH, former ring champ, is going back to wrestling—a lot of the boys should go back to something—Von Porat to Norway, for instance—Jack Conway, who made a record at it, is back at picking the fight winners—Bill Mullins, the journalist, will find that politicians care even less for the truth than the golfers—Bill McPhail intends to go to Pinehurst to win his usual crop of spring medals—handball is getting to be a positive fad with the business man, who can squeeze an hour or so off—and it has hurt business at the golf schools—at least 5000 Bostonians play the hose races every day; and generally lose—Eddie Mack is going to run a benefit show for the family of Policeman Troy; Eddie would be the first to think of that.

MAGNATES have announced that baseball salaries would be cut this year, but all the good boys will get more dough, just the same. The youngsters and the rookies will be the sufferers.

EVERY hotel in Boston is selling out these days, with conventions and shows and things like that—we are having the worst season in history for the out of town school hockey teams—the boys should try the frigidaire system on the ponds—which reminds us that prohibition certainly has helped the sale of ice cube machines—Joe Malcewicz, the wrassler, takes an outdoor plunge, not a dive, every day, they make those boys tough—Gus Sonnenberg is barred in 36 N. B. A. states, but is welcome in all the big money spots; so he should worry — the great Rancocas Stable has only won a couple of races since trainer Sam Hildreth died—Horton Smith our pro golf expert, is well on the way toward a new high money mark; he'll pass $50,000 this year unless he breaks an arm

DOCTORS say that men over 40 should not play squash or tennis. Men over four should not play the races.

IF you're on the inside, you know that Bill Carey had to be sent to Miami to step out front for the February fight—that Max Schmeling will appear in the Milk Fund show in New York in June—that Max has collected oodles of marks in his own Germany, backwash from his ballyhoo here — that Judge Landis really gets a great kick out of Art Shires and his boxing career—that Cal Coolidge will not become a dog race fan down in St. Petersburg—that plenty of preliminary fights will be staged on the special trains to Miami—that George Godfrey rates next to Jack Sharkey among the heavyweights—that Tommy Loughran could lick all other pretenders to Sharkey's crown—that the Bruins running away with the hockey league, continue to pack them in—that this sort of stuff is easy to write and pleases the gang.

CO-TITLE HOLDERS IN K. C. MEET

Harry Richardson, left, and Francis Lindsay, University of Maine stars, co-holders of the I. C. 4-A cross-country title, who are entered in K. of C. track meet at the Garden a week from tomorrow night. Richardson will run in the Leo Larrivee two-mile race. Lindsay will run in the Curley mile.

ALL-STAR FIELD TO RUN IN LEO LARRIVEE 2-MILE RUN AT K. C. MEET

HARRY RICHARDSON of the University of Maine, co holder of the I. C. 4-A. cross-country title, is to run in the Leo Larrivee two-mile run at the William C. Prout memorial games to be held at the Boston Garden, one week from tomorrow night.

The Maine distance star will have eight or ten foes in the race for meet officials are holding down entries, so that the all star field will have a chance to go after the Garden two-mile record of 9 minutes 5 seconds.

Edvin Wide made that mark in the Garden. It is the fastest two miles ever run in New England, but with Stan Petkiewicz and other great distance men in the event there is a good chance that the runners will get down to nine minutes flat.

It is not likely that the world record for two miles, 8 minutes 58 and a fraction seconds, will be bettered. Paavo Nurmi set that time, and it will take inspired racing to shave the mark

FINE FIELD IN TWO-MILE

With a limited field of great distance runners, though, there is always a chance for a new figure, and Boston fans should pack the Garden to see one of the best indoor distance races of the season

The Garden track has had seasoning now. It is much faster than it was last year, when the oval was built. Right now the Garden saucer is as fast as any track of its length in the country. That means other records are in danger

Ray Conger, brilliant racer of the Illinois A. C., must step in that Curley mile. Frank Lindsay of Maine, who teamed with Richardson to set the I. C. 4-A cross-country record, is entered in the race.

Lindsay is fully as fine a distance man as Richardson, and has perhaps a shade more speed over the one-mile route than his pal. The pair won the big college distance race last fall, finishing hand in hand, pulled up, after running the field into the ground.

CONGER MAY SET RECORD

That was a wonderful performance, especially as there were a number of other good distance men in the contest for the college crown. Running on his own, either Lindsay or Richardson can come close to record time at anything from one to six miles

Which means that Conger, favorite in the mile classic, may set a new world figure in the K. of C. meeting. Conger has a driving finish that carries him past any kind of opposition. Lindsay and others in the race are sure to set a hot pace for the initial stages of the race, and carry Conger along for the first three-quarters at a clip which makes a new mark very possible

Another fine relay race has been added to the team contest list of the meet. Mass. Aggies, Colby and Tufts clash in this one-mile race. The three are old rivals and will stage a close contest

Good tickets are yet available, though the rush for pasteboards has been great. The tickets may be procured at the downtown sporting goods houses, the Boston Garden, and the K. of C. headquarters in the Walker building, 248 Boylston st

TROY ENTERS TITLE BOUTS

With indications that more than 100 boxers from different sections of the State will be on hand to compete at the Arena on Monday night, the crowning of the State champions this year looms up as the biggest amateur boxing event in the Hub, with the exception of the national championships.

On account of the flood of entries, it is expected that the committee will be forced to deviate from their plan and start the show early in order to finish all eight championship classes

Mike Troy of Worcester, welterweight champion of 1929, entered the tournament yesterday. Troy was one of the hits of last season's tournament, and as he is reported to be in fine condition he expects to successfully defend his crown

A new heavyweight is carded to make his first appearance in the tournament when Peter Ruskowski of Spencer makes his first bid for Hub recognition.

Five entries for the tournament were received from the Arena A. C., Fitchburg. They included Flavio Dibonis, 112; Romeo Parice, 118; Babe Diconzo, 126; Johnny Devens, 160, and Hildred Erickson, 175. Fitchburg is making a bid for team honors in the tournament.

Warren Berquist of Waltham and Bob Kennedy of Taunton were two light heavyweight stars who just got under the wire when the entries closed.

E. Boston and Southy Win in Dual Meets

East Boston high and South Boston high were victors in dual meets at the East Armory. East Boston scored 85 points, while its rival, Brighton, was getting 47 in the track contests Southy had 73 points to 59 for Hyde Park. In both meets, the field contests will be staged today.

In the senior division, East Boston won every place.

Eagle Relay Team in Opener Tomorrow

BOSTON COLLEGE'S one-mile varsity relay team leaves for New York tonight, where it will crash open its 1930 season racing against Holy Cross, Georgetown and New York University at the Brooklyn colleges games in the 13th Regiment Armory tomorrow night.

The B. C. baton passers are in perfect condition and expecting to open the season with a victory over their two Jesuit rivals and the New York University quartet although this opposition is the strongest that any college relay team could line up against in its debut

B. C. HAS FINE TEAM

Jack Ryder feels that it is one of the best one-mile relay teams he's had under him in 10 years of coaching at B. C., yet he isn't going to develop heart failure if the team doesn't come through. He figures that the enemy carries too many guns.

Holy Cross offers what looks like the best one-mile relay in the country on paper. Coach Bart Sullivan has his team of a year ago, Chenis, Klumback, Perry and Tierney, along with the finest quarter-miler in the East, Bernie McCafferty, running his first year as a varsity Crusader

New York University has Fred Veit, who topped Ray Conger in a surprise victory two weeks ago, and the colored sensation of the Canadian Olympic team, Phil Edwards

Georgetown always has speedy relays and this year's Hilltop aggregation is up to standards according to all reports from Washington

VETS ON EAGLE FOUR

The B. C. team has two sterling veterans in its makeup in Capt Mulcahy and Bob Sullivan. O Brien and Pasquantonio are both experienced but it will be their first showing as members of the varsity mile outfit.

O'Brien, if any, will be the weak link on the combination. He has devoted his time to the half-mile, and last winter his work, for the most part, was with the Eagle two-mile team. However, he has been trying hard at the shorter distance and Ryder expects him to hold his own.

Pasquantonio, too, is not sticking to his regular distance, but has been drafted as a quarter-miler. Guarino has always been noted as a sprinter. At English high and as a member of the B. C. frosh team a season ago, he gave promise of being another Frank Hussey in the sprints.

Pasquantonio may find the quarter-mile a bit too lengthy for him. His opponents will have a hard time matching him for 220 yards, but he may wilt on the second part of his leg.

STARS IN QUARTER

Sullivan and Mulcahy will give the best quarter-milers in the East a chase. Both are big, strong striders and have plenty of courage and ability. The Eagle captain, especially, has always shown remarkable fighting qualities.

Ryder takes his boys to Gotham with no great hopes of victory. But it will be a good test for the showing that Ryder is planning at the William C. Prout games in the Garden a week from tomorrow night, at which meet Boston College will battle New Hampshire over the mile route.

Joe McCabe, Dan Larkin and Tom O Brien, mile relay reserves, will be ready to step into berths if the quartet selected to make the Gotham journey does not come through according to Jack's way of thinking.

BRUINS LOSE TO HAWKS, 2-1

Chicago, Jan. 17—The Boston Bruins lost a hard fought game to the Chicago Blackhawks, 2 to 1. The Hawks have now registered two of the four wins made against the Bruins in 24 games and is the only team in the National League to score two wins and hold an edge in the season's series with the Bruins.

The teams play a return engagement at the Boston Garden on Tuesday night where the Bruins won their only previous victory over the Hawks

Duke Dutkowski husky defense man for Chicago, scored the winning goal for the Hawks in the third period after Dutch Gainor had equalized for Boston in the second stanza.

The crowd arose and cheered when the Hawks broke into the scoring. After Hitchman, Clapper and Gainor had bounced two shots off Gardiner, Abel March and Adams blazed through and during a great mixup in front of the Bruin net, Adams flipped the puck to March, who beat Tiny Thompson. March went to the coop just before the period ended

Canadiens Swamp Cougars, 6 to 1

Montreal, Jan 17—Les Canadiens completely outclassed the Detroit Cougars, swamping Goalie Beveridge under a flood of shots for a 6 to 1 triumph

The flying Frenchmen caught the Detroit players at their worst and penetrated their defense almost at will. Only a brilliant display by the youthful Beveridge in the early part of the game kept the score within reasonable proportions.

School Sixes Play at Garden for First Time Tonight

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

LEAGUE TO PUT ON 8 GAMES

School Games at Garden Tonight

Rindge Tech vs. Melrose high.
Stoneham high vs. Cambridge Latin.
Belmont high vs. Woburn high.
First game starts at 8 p. m.

GREATER BOSTON Interscholastic League hockey teams battle tonight in the Boston Garden. The four games staged this evening are the first school ice tilts put on in the sports palace.

The eight teams in the league usually play their games on natural ice but this season there have been few days when the slated contests could be held.

Manager Sheldon H. Fairbanks of the Garden, realizing the difficulties the boys were under in trying to play out their schedule, offered the use of the Garden rink to Dr. Oscar Martin of Newton, president of the league.

Melrose, always one of the best of the local school ice teams, faces a hard obstacle, for its opening league conflict, in Rindge Tech The Cambridge team is coached by Sonny Foley, and has a fast first team with good reserves. Tony Barausky is the star of the Rindge sextet.

Cambridge Latin fell before the Rindge six last Saturday at the Arena. The Cantabs were not in good condition, though, and had not played before the game. Tonight Leander MacDonald's sextet should be ready to give the Stoneham boys a hard game

Belmont lost last Saturday to Newton, but the experience gained in that contest gives it an edge in the game with Woburn which has been idle.

Doc Billings, durable defenseman of the Newton team, is out to boost his goals scored total tonight. He made all three of his team's tallies in defeating Belmont Saturday, and his defense work is on a par with that of any schoolboy of Greater Boston.

CADETS PLAY 'H' FIVE HERE

Winner in five of its six games played, the Harvard basketball team will go through a light drill tonight to end its preparation for the Army quintet tomorrow night in Hemenway gymnasium.

Sam Burns, substitute end in football, is likely to start tomorrow night's game for the Crimson, displacing Pierce at center, or Rex at guard

The West Pointers will reach Boston tonight, with 12 players in the party which will include the coach Leo Novak, and with Maj Harland Mumma in charge. Headquarters will be in the University Club, and the cadets will attend a dance at the club after the game

The cadets are favorites to beat Harvard as they decisively defeated Columbia, which previously had beaten the Crimson.

May Trade Frisch

The Cards may trade or sell Frankie Frisch and bring Specs Toporcer back to St. Louis from the Rochester team.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

Women golfers will crash for the new larger-lighter golf ball Some men players may take to it more or less reluctantly but the women will find it much better suited to their golf As a rule women players are no so obsessed with the desire for 300 yard drives, as men are, and since the new ball will be easier to see and easier to hit, they will like it About the same golf faults creep into the game with woman players as with men, the principle one being looking up from the ball, as it is commonly called, and which means letting the attention wander away from the ball and toward its flight, before the ball is stroked. Play with the new ball will tend to minimize this habit to some extent since the new ball will hold the attention better and since it will present also a better lie along the fairway. There is more of it to hit too, and, oddly, it appears that there is much more size to the ball than there actually is comparatively. You'd hardly expect to be able to note as little as seven hundredths of an inch, but on this new ball it appears to be many times that difference

WOMEN WILL LIKE THE NEW GOLF BALL

"I HEAR," said Mr. Boston as he dropped into the Sporting Department, "that Al Weill and Alex MacLean have signed Benny Bass, world's junior lightweight champion, to battle Sammy Fuller of the North End at the Boston Garden on February 7.

Fuller has agreed to weigh in at 131 pounds and as a result Bass' title will not be at stake

"Bass recently won the junior lightweight championship by knocking out Tod Morgan The New York Boxing Commission held an investigation following the match and then ruled that in future it would not recognize the junior lightweight division

Jack Conway

"Fuller will immediately start training for his clash with the champion.

"PHIL BUCCOLA, Riccardo Bertazzolo and Jack Gagnon have left for Cleveland. Bertazzolo is booked to battle Johnny Risko in that city on Monday night. Gagnon will appear in the semifinal.

"EDDIE MACK announces he has already made 50 reservations for his Miami Special. Mack is giving the gang a ten-day trip for $140, which is a large bargain in any man's money.

"JAKE ZERAMBY, sturdy Lynn lightweight, will make his New York ring bow at the Garden tonight. He will oppose Herman Perlick of Kalamazoo, Mich., in a ten-round bout on the Tony Canzoneri-Jack Berg card. Zeramby was accompanied to New York by Al Lacy. Jake is confident he carries too many guns for Perlick. A win for Zeramby will put him in line for a shot at Al Singer

"I CRASHED into Paul Bowser up on Washington st. He tipped me that the fans are displaying great interest in the finish mat bout between Joe Malcewicz and Joe Stecher, which will be staged at the Arena on Thursday night

"I find that the fans are once more very much steamed up over the mat game. The recent Sonnenberg-McCoy mill was one of the most brilliant mat features ever staged in this city It was filled with action from start to finish

"Stecher and Malcewicz should also come through with a torrid session. I understand Sonnenberg has agreed to risk his title against the winner of this event

"I LOOK for a large crowd at the State amateur boxing championships, which will be staged at the Arena on Monday night The best of the simon pures have sent in their entries Most of the boys who did their stuff so well in the Golden Glove tournament will be on the job Monday night

"The Golden Glove show was one of the finest amateur tournaments ever held in this city. Bill Kenney tells me that the State title bouts will prove as much action as did the Golden Glove battles.

"Amateur boxing has been drawing big crowds. The public knows the simon pures gives 100 per cent effort."

June 26 Date of Poughkeepsie Race

New York, Jan. 17 (INS)—College crews of America will compete in the annual Poughkeepsie regatta June 26

Selection of the date for this year's race and new rules governing the event were announced by the Intercollegiate Rowing Association.

The application of the United States Naval Academy for membership in the association was approved.

Invitations to all crews taking part in the race last year as well as to Stanford and Princeton, invited in 1929, but who did not compete, will be sent this year, it was announced

Selection of June 26, somewhat later than usual, for the 1930 regatta, was made because of consideration of river tides, it was said Last year because of the rough water several shells sank during the race

FRESHMAN 9 FOR B. C. HIGH

Art McManus, Boston College high head coach, has announced that this spring there is to be a freshman baseball team at B. C. high. The nine will get good coaching, and play a regular schedule with junior high teams and other organizations of that class.

This marks another step forward by the authorities of athletics at the St. James st institution B. C high always has fine baseball teams. It has provided Boston College and Holy Cross with numbers of the best players ever to play for the great teams of the Jesuit college rivals

With a freshman ball team in action, the regular B. C. high nine of the future will be assured of a steady supply of players, experienced in school competition.

BOB MARTIN TO GET PENSION

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 17—Fighting Bob Martin, heavyweight champion of the American Expeditionary Forces, in which Gene Tunney fought in France during the World War, has been judged permanently disabled by punishment absorbed in 60 fights in the service. As a result the United States veterans' bureau has awarded him compensation of $100 a month for the rest of his life.

Martin, who was considered a better fistic prospect than Tunney at the close of the war, claimed that a traumatic brain tumor from which he has suffered in recent years was caused by blows received while winning 54 service bouts by knockouts, four by decision, drawing once and losing only one match to Tunney.

He was granted a pension of $20 a month two years ago by Congress. This he has waived in view of the larger grant

Tunney on Road to Recovery

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion who is convalescing from a kidney operation, is "out of pain, very cheerful and with normal temperature," said a bulletin issued this morning at Presbyterian hospital by his physician, Dr. George W. Fish ing up Ching Johnson and Myles Lane, but in both cases he was practically bidding against himself, and therefore the Rangers were the losers and the transactions did not affect any other club

Concerning the signing of Ching Johnson to his first National Hockey League contract there is an interesting incident. Not knowing anything about the Rangers, Johnson insisted that his contract should be with the Madison Sq. Garden Corp

According to the constitution of the National Hockey League, every players' contract must be in the president's office ten days after the opening game of the season. When he was advised of this fact, Johnson stated that he was perfectly satisfied with his contract and refused to sign another.

Attempts to bring pressure to bear on Johnson to sign an N. H. L. document failed, but he was allowed to play three years for the Rangers without being suspended as he should have been according to the constitution of the league

If Pres. Calder has been guilty of failing to enforce the laws of the league as was the case with Johnson, why is it not fair to suspect that he has winked at other infractions?

STOCKTON CUP PLAY STARTS

The annual invitation bonspiel for the Stockton cup begins today and runs through to Sunday at The Country Club rinks, Clyde Park. While the field is not so large as it was last year, when 24 rinks were busy, there nevertheless are 13 visiting entrants, and these with the local teams will complete a total of 17 to insure an interesting series of matches

One sad note to the event is that Alex S. Porter, chairman of The Country Club curling committee, who has worked so hard to make these events a success as well as curling in general, may not be able to be on hand because of illness.

Drawings for the play will be made this morning with the first matches scheduled to start at 9 30. to be flowed by others at 12 30 and 3 30. The second and third rounds for the Stockton cup will be curled tomorrow, together with the first and second rounds of the Clyde Park cup

This year, at least, the losers in the first round of the Stockton cup play as well as the bye matches will compete for the Clyde Park cup, the trophy which was donated by Hugh Bancroft in 1928. Last year both trophies were captured by Canadians.

The Stockton cup was won by the Royal Montreal Curling Club skipped by Frank S. Stocking, one of Canada's foremost stane shovers. The Clyde Park cup went to the Toronto Curling Club skipped by Martime Lindsay, a former president of the Toronto Curling Club, who has done considerable for the promotion of the sport in his city.

Cards Will Have A Strong Infield

The St. Louis Cardinal tentative infield lineup for next year has Frank Frisch at third, Gelbert at short, Adams at second and Bottomley at first.

SHIRES TURNS DOWN $50,000

Chicago, Jan. 17 (AP)—If Charles Arthur ("The Great") Shires makes an agreement tomorrow with Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis to quit the professional prize ring for baseball, he will lose approximately $50,000, or one-fifth of the nest egg he is aiming at.

Ever since the fighting White Sox first baseman attracted 15,000 customers at Boston recently for his fight with Al Spohrer, he has been flooded with attractive offers for boxing matches. A Chicago promoter, presumably the Chicago Stadium, has offered him $35,000 for two matches, while promoters in St. Louis, Boston, New York and Philadelphia want his services, swelling the financial inducements to $50,000.

"I'll tell it to Judge Landis; he'll tell me what to do and I'll do it," said "The Great One" in discussing his impending conference with baseball's high commissioner. "I think a lot of Judge Landis. He's a friend of mine and the advice he gives me is good enough for me."

There was every indication today that Commissioner Landis would merely give Shires a fatherly talk, advise him to make a humble apology to the White Sox for fighting with former Manager "Lena" Blackburne and sign up at a reasonable figure for the 1930 campaign.

Harry Grabiner, secretary of the White Sox, has refused to comment on the case other than to say the club would be able to act when Shires was through with Landis.

Georgetown Will Not Drop Baseball

A report, recently spread in Boston to the effect that Georgetown University was to drop baseball this year, has been branded as false by the authorities of the Washington D. C., institution.

Bernard H. Hamlon, Jr., manager of baseball at Georgetown, writes to asure the Boston American that the Hilltoppers should have one of their best teams of recent years this spring

Ralph McCarthy, a Peabody boy, captains the G. U. nine and plays in center field. Paul Donovan of Brighton, former Dean Academy flash, is the first string catcher.

Georgetown plays in the Bay State in May, facing Holy Cross at Worcester on the 24th of that month. Boston College plays host to Georgetown on the 26th of May, and Harvard entertains the G. U. team on the 27th.

Trafton Scores Easy Win Over Hoffman

Chicago, Jan. 17 (INS)—George Trafton, who stands out just because he is the one and only fighter who has whipped Charles Arthur Shires, maintains a clean ring slate today after punching Rudy Hoffman around the ring here last night.

DAILEY IS NEW TENNIS HEAD

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Samuel H. Collom of Philadelphia president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, will not be re-elected at the annual meeting in St. Louis February 15, it was indicated today, when Louis B. Dailey of New York was named for the office by the nominating committee. Nomination is considered tantamount to election

Mr. Dailey, who is slated to succeed Mr. Collom, is the present vice-president of the association and has been active in tennis affairs for several years. He is engaged in the real estate business here. Mr. Collom has been president for two years.

Mr. Stewart, secretary, is the only one of the officers scheduled to retain his present position, Mr. Carruthers being moved up from treasurer to vice-president, and Mr. Hill, a newcomer to office, taking over the treasurer's duties

The recommendations of the nominating committee for the other offices as announced in the official call for the annual meeting are:

For vice-president, Louis J. Carruthers, New York; for secretary, James C. Stewart, Chicago; for treasurer, Donald M. Hill, Waban, Mass.

For delegates-at-large to the executive committee, to serve for two years, J. Mills Newton, New Orleans; J. W. Thurston, Hartford Ct.; Holcombe Ward, New York and Fitz Eugene Dixon, Philadelphia

Mr. Collom was named to the executive committee as a former president, as were George T. Adee. New York; Jones W. Mersereau, New York; Julian S. Myrick, New York, and Henry W. Slocum, New York.

A. N. Reggio of Boston and William R. Breck of Philadelphia were named for membership in the new nominating committee, with Charles S. Garland, Chicago, continuing as chairman

The advisory and finance committee recommended that the annual meeting of 1931, which will mark the 50th anniversary of the U. S. L. T. A., be held in New York city.

"Open tennis," or competition between amateurs and professionals, in favor of which the executive committee already has committed itself, was mentioned as a topic for discussion at next month's meeting The U. S. L. T. A. has already submitted to the International Lawn Tennis Federation, meeting in Paris in March, a proposed amendment permitting open tournaments, and the English Lawn Tennis Association has approved the proposal with the qualification that each country be limited to only one open event a year.

Maloney to Meet Paulino

After accepting the match with Paulino Uzcudun, the Spanish woodchopper, at Miami, Feb. 27, on the same card with Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott of England, Jimmy Maloney, South Boston heavyweight, predicted that he would take the measure of Armand Emanuel, whom he meets at the Boston Garden, Friday night, January 24.

Maloney signed contracts for the Miami bout and it is understood that the bout will be called off if he fails to defeat the Pacific coast Hebrew in their Garden meeting.

The Peninsula idol rushed back to his Wamesit training camp after arranging affairs for the invasion of the South and he renewed his training work with more zeal than ever. Maloney admits that considerable depends upon this bout with Emanuel and for this reason he plans to be in the best shape of his career.

Another fistic gem was clinched by the Garden yesterday to support this heavyweight bout, when a ten-round semifinal was signed up between Joe Zelinsky, hard-hitting middleweight, and Victoria Livan, middleweight champion of Italy, who has made a clean sweep in the ring since coming to this country.

Zelinsky has won the plaudits of the fistic crowd by his punching ability, and he has never failed to make good, while Livan has defeated everybody pitted against him. In his last three bouts, the Italian won from Bobby Brown, Bob Jasse and Jimmy Sullivan. Zelinsky's last appearance in the Hub resulted in a victory over Willie Oster

Emanuel who has been training for the Maloney bout in New York, is expected to come to Boston early next week and put on the finishing touches for the contest in a Hub gymnasium, where the fans will be given an opportunity to watch his daily workouts.

Braddock-Lomski in Clash Tonight

Chicago, Jan. 17 (AP)—Two of the hardest punchers in the ring, James J. Braddock of New Jersey and Leo Lomski, the "Aberdeen assassin," will match rights and lefts in the 10-round feature at the Coliseum tonight.

Tonight's fight will be Braddock's last in the light heavyweight class. Because of weight difficulties, he has decided to enter the heavy weight field

MIDDLEBURY FIVE PLAYS B. U. TONIGHT

BOSTON UNIVERSITY and Middlebury basketball quintets will clash at the St. Botolph Street Gym tonight in the feature game of a double-header with the Terrier Cubs and Samuel Johnson Academy of Stamford, Ct., completing the other half of the program.

Tonight's contest will mark the second of the season for the Terrier varsity five on its home court.

Although the visitors were soundly drubbed by M. I. T. a couple of nights ago, Coach Win Karlson of B. U. is taking nothing for granted but will send his charges out on the floor with instructions to jump into the lead as soon as possible, and not let down for an instant.

Middlebury might not have shown much against the Engineers, but this same quintet upset Williams, one of the best of New England fives, and may return to its best form against the Terriers.

If Archie Stearn starts tonight B. U. will present its strongest lineup, as Bob Berry, leading scorer on the team, will move back to forward where he is more effective. Berry played in Stearns' guard berth against New Hampshire, as the regular Terrier guard was injured in the Holy Cross game and was unable to make the trip to Durham.

He will probably take his place in the lineup once more tonight, however, and thus cause the B. U. five to present a better all-round game.

WANER MAY GO UNDER KNIFE

Pittsburgh, Jan. 17—Lloyd Waner, one of the premier outfielders for the Pittsburgh Pirates may have to submit to an operation for appendicitis. When Waner visited the club physician to learn the cause of pains in his right side the doctor said "Little Poison" had all the symptoms of appendicitis

If such is found to be the case an operation will be performed immediately.

Canzoneri Clashes With Berg Tonight

New York Jan 17 (INS)—In one of the most important lightweight battles of the year, Tony Canzoneri, New York Italian and former world's featherweight titleholder tonight will engage Jack (Kid) Berg, English star, in 10 rounds at Madison Sq Garden.

Both fighters are front-rank contenders for the title of Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion, and the winner may get a title match. Canzoneri is a 6 to 5 favorite over the Englishman.

Monte K. O's Allen; Wants Return Bout With Rawson

HUMAN RIFLE ~ WATER POLO A CLEAN GAME ~ $85,000 PER?

O'FLAHERTY WINS OVER GIBSON

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

JOE MONTE of Brockton by virtue of his knockout victory over Harry Allen also of Brockton, now wants a return bout with Tommy "Bigboy" Rawson of this city who knocked him out a few months ago.

After the bout, Monte said,—"I am now ready to take another whirl at "Big Boy" Rawson. The latter knocked me out with a lucky punch some time ago but I feel right now that I can return the compliment. Just get me another crack at Rawson and I will do the rest."

Monte brought the feature bout at the Arena A. C. to a sudden end before a large gathering by a knockout in the fourth round.

Allen was the aggressor in the opening frame, while the second round was fairly even. The third round found Allen driving in at Monte and counting in the earlier moments until Monte came back to stagger his opponent just before the bell.

Allen's weight was announced at 175, while Monte had a 10-pound advantage.

Sammy Mango of Dorchester won the opening bout of the evening when he knocked out Charley Longo of the North End in the third round of their scheduled four-rounder. Joey Conley, another Dorchester boy, won his four-rounder from Bobby Sarno of the North End.

Pat Perkins of South Boston was awarded a victory over Alex Russo of Watertown when the referee stopped the bout in the fourth. Leslie Baker of Watertown added to his long string of victories, defeating Joe O'Donnell of Roxbury in four rounds.

Jimmy McGonigle of Weymouth was awarded the verdict after his six-round tussle with Izzy Hyman of England.

Pat O'Flaherty of South Boston made his professional debut with his former amateur rival, Ug Gibson of Medford. The former pair of amateurs fought six rugged rounds and O'Flaherty was awarded the decision.

Laddie Lee of Somerville was awarded the honors in his six-round contest with Mickey Sears of East Boston. It was a hard fought contest with both boys showing a lot of class.

The final bout of the evening's entertainment found Bob Jasse of Revere battling with Tony Shucco of the North End. The bout was awarded to Shucco in the fifth round when Jasse hit the North End lad while he was stretched out across the ropes.

Up to the time of the foul Jasse was leading by a big margin. He had Shucco on the verge of a knockout when he made the unintentional blow.

Maroons Win in Overtime

New York, Jan. 17—Montreal Maroons kept clear their season's National Hockey League record against the New York Americans but it took nearly every second of an overtime struggle for them to gain a 3-2 triumph. It was their third straight victory over the New Yorkers.

The Americans nearly had an upset to their credit, but in the 71st minute of play Nels Stewart tallied the deciding goal. Only 29 seconds of the overtime period were left when Stewart finally got through the weary defenders to take Siebert's pass and score.

Up to that time the struggle between the first and last place teams had been about even. Each scored once in the first period and again in the third to end the regular playing time in a 2-2 deadlock.

Purje Ill; Will Be Out a Week

New York, Jan 17—The amateur athletic union, checking up on Eino Purje, who said that he was ill and would be unable to appear in the Pastime A. C. games, satisfied itself that the Finn's claim was genuine.

Dr. Morris Siegartel, examining Purje at the request of the A. A. U., reported that the runner was in bed at his rooming house in Brooklyn with a temperature of 101½ and a definite attack of tonsilitis. The doctor said Purje would not be able to run "for at least a week and a half."

Ernest Barnard, president of the league, yesterday issued a call to all arbiters, who worked last season, to report for their annual meeting in his office here, February 12 and 13. Rules, interpretations and mistakes of last year will be discussed.

College Sixes Play at Arena Tonight

A COLLEGE hockey double-header, featuring Boston University and Bowdoin, with M. I. T. and Northeastern on the supporting half of the bill, will be offered at the Boston Arena tonight.

B. U. and Bowdoin will face off at 8.15 in the opening clash and will play two periods before M. I. T. and Northeastern clash. These sixes will play one period and then make way for the final period of the first game before finishing their contest.

Although none of these teams have set the world on fire with their showings to date, they all play a good brand of hockey and are always trying. There will be few idle moments at the Arena tonight and what the competing sixes lack in finesse, they will more than make up for in earnestness and a couple of highly interesting frays should result.

Bowdoin, at present tied for first place in the Maine State league, is bringing its best team in years to Boston and expects to take a fall out of the Terriers in return for the numerous setbacks suffered at the hands of B. U. pucksters in past seasons.

The Terriers have only succeeded in winning a single encounter this winter and are in no mood for trifling and will go after the visitors, hammer and tongs, from the opening whistle in an effort to get back into the win column once more.

Although B. U. lost to Harvard 6 to 1 Wednesday night, the Terriers' showing was not as bad as the score might indicate and but for a few bad slipups on the B. U. goalie and some weird shooting by the forwards in the mouth of the Harvard net, the result might have been different, at least, many degrees closer.

M. I. T. and Northeastern should engage in a close contest with the Engineers having the edge because of their greater experience. The Huskies are making their first appearance on the runners this winter and give promise of developing into a formidable opponent for any team.

Coach Raymond has several former high school stars in the Northeastern lineup who can be depended upon to put up a good game. Some of the leading lights on the latest addition to the college hockey ranks are: Dick Somers, Mechanic Arts; George Martin, Medford; Bill Carter, Needham.

TERRIERS HOLD CLASS MEET

Class track supremacy will be settled at the annual interclass meet of Boston University to be held at the Bay State road board track this afternoon.

This meet is open to every student from any department of the college and although the regular members of the track squad usually capture the majority of the events, enough upsets have been caused by the unexpected showings of dark horses in past years that today's events hold an element of uncertainty in them and a few surprises may be in store for the more experienced members of the regular varsity and freshman teams.

The seniors have reigned supreme both on the boards and on the cinders for three seasons and are favored to make it four straight this afternoon with the freshmen providing the greatest opposition.

Nine events comprise the regular program, these are, 40-yard dash, 45-yard high hurdles, 300-yard run, 600-yard run, 1000-yard run, one-mile run, high jump, shot put, and interclass relay. In addition a fraternity relay race will be held between the various Greek societies in the college boasting any runners.

Babe Ruth

Here is the Babe himself, well known ball player, who says he's worth $85,000 a year to the Yankees. While the Yanks hesitate at this colossal figure, the Babe will be in there next season, $85,000 or not.

TIGERS SEEK 3RD PLACE IN RACE

BOSTON TIGERS and Philadelphia Arrows will be battling for possession of the third playoff position in the Canadian - American League when they meet tomorrow in the second game of their Boston series.

The teams at present are tied in the standing with 18 points apiece. The Arrows have overhauled the Tigers fast in recent games and loom at present as a serious contender for the league championship.

The Tigers finished the first half of the season in rather dubious form but the team has benefited greatly by the four-day layoff which Manager Eddie Powers granted after last Saturday's tie with the New Haven Eagles.

It is expected that the old fire and [illegible] which [illegible] carried the Tigers through to the championship last year will [illegible] from now on.

The [illegible] workout today at the Garden. Manager Eddie Powers, who remained in Canada to talk trade with a couple of teams until last night, resumed charge of the team.

He was undecided about his lineup for the Philadelphia game, but it is not unlikely that there will be a shift or two in the first-string team.

The Arrows will show a much stronger team than on the occasion of their last appearance here November 30 when the Tigers whaled them, 7 to 2.

Art Lessard, a fast winger from Kansas City, has given their first line more punch, and Bobby Taylor, former Tiger, has added to the defensive strength of their second line.

B. C.-H. C. to Meet in Basketball

Boston College and Holy Cross will meet on the basketball court the first week in February. It won't be an official Jesuit clash, but the best basket tossers from each college will clash which is the equivalent of a sanctioned varsity meeting.

The game will be staged as part of the B. C. junior week celebration and is booked for the Arena Gymnasium on St. Botolph st. This game has taken the place of the usual B. C.-H. C. game which was held annually before B. C. abolished the sport five years ago.

Rosenfeld Sent to Toledo Club

New York, Jan 17 (AP)—Max Rosenfield, outfielder, has been released on option to Toledo of the American Association by the Brooklyn Dodgers. It marks the second year that the Robins have sent Max to Toledo, where he batted .350 last year.

The Brooklyn club mailed out contracts to 37 players today. Those who will give the most trouble over signing perhaps will be Arthur (Dazzy) Vance and Floyd C. (Babe) Herman.

Vance, after winning a $25,000 contract last season, had a disappointing season and the Dodgers are expected to make a cut in his salary, which Dazzy may or may not decide to accept. Herman is basing his arguments for a substantial increase on the fact that he led National League hitters for some time during the 1929 season.

Dr. Black's Daily Health Hint

THE home can be kept clean without overworking by taking not more than a room a day for thorough cleaning and only dusting the rest. Never dust with a duster. Use a cloth and a dampened one when possible so the dust won't settle and offset the work.

JANUARY 17, 1706, Benjamin Franklin was born in Boston, Mass. Franklin was the first to propose a union of the Colonies, and after independence was declared he was made ambassador to France. He won favor by his democratic ways and unassuming manner.

NO 'CAN'T' IN WOMAN'S SEARCH FOR BEAUTY

Hands May Be as Lovely in Winter as in Summer

By MARIA JERITZA

THERE is no such word as "can't" in the lexicon of the modern woman in search of beauty

"I cant keep my hands nice, because dish-washing, scrubbing and dusting make them red, rough and chapped," is an excuse sometimes made for neglected hands and nails. Yet I know of a laundress who washes with her own hands all the delicate fabrics entrusted to her care, yet keeps her hands and wrists smooth and soft and the nails shapely. What one woman can do, others can also.

Maria Jeritza

The secret of beautiful hands in winter is the daily if not hourly use of a hand lotion, and the nightly use of warm olive oil especially about the cuticle and nails. Another important measure is wearing thick cotton or woolen gloves each time you run outdoors on one errand or another about the house, as the ordinary housewife does many times a day. Of course, if you will also wear rubber gloves two sizes too large for you, while you wash dishes and launder clothes, scrub or prepare vegetables, and slip on cotton gloves while you dust, you will have lovelier hands and nails.

We all know about these simple measures. The difficulty is to remember to carry them out. But well-groomed, exquisite hands are such an asset to a woman, and such an expressive feature of her charm and beauty that [illegible] beauty measures, merely calling for a little intelligent care—just a moment, several times each day—are surely worth a thousand times over the exertion and time they require.

It doesn't do a bit of good to use a lotion just now and then. Whenever you wash your hands, it should be rubbed into the palms and backs, knuckles, wrists and cuticle just as you rub in soap-suds when you scrub them well.

There is one exception to this rule. Nearly all lotions are perfumes and perfumed hands are not desirable while eating—perfume is nauseating rather than otherwise on such occasions. Wash your hands 15 minutes before you eat, or else if you are to join others in partaking of a meal immediately afterward, do not use a lotion when you wash them. Use of perfume always calls for tact and discretion.

If you like making your own hand lotion, you might try this formula:

Equal parts of rose-water and glycerine.

Squeeze the lemons into an ordinary drinking glass and cover it. Cut up the lemon rinds and soak them 24 hours in half a glass of water. Strain the water in which you soaked the lemons through cheesecloth and add it to the juice in the glass. Fill a similar glass to the same height with rose-water and glycerine mixed together in equal parts. Now pour all these ingredients into a bottle, cork it and shake it well always before you rub it on your skin.

Make free use of this lotion, which should be renewed at least once every month, because lemon juice does not keep indefinitely.

So you see there is one important feature of beauty you can possess at the cost of a few moments of systematic care every day. That feature is supple, strong hands that are lace-like in their loveliness.

Mrs. Alderson Invites Lovejoy

She held out a big diamond ring. "Just look at this," she said. "I'm on my way to change it. "Won't you come?" But Lovejoy felt she must decline and stay home with the baby.

Best to Think Twice Before You Speak

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

A FEW Sundays ago I had the privilege of hearing Dr. Bradley of Chicago talk on the subconscious, and when he finished and I pondered upon all the children and all the parents in the world, I had a sense of awe that at times amounted almost to a fear. I hadn't realized so clearly just how responsible parents are for what their children do when they grow up. Of course, we all sense this in a general way but it had been brought home to me with new force.

Constance Cameron

Whether or not you agree with Dr. Bradley's theory, you cannot help but glean some interesting ideas from his talk. To begin with his premise was that the subconscious is the eternal us.

His idea is evidently that the subconscious is a mammoth storehouse where every impression is tucked away, where nothing is ever lost. Every impression! Think about that a minute in relation to your child, who absorbs thousands of new impressions each day of his little life.

Every bit of music, every book every influence is retained, later creeping out into the conscious and molding our lives, he told us.

So it seems that during every second of the child's day we are building with little bricks called impressions, bricks which can be sound and strong, or crumbling and weak, ready to disintegrate and topple the whole structure to the ground later.

If you didn't like big words, if you think the newer psychologist are a "bunch or hooey" as on mother told me, forget that wor subconscious, and regard the chil as I have done in the precedin paragraph, as a sacred, beautifu little house you are hoping to build Regard each decision you mak when he asks concessions, as brick you are putting into th foundation of that house.

Regard every quick, impatie gesture, or angry reply to him a weak, inferior bricks which wi cause the house to sag or brea at some future time.

Look at each picture you plac before his eyes as another typ of brick, and give him those whic are good and pleasing and beaut ful

Hear each story you read to hi in the light of a most importan brick, which will either help t lay a strong, fearless foundatio or a shaky, dreamy or unpleasan one.

Impressions are bricks in th foundation of your tiny hous Choose them wisely, and rememb that once they go into the founda tion they are there to stay, an will have a direct bearing on th shape, the beauty and the quali of that little house when it ha developed into a big house. Eve though the foundation bricks impression are hidden by the c ment of years, or the bushes an plants which life and culture pla beside them, they are still ther ready to stand firm or crumble their merit.

Every impression is retaine Once a child hears a spoken wor sees a facial expression, receive an influence for either good or ba it is his eternal property. Doesn it behoove us to think twice befor we present impressions to chi dren?

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"I COULDN'T bear to face the holidays with my darling gone she writes "I couldn't bear to see other people happy . . . it makes me feel so bankrupt.

Elsie Robinson

So many cry ing that this year . . . every year. But we should be proud, we who have loved . . . proud even if we've lost. We should be happier than other folk, stronger and steadier and more generous . . . like that old proverb which says "noblesse oblige." For love has made us noble. Love is a kindly service and grief its accolade.

We should not act as if we had been robbed. We feel we have been robbd because our thought of love was all awry. We never owned that dear life that has gone. It was no more our own than are the flowers of spring; the far, white stars; the lonely, roving winds. Like these it was a part of everlasting Beauty and Immortal Life, it was not ours.

We were its partners . . . but it came . . . filled us for a while with song. And then it went, and left us to go on alone. But we should not go bitter envying other joy . . . as though regretting the great price we paid. No matter what it costs, love's worth the price

For love's the greatest wonder that can happen to a life. Never will we, who've been loved, be quite the same. Never again so selfish as before love shared our hearts Never again so stupid as before love lit our eyes. Never again so callous as before love taught us pain. Love found us common, but it left us great. It left us richer even though it broke our hearts. But hearts are never really useful till they break. Unbroken hearts hold such a little room. . . . they are too dark and cramped until their walls go down. Then, only has love space to spread its wings.

Do not cry "Life is over!" Life has just begun. Until now you have lived like a small child who finds content within its box of toys. Now you are grown. . . . ready for wider life. . . . ready to put aside the little toys of Self. Now you can love all lives where once you loved but one . . . . and understand all grief and loneliness and need. And, from your hard-won wisdom, find a way to heal.

And by that healing you will heal yourself. And only through that healing can your own wounds be healed. Tears do not heal. . . . nor brooding over grief. . . . kissing old letters. . . . clutching a tiny shoe. . . . sobbing and beating the air with frenzied hands. These things leave life hollow as it was before. Only love heals the hurt that love can give. Only more love can fill love's empty place.

So—Love! Choke back your tears and smile! Spread out warm, friendly arms to all the world! If love was worth the having, prove it now! Walk proudly in its living memory!

Vary Your Salad Dressing

HOW enticing is the thought of salad hearts with a rich dressing if you like it, or a plainer dressing if you prefer that! It's sometimes difficult to decide which is the most attractive about a salad, the delicate salad green itself, or the different "dressings" one may have with it.

Martha Lee

MOCK RUSSIAN DRESSING

Mix the following ingredients together: Two and one-half cups of mayonnaise, 5 hard-cooked eggs, chopped, contents of a 4-ounce can of pimentos chopped, 1-3 cup of chopped green pepper and 1-3 cup of catsup. Serve on lettuce.

ITALIAN DRESSING

Mix together 2½ cups of mayonnaise, 1 small can of evaporated milk, ½ cup of ripe olives chopped, 2-3 cup chopped stuffed olives and 2 tbsps. of chopped parsley. This dressing is good either on a meat or a vegetable salad.

MARTHA LEE.

Lovejoy -:- Serial by Beatrice Burton

There were always books from the library two blocks away, and there was always a stack of the new magazines to read.

Lovejoy often brought home a little bouquet of late winter chrysanthemums or a bundle of holly from the market, and Tom always had a big tin of cigarettes on the mantel-shelf.

Sometimes at midnight when they were ready for bed he would go out into the tiny cozy kitchen and make sandwiches and hot lemonade for a "snack."

"This certainly is the life!" he said with great appreciation one stormy night, from the depths of his single bed where he was reading. "You know, Lovejoy, I never felt really sure of you until we came here and had the baby—I was always half-sure that some day you'd get tired of me and walk out on me. I thought you'd soon regret you hadn't married someone with a little more money than I have. . . ."

"Tom Nicholson, please stop talking like a perfect fool," Lovejoy answered, swinging around from the dresser where she stood, brushing her shining red hair.

She always took her bath late at night, when the house was warm. She had just come in from the bathroom now and the curly ends of her hair were damp and pearled with water.

Her skin, fresh from a scrubbing, was rose-white and as smooth as silk. Her eyes shone.

Everything about her was dainty and fresh and alluring . . . everything but her hands. They were stained and bruised and hardened from days of housework of all kinds.

"You could have married Steve Oglebay. You could have married anybody . . . with your looks," Tom added, his steady eyes on her. "And here you are, shut up in a little furnished house, working like a kitchen-mechanic from dawn to dark—for me. Gosh! you must regret sometimes that you ever married me, Lovejoy."

His wife came across the room sat on the edge of his bed and laid one of her small work-hardened hands across his mouth

"Please don't say things like that to me," she said. "Sometimes I can't help wishing that we had a little more freedom—just so that we could go to the movies once in a while, or something like that—But I don't regret marrying you, Tom, any more than you're sorry you married me. You aren't, are you?"

He didn't answer. But he laid his hands on her shoulders and drew her towards him. She lifted her eyes and felt his breath on her face as he bent down to her lips.

That was the way all of their arguments ended in those first wonderful days—in love-making.

And so things went on smoothly and peacefully, until the first day of the new year.

* * *

"It's an invitation for a New Year's afternoon party at the Aldersons," Lovejoy said, her eyes running over the engraved card. "Tomorrow afternoon—Tom, we can go because Aunt Em and Uncle James will be here to look after the baby."

Aunt Em and Uncle James were bringing goose and cranberry sauce and other holiday delicacies to the house for dinner the next day, because the weather was rainy and cold and Lovejoy was afraid to take the baby out in it.

"But I don't know those people," Tom objected, looking at the back of the Aldersons' house, through the kitchen window. "And I haven't the right kind of clothes to wear to a shindig over there. You go and I'll stay home."

He hated the thought of leaving the house, once he was in it, and Lovejoy knew it. He loved to "putter" around the little place.

"Don't try to trump up a lot of excuses, Tom Nicholson," she said sharply, "because there is not a real reason why you shouldn't go to that party—and I want to go! Heavens to Betty, I haven't seen a thing but the four walls of this horrid little place for I don't know how long. It's been ages since I had any fun, or went anywhere. And I'm getting sick and tired of it, let me tell you."

She knew that she was hurting him. But she went right on with what she had begun to say . . . Suddenly it came to her that she was having a miserable kind of life . . . Miserable and dull—and lonely, too!

Wait for an Invitation

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have been invited by a man at a college in another state to stay for a week-end at his home, which is near his college, and to attend the prom. I do not know his parents; therefore I do not believe that it is proper that I should go there, a stranger, to stay at their home for two days, without a written expression of their desire to have me there. Or is his written invitation enough? We are nothing more than good friends.

2. Is a mere business acquaintance with no introduction behind it, a sufficient excuse for bowing to a gentleman at a chance encounter on the street.

Brookline. B. D.

1. Your social judgement in this case is sure and absolutely correct. You should not visit this home without an invitation direct from the hostess of that home. Then it would be perfectly correct for you to visit the family, even if you did not know the young man's parents.

2. Of course this "depends." But as a general thing, and under the usual circumstances, I should say "Yes." Non-acknowledgement of such an acquaintanceship would sem to me to be a bit snobbish. Certainly a formal bow, which needn't necessarily be an especially deep one, would be natural and human under the circumstances.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When in a cafe or restaurant with my escort on which side of him should I sit? SUE Needham.

There is no rule about this, but some maintain that the lady should sit on the right of the gentleman. Some gentlemen make a point of taking the seat on the left of the lady. Really it is just a question of convenience.

J. L. F., Wellesley—You should acknowledge it at once. You have already delayed the matter too long and it will take a cleverly worded note to gracefully explain the situation.

MINNA B., Lexington—It is perfectly proper for you to accept.

JOHN M., Winchester—I think that you had better consult her mother.

MINNIE, Cambridge — By all means write your real feelings to her.

ROBERT, Newton—You did the proper thing.

(Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

The Real Truth

ABOUT LOVE AS A MAGNET

By ELINOR GLYN

THERE may be some girls wh are not heartless and wh would like to hold their partner in the great game of marriage — hold them by love and because they wanted to stay.

Elinor Glyn

Hundreds, I was almost tempted to write thousands, of American men 'stay out" not really from inclination, but from desire for peace, fear hatred of rows monetary benefit, habit, convention and moral timidity.

In many of these cases the wom an is throwing dust in her ow eyes, and salving her vanity b making herself believe that he i subservient because he adores her

In some she does not care wha the reason is, so long as she domi nates. And in some she has ana lyzed nothing and just drifts alon nagging poor Jim daily, becaus she feels once the wedding rin is on he is tethered for good an so "What's the use!"

But surely it must be a terribl shock to know inwardly, or sud denly realize, that your belove is but a captive, for some reaso not connected with love of you and that you have not the leas attraction for him really!

I would suggest to you, girls, t face your situations after a yea or two, and decide if your hus bands really love you as they did.

And if not, then ruthlessly searc yourselves for the cause of th change, because love only dies whe the object of it ceases to be th magnet.

Three-Minute Journeys

By TEMPLE MANNING

BEFORE the war one of the most popular capitals in Europe was Vienna. There thousands of Europeans, and a goodly number of Americans, journeyed for periodic holidays. Naturally, the war has dimmed, somewhat, the effervescent gayety of this city, but still it retains many of its old characteristics.

Vienna always has been, and still remains a vibrant city, a city which must be reminiscent of the Strauss waltzes, the color of the Hapsburg regime with all its pomp and ceremony, lights, dancing, rich food and heady wines. These were the things of which Vienna of 20 years ago was made.

Vienna is said to have been the home of the coffee house (kaffeehaus, it is called there), and one needs but to walk the streets to believe it.

Another Viennese institution is the Prater—the People's Park. In 1603 the first amusement park was opened in the Prater and ever since that date the "Coney Island" of Vienna has been an institution.

In the Prater are to be found many of the cnoventional amusements such as we have in all our parks. There is a Ferris wheel, games of all sorts, concessionaries dispensing frankfurter sandwiches, candy, balloons and other accessories essential to an outing. And then there are other things dear to the heart of the Viennese. One of these is the marionette theater. THE marionette theater? There is a whole street full in the Prater.

Effect of Too Much Love for Children

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M. D., Ph. D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

IT is a well known fact that a parent keeps young by interesting himself of herself, as the case may be, in children. Later, when the children marry and there are grandchildren, a transfer is made to the younger ones, and so the inevitable old age, or rather the conviction and feeling of it, is put off as long as possible.

Dr. L. E. Bisch

Valuable as this is from the parental point of view there is also another side to consider, that of the child.

What effect can too much attention and love have upon a boy or girl?

Children who are fussed over too much undoubtedly become very selfish and egotistic. Realising that they are the center of attention they feel proud and often become dictatorial and overbearing as they grow older.

We must remember that the mental impressions of childhood are never effaced. They may be altered, yes. But always they remain as a nuclear force which asserts itself and motivates them throughout life.

Always will the child try to duplicate his child's world when he grows to man's or woman's estate.

If he realizes that the parents are making unusual sacrifices for him he may easily become convinced that he deserves it because somehow he is superior.

Particularly is this true of only children. They do not have to share their fathers or mothers with brothers and sisters. Whatever affection there is, is showered upon them alone.

Such character mechanisms are formed likewise with children who are the favorite ones of the family. They develop almost along identical lines with only children.

Unless the psychological facts regarding too much affection are clearly understood by both father and mother and each tries his best to guard against it, there is bound to be unhappiness for the child who is over-indulged.

Enviousness and petty jealousies are not uncommon to the petted and cajoled child and when grown up such traits persist.

These people are constantly on the alert as to what others are getting in comparison with themselves and whether the affection they have always been used to receive, and still crave, is being shunted, even in small measure, elsewhere.

This makes such men and women unhappy. They tend to develop a suspicious and brooding type of mind. They likewise stand disappointments very badly.

Children should be with children as much as possible and with their elders as little as possible. Otherwise they find it hard to like other children and constantly assume a superior and sophisticated attitude toward them.

Keep gay and young and happy with your children but beware lest your love be overdone thereby laying the foundation for discontented lives in the future.

Supposing—On Road to Joy

By LUCY LOWELL

I HAVE just listened to one of those simple little "good cheer" stories about real life and people I am going to pass it along to you, hoping you may—as did I—find a suggestion worth considering in it.

The story is about two sisters, young English girls, who came to America to make their way when fortune had given her wheel some adverse turn and they suddenly had found it necessary to look out for themselves.

Life was not easy. They found positions at small pay, since they were inexperienced; and this meant a cheap boarding house and plain fare and makeshift clothing —all very different from what they had been accustomed to.

However, when things got so bad that they felt they just couldn't stand any more, one of the girls suddenly awakened to the fact that they had reason to be glad for robust health.

"Supposing one of use were ill?" she asked her sister. And after a while she added, "I suppose there are other things that might be worse. Supposing we didn't have each other?"

"Or supposing," the other sister went on, "there wasn't that little patch of garden under the window?"

They made a start from this. Their plan, you see, was the simplest thing in the world; merely to find as many things as they could each day to be happy about.

It was amazing, said the one who told me the story, the number of things those girls discovered to make them happy. And each discovery seemed to put into the background and finally out of sight at least one of the numerous things which had made them miserable before.

I wish I might say that they reached such a state of joyousness that fortune relented and turned back the wheel for them. But this did not happen.

What did happen was that the appearance of everything so changed for them that ugliness was completely lost, and beauty took its place and they found happiness right where they were.

And what more could anyone wish than this?

BOSTON MAN AT HEAD OF U. S. TEA EXPERTS

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor

Tea experts in the United States are perhaps not so essential as in London yet Secretary of Agriculture Hyde finds them needed. He appoints seven as the U S Board of Tea Experts for 1930, leading off the list with Robert A. Lewis of Boston. Mr Lewis succeeds Harry L. Jones of Boston, who recently retired from active business

* * *

The duty of the U. S. Board of Tea Experts is to prepare and submit to the Secretary of Agriculture standard samples of tea by which all teas entering the United States under the Tea Inspection Act of March 2, 1897, are compared as to their purity, quality, and fitness for consumption. The first meeting will be held February 3 at 10 o'clock at the United States Appraiser's Stores, 201 Varick st, New York City, at which time the tea standards which go into effect May 1, 1930, will be selected.

* * *

In the United States you find only a couple of tea stocks listed. Buy a big newspaper in London and you will find almost a full column on the first page daily devoted to quotations of tea stocks.

Wednesday our column ran under the headline "Buying Power of Dollar Is Misjudged," and we showed the increased purchasing value of the dollar as measured in a number of the recognized necessities of life. Read B. C. Forbes' column today for an elaboration of this idea, together with the well known economist's comment thereon.

Insurance shares did comparatively little in the last several months of the big bull market. Largely unlisted, this group was quite as largely neglected. Reports of insurance companies in the main are very inspiring. Our own idea as to the desirability of the shares of this group for many investment lists is supported by the action of United Founders, investment trust, in buying into it.

All during 1929 we heard talk of unemployment. The U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, discussing this subject, says: "Average index of employment for 1929 for all industries was 3.9 per cent above 1928, while average wage index was 6.2 per cent higher." This particular government bureau is by no means given to roseate utterances.

In connection with recent valuation figures given out by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the New Haven in a statement today says: "Until the final valuations of all properties represented by the investments are ascertained, it is impossible to say definitely just how the total book investment in these outside properties compares with the present value. It is certain that valuations of some of the properties will exceed figures at which they are carried on New Haven's books, while it is equally certain that others will fall below book figures. However, officers of the New Haven feel certain that, based on present information, it may safely be said that stock and indebtedness of New Haven Co. are more than supported by physical property embraced in the New Haven and the value of other properties in which it has invested."

1929 BEST YEAR

For Europe as a whole, 1929 was the best year since the war. The improvement, though widespread and affecting most countries and most of the principal economic factors, was not accompanied by unusual or spectacular developments, but was characterized rather by further progress along the lines observable in previous years.

A SHARP CONTRAST

During the eight years from 1920 to 1928 crime, in general, increased all over the nation. Yet, in that period, losses due to robbery on railroad property were reduced 93 per cent, from over $12,000,000 to less than $1,000,000 annually. It is expected that a further improvement will be effected during the current year.

CONDITIONS IMPROVED

Improvement in European conditions has been reflected in our trade. On the basis of statistics for the first 10 months of 1929, it appears that United States exports to Europe were about 3 per cent higher than in 1928 and our impors from Europe about 10 per cent higher.

STOCK PRICES BACK AND FILL IN WALL ST.

By STANLEY W. PRENOSIL

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Reactionary tendencies were quite pronounced in today's stock market although prices did not break out of the narrow trading area within which they have been floundering since the turn of the year

Renewal of selling pressure against many of the leading industrial and public utility issues carried several of them down 1 to 6 points, but the rails showed little change. Tobacco issues gave the only demonstration of group strength.

ANACONDA CURTAILS

The market was confronted with another large quota of rather unfavorable business and financial news. The Anaconda Copper Company announced the closing of two additional mines, making three this week, presumably to curtail production and maintain the current 18 cents a pound level for copper.

The department of justice asked dismissal of suits seeking modification of the packers' consent decree, making it necessary for the packers to seek relief in the courts. The wholesale price index is reported to have declined in the week ended Jan. 14 to the lowest level in five years.

Call money renewed at 4½ per cent but again dropped to 4. More activity was reported in the time money and bankers' acceptance market rates were unchanged, although the longer maturities in the time market were reported to be a little firmer. The increase of $13,000,000 in federal reserve brokers loans was smoewhat smaller than expected.

Sale of more than $300,000,000 in new bond issues this week, believed to b ethe largest peace-time offerings on record, was accepted as evidence of a strong underlying investment demand, although considerable disappointment was manifest that it was not more pronounced in the stock market

Brokers have been reporting quiet accumulation of stocks since the first of the year, but "bear" traders nevertheless have found it rather easy to depress leading issues by throwing large blocks into the market.

RALLY AFTER DECLINE

Communication shares were among the leading selling targets in today's market. Western Union dropped 5 points and American Telephone, International Telephone and Radio Corporation dropped 2 to 3⅝ points, and then made irregular recovery. Chemical and allied shares laos were conspicuously heavy, Allied Chemical breaking 6 points, Columbian Carbon 4 and Union Carbide and Air Reduction 2 each.

Other outstanding soft spots included Michigan Steel, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, J I. Case, North American Co., Otis Elevator, Snider Packing preferred, Standard Gas & Electric and General Electric, all off 2½ to 4½ points. Crosley Radio broke 4 points to a new low at 10¼, which contrasts with a high of 125 last year, and then rallied above 12. Grigsby Grunow lost 2 points in sympathy.

Demand for tobaccos was stimulated by reports of an impending settlement of the cigarette price cutting war. American Tobacco rallied 4½ points and Congress Cigar, Lorillard and Reynolds Tobacco B sold 1 to 2 points higher.

COTTON RISES, THEN SAGS

New York, Jan. 17—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 1 to 4 points on trade buying and covering, which was probably influenced by the fairly steady showing of the earlier Liverpool cables. Liverpool later eased off, however, and after selling at 17.33 for March and 17.67 for July at the opening or about 4 to 5 points net higher, prices here slipped back to about yesterday's closing quotations.

Trading was quiet with the market steady. Liverpool cables reported trade calling and an active spot demand with continental buying, also a fair cloth inquiry from Indiana, although many offers were unworkable.

Liverpool spot sales were reported at 10,000 bales, but they included only 2000 bales of American cotton.

B. & O.'s Merger Plan Unopposed

Washington, Jan 17 (INS)—The Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railroad has withdrawn its opposition to the plan of the Baltimore & Ohio to acquire stock control of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh.

This announcement was made today by W. S. Bronson on behalf of the Pittsburgh & West Virginia and the opening of arguments of the application of the Baltimore & Ohio to acquire the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh.

Bronson said that, inasmuch as the commission, in its recent consolidation plan, had allocated the road to the Baltimore & Ohio, no useful purpose would be served by further opposition.

Tally Is New Head of United Verde

New York Jan. 17—R E. Tally has been elected president of United Verde Copper Co. to take the place of C. W. Clark, who became chairman of the board, a new office. J. H. Hall, Jr., was elected secretary.

Cost of Living Is Lowest in Recent Years

Decline Is Likely to Last, Daring Price-Fixing Launched Here

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—It now costs less than at any other time in recent years to live in the United States. You may not have found it so, but that is what all authoritative figures show.

B. C. Forbes

The outlook is that the downward trend will continue—but perhaps so slightly that you and I will not be aware of it except when we read about it.

* * *

Commodity prices in this country are today lower than at the opening of any year since we entered the war, with the exceptions of 1922 and 1923.

British prices are the lowest since the government began compiling statistics ten years ago.

Italy reports a similar movement and claims that, "measured in gold values," prices there are "lower than in any other country."

The price trend in Germany also has lately been downward.

France, and more especially Paris, on the other hand, are up in arms against the rise in the cost of living there.

* * *

One American professor—who proclaimed just before the panic that stock prices could not possibly decline drastically—is now issuing alarmist predictions that the world is facing a terrible scarcity of gold and that all kinds of commodity prices will crumble. In view of our more enlightened methods of doing business, including the wider use of instruments of credit, we need not lose sleep over this dangled spectre.

Most economists agree, however, that the cost of living is likely to creep downward in all civilized lands during coming years. Prices are still far above pre-war levels here and elsewhere.

* * *

Sensational declines have been occurring in several commodities. Silver the other day touched the lowest quotation in more than a century. Coffee is the cheapest in 20 years—bringing retail cuts of as much as 10 cents a pound within recent weeks. The collapse in coffee has been long predicted, because Brizal, by strong-arm methods, involving the borrowing of scores of millions, kept the price at a wholly artificial level. Rubber, which the British tried to peg, is also now extraordinary cheap, far below the cost of producing.

* * *

"The Farmers' National Grain Corp. entered the Minneapolis grain market for the first time when the corporation bought its first carload of spring wheat here. The action followed earlier announcements that it was ready to buy grain at the loan price of $1.25 a bushel fixed by the Farm Board. After the one purchase and announcement that an agent had been named to buy wheat here, prices went back above the loan price level, and no additional purchases were made.

"What the United States Government, through its Farm Board, is now doing, constitutes one of the most momentous price-fixing experiments in economic history. Whether such courage will win ultimate success remains to be seen."

* * *

Valiant efforts are being made in this country to avoid price demoralization. Some industries have achieved greater results than others. The oil people, although they have made progress, are still considerably at sixes and sevens. The steel industry has maintained stability. The lumber industry has long suffered from overproduction and cut-throat competition. Conditions in the rubber manufacturing industry are far from satisfactory. Zinc is the lowest in years.

Our copper leaders thus far have held the fort against all attacks upon the 18 cents per pound level, thanks to a greater degree of cooperation than has been rounded up in most industries. Statistics published this week reveal that copper production can be kept in tune with consumption.

Most automobile manufacturers, outside the lowest-priced field, have raised, not lowered, prices in recent weeks, an experiment which will be followed with keen interest not only throughout the industry, but by all interested in the stock market.

CURB MARKET PRICES RALLY AFTER DROP

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—The curb market was sent into a pronounced decline during the hours of trading today [illegible] creased resistance to sel[illegible] peared as the session wore [illegible] leading stocks were inclined to rally by early afternoon.

Losses were largely restricted to a point or two.

OILS UNDER PRESSURE

Bearish operations against the oil stocks were inspired by widespread cuts in crude prices, and a drive against the radio and copper shares on the big board had an unsettling influence on this market. Considerable profit taking in the utilities was prompted.

Such shares as Electric Bond & Share, American & Foreign Power warrants, American Superpower, Insull Utility Investment, and Allied Power & Light were sent down a point or two. United Light A and Associated Gas A held fairly steady.

Humble and Gulf were soft spots in the oil shares, losing about 2 points each. Cities Service and Indian Territory were also under pressure. Realizing depressed several of the natural gas stocks. United Gas sagged moderately. Missouri Kansas Pipe Line lost a couple of points. The sag in the coppers on the big board had an unsettled influence on Newmont and Noranda.

CUTS CURB TRADING.

Interest was attracted to the initial trading on a when issued basis in the stock of Pittston Co., which is being organized to take over the Erie Railroad coal properties, and the rights to Erie stockholders to purchase Pittston stock.

The falling off in new stock issues has curtailed the volume of business on the curb, which is the country's leading primary market.

Industrials were inclined to sag with the rest of the list. Aluminum Co. of America, which has been rather inactive of late, lost a few points, as did Tubize. Fajardo Sugar, however, was traded fractionally higher, despite the Senate action disapproving of a higher sugar tariff. Fox Theater A sold up moderately, then reacted.

CONSTRUCTION FIGURES UP

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—A $15,000,000 power project, for which contracts were let during the week, raised the total week's value of heavy construction and engineering awards in the United States to $57,165,000, which compares with $42,315,000 in the previous week, and $161,682,000 in the corresponding week last year, Engineering News-Record reports.

Contract lettings for commercial structures also were numerous and showed a substantial gain in value from the total of the preceding week.

The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey is offering 400,000 shares of common stock to employes at $63 a share. The stock closed on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday at $62.50 a share.

Directors of the Chicago Yellow Cab Co. have authorized the purchase of 1000 new cabs at a cost of more than $2,000,000.

Warner Is Seeking Larger Royalties

New York, Jan. 17—The matter under arbitration between Western Electric and Warner Bros. Pictures, involves Warner's share of royalties from the Vitaphone. Under original agreement Warner was entitled to a royalty on gross receipts from sound apparatus. This arrangement was later modified when Western Electric took over sale of reproducing apparatus from Warner. Warner is now claiming a larger share of the royalties.

Object Lesson for Trade by Naumkeag

An object lesson to the cotton goods industry as a whole is contained in the annual report of Pequot Mills, as Naumkeag Steam Cotton Co. is popularly to be known in the future. The company showed an improvement of 40 per cent in net earnings, or from $439,898 before federal taxes (estimated to total $53,000) in the year ended Nov. 30, 1928, to $545,891 in 1929 after federal taxes.

Manchester Girl Struck by Machine

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 17—Miss Irene Bergeron, 20, of Grand ave., was taken to the Sacred Heart Hospital yesterday after being struck by an automobile driven by Nestor Leblanc of 170 Spruce st., at Lake ave. and Grand ave. A fractured shoulder and minor bruises are the extent of injuries sustained by the girl.

Spiegel-May-Stern Co.

Spiegel-May-Stern Co. sales for 1929 exceeded 1928 sales of $20,571,845 by about 18 per cent., says President Innes. On this basis 1929 sales were around $24,250,000, and December sales were about the same as for the same month of 1928.

BROWN FINDS SHORTAGE OF MANAGERS

New York, Jan. 17—The recent merging movement in American industry and finance has created business units of such magnitude and complexity that it is becoming a serious problem to find management capable of handling many of the new situations, according to Prof. T. H. Brown of the Harvard School of Business Administration who spoke at the annual sales dinner of the International Business Machines Corporation.

"I do not refer to the intellectual aspects of the situation," said Prof. Brown. "Mentally, the American business man is still working well within the limits of his powers; it is his physical capacity that is being unduly taxed.

"The sheer task of mastering and interpreting the well-nigh endless summaries and totals created by the new set-ups is proving to be too much for the physical strength of many senior executives. We can now say literally that business has become bigger than the business man—except in the case of persons of exceptional physical endowment."

Prof. Brown indicated that he did not consider the outlook to be hopeless. "Acute as the situation may be, I believe that it represents only a passing phase of business evolution. In due time new methods of accounting and statistical regulation will be evolved, and once again the factor of executive control will be re-established along familiar lines. Until that time, however, the lot of scores of business men in high places will not be a pleasant thing to contemplate.

"The purchasing power of the American wage-earner was very little impaired by the recent fall of security prices," declared Thomas J. Watson, president of the corporaiton, in his annual address.

"Reports brought to us today from all sections of the United States indicate that wages are not being cut, and that there is nothing in sight which might be regarded as a threat to the prevailing high wage scale. This condition, which is an assurance of an enormous volume of purchasing power, is the most encouraging feature in the immediate outlook."

Mr. Watson nanounced that the corporation was at present handling a large volume of foreign business in some 70 countries. "American mechanical genius continues to lead the world in its ability to create machines for handling the routine details of business," said Mr. Watson.

United Gas Extends Offer to Houston Co.

United Gas Company today extended until January 31, inclusive, the time for exchange of one share of its common stock for each two shares of common stock of Houston Gulf Gas Company, a subsidiary.

The parent company now holds 85 per cent of the common stock of the latter company, it was officially announced today, an increase over holdings of 67 per cent on December 27 last when the original exchange offer was mailed to Houston Gulf Gas stockholders.

The earlier offer of the parent company terminated January 10, with a option to accept or reject stock offered for exchange up to January 20. Because of continued response to this offer, United Gas Company will accept for exchange on the original basis stock deposited with Chatham Phoenix National Bank and Trust Company, 149 Broadway, on or before January 31.

Turning Point for Bond Market Seen

New York, Jan. 17—Ames, Emerich letter today says "the offering of $150,000,000 American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 35-year 5 per cent debentures will probably be written in financial history as the turning point in the bond market and a revival of public interest in high grade fixed interest bearing securities. We feel that public confidence is being restored in large measure and that the question 'What is happening to call loan money?' can be answered. Senior fixed interest bearing securities are being bought to replenish the investment portfolios of corporations and institutions which, during the past 20 months, have been placing their funds to good advantage in the open money market."

Remington Rand Rights Extended

New York, Jan. 17—Remington Rand, Inc., directors have extended to Nov. 1, 1930, right of exercising at $55 a share for common stock the warrants attached to the 5½ per cent bonds. Privilege had expired Nov. 1, 1929. Warrants attached to each $500 bond give right to purchase at $55 2½ shares and warrants attached to each $1000 bond five shares.

Bank Clearings Off

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Dun's weekly compilation of bank clearings shows an aggregate of $10,748,449,000, a decrease of 22.3 per cent from last year. Outside of New York, there was a decrease of 12.7 per cent.

SEES UPWARD TREND FOR INDUSTRIES

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston—Stimulated by the expected expenditure during the year by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts of over $100,000,000 for public buildings, roads and other construction, it is expected that there will be an upward trend in all of the industries of the State.

While current operations are at a low point, building and engineering contracts awarded during the week in New England have amounted to only $2,587,000, as compared with $4,507,400 for the corresponding week of 1929 and the December construction contracts in New England amount to $15,946,000 having been 43 per cent less than December, 1928.

BIG PROJECTS ON WAY

Several important industrial projects are evolving and these, with the governmental operations, are expected to take up the slack in the building trades. There is some demand for Pacific Coast lumber, but New England building lumber is quiet. Heavy building materials are slow.

The demand for electrical equipment is good, but for household and other specialties it is light. The metal-working establishments continue to work at capacity and expansion is expected by brass foundries. Local iron foundries are rather short of new business. The furniture factories are quite well employed.

The outlook for jewelry manufacturing is favorable, and manufacturers of celluloid products are well employed. Conditions in Quincy are favorable, and the shipyards are employing more help.

The call for fine textiles has been light during the week, but December sales of cotton goods exceeded production and orders on hand are increasing. Sales of the staple lines have been moderate, but prices are firmer. Raw cotton is going down, but the New England mills are buying very little.

THE FABRICS ACTIVE.

There have been a few large sales of the medium counts of cotton yarns to the knitters, but the sales of other grades are light. Prices are weak. Mills producing tire fabrics continue quite active, with excellent prospects.

Prices in the wool market have been irregular. There has been some call for the fine and medium grades, but the activity is not increasing. Receipts of wool to date for the year have been 2,765,700 pounds, as compared with 5,790,300 pounds for the same period last year.

Importations have been light. Local stocks are small, but much more wool is being carried abroad. The call for yarns is mostly from the knitters, who are requesting deliveries on former orders. New business is light, with weavers displaying little interest. Prices are weak.

Prices in hides are firmer and more activity is developing all along the line. Sole leather is moving better and prices are firmer. Calfskins are in demand for patent and other upper leathers.

Shoe factories are becoming seasonally busy and orders are accumulating from the Shoe Fair, now in process.

BOND MARKET PRICE CHANGES ARE NARROW

JOHN L. COOLEY

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Bonds made unimpressive changes today. Turnover in the domestic list diminished, but a fair degree of activity was maintained in the foreign group where most of Thursday's features developed. Many of these issues offering liberal yields are selling above their last year's highs.

The time money market was more active, but rates were virtually stationary, although some dealers offered slightly firmer quotations on the longer maturities. Call loans renewed at 4½ per cent and again dropped to 4.

High-grade mortgages in all divisions were firm. Moderate offerings of a few rails found ready absorption. Canadian Nationals 4½s, Pennsylvania gold 5s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s series A, and Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis 4½s advanced. Central of Georgia 5s surpassed their 1929 top on a 2-point rise.

Power and light company bonds and telephone issues traded in dull fashion, making narrow fluctuations. The new American Telephone 5s moved up ⅛. Utilities Power & Light 5½s lost nearly a point.

Cuban sugar bonds made slight response to the Senate's action in retaining the present tariff of 1.76 cents a pound on the staple from that island. East Cuba Sugar 7½s rose 4 points to 76 on a minor sale, but others in the group were only steady. Domestic industrials held firm. Illinois Steel 4½s made another advance but it was fractional as contrasted with the sizeable gain of earlier in the week when reports of the bond's retirement by U. S. Steel were published.

United States governments lent some encouragement to the early sentiment by a small upturn, but the trading involved only a few issues. Convertibles drooped, with International Telephone 4½s losing more than a point.

The recent advance in foreign bonds was well maintained and numerous loans added small fractions to Thursday's closing quotations.

The approach of the week-end saw the usual evaporation in the list of new bond offerings, but the market appeared to be well satisfied with the record-breaking volume for the current week.

New bond offreings for the week ending today totaled $305,058,000, compared with $109,157,000 last week, and $32,622,000 in the corresponding week of last year.

ELECTRICITY UNDER PRICES BEFORE WAR

The price of electricity to domestic customers in the United States has steadily declined since 1920 until at the present time it is far below pre-war prices.

Figures of cost, prepared by the National Electric Light Association, for the whole country indicate that the average price during the 12 months ending Sept. 30, last, was 6.3c per kilowatt hour, as compared with 6.4c on June 30, 6.5c on March 31, and 6.55c for the whole calendar year 1928. If the present trend is continued, the final average for the year 1929 will be in the neighborhood of 6.2c per kilowatt hour, a decrease of more than 5 per cent during the year.

While practically all electric companies have a top rate to domestic customers in excess of this average figure, yet the majority of these companies have promotional rates whereby the price is continually decreased as the use increases. This system of promotional rates is based on the assumption that the small-use customer should pay a price which will reimburse the company for the actual cost of serving him, and also affords the larger user an opportunity to get electricity cheaper after the original cost has been taken care of, making large use of electricity profitable for both the customer and company.

That this theory is working out successfully is evidenced by the steadily increasing use of electricity coincident with the steadily decreasing prices. During the twelve months ended September 30, the average use in the United States was 487 kilowatt hours per customer per year, as compared with 459 kilowatt hours for the entire calendar year of 1928. The present trend would indicate that the annual use of electricity for the complete year 1929 will be in the vicinity of 500 kilowatt hours, an increase of 41 units, or 9 per cent over the previous year.

At the present time there are approximately 19,500,000 domestic customers of electrical companies in the United States. Sixty-eight per cent of all the homes, housing approximately 84,600,000 people, are now served with electricity.

Insuranshares Has Many Increases

For the nine months from the company's organization in April, 1929, to January 1, 1930, the statistical department of Insuranshares Corporation of Delaware reports the 34 insurance stocks composing its portfolio have received 15 capital increases with valuable rights, three stock dividends, 15 extra cash dividends, nine dividend increases and 15 other favorable developments, principally reductions of par value or "splitups." This makes a total of 57 favorable developments.

Since the establishment of the Insuranshares Trust Funds, first member of this group of investment companies, in April, 1927, there have been a total of 227 such favorable developments on the 60 stocks composing the Funds. It is pointed out that these developments have occurred very steadily at an average rate of between six and seven per month since early in 1927.

Paramount Earning Figures at New Top

New York, Jan. 17—Paramount-Famous-Lasky Corporation estimated consolidated net after charges and federal taxes for year ended December 31, 1929, at $15,500,000, a new high. This is equivalent to $6.34 a share on 2,444,794 average no-par shares outstanding during the year and to $5.77 a share on 2,683,720 shares outstanding at end of the year and compares with $8,713,063 in the previous year, equal to $4.22 a share on 2,062,857 shares outstanding at end of that year.

Net for the quarter ended December 31, 1929, is estimated at $5,770,000 after the above charges, equal to $2.15 a share on 2,683,720 shares outstanding at the end of the quarter and compares with $2,737,318 or $1.33 a share on 2,062,857 shares in the fourth quarter of 1928.

$10,000,000 Earned By Coca-Cola Co.

New York, Jan. 17—The year 1929 was the best Coca-Cola Co. ever had, sales and profits reaching new highs, while big strides were made in further building up scope of the business. Net available for common probably will exceed $10,000,000, or between $10 and $10.50 a share on outstanding 1,000,000 no-par common shares, after dividends on $3 Class A stock and allowing for charging about $2,000,000 to contingent reserves. In 1928 net available for dividends totaled $10,189,120, equivalent to $10.19 a share on common, then the sole outstanding capital liability.

ARRANGE THREE TRIPS FOR HUB PILGRIMS

Three optional trips are provided for the Boston pilgrims to the Eucharistic Congress at Carthage, to Rome, Oberammergau, Lisieux and Lourdes, have been announced.

Sentiments with which Lobbyists Larkin, Grundy, Arnold, Carroll, Shearer, Burgess, Austin and others would doubtless agree.

So the only thing necessary is for all the various interests to get together and decide what is the right kind of lobbying.

CITY OF THE FUTURE
(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

Jas. N. Staats was moving into his new building, Saturday. He is going to have a fine store and no doubt about it. The show windows come to the floor. The floor is built even with the sidewalk. You don't have to stumble over a step. Everything is not only new but modern as well.

Thought for today—

Some people are reliable, and others have two ideas.

This is the staggering plan suddenly conceived by this department.

We have felt we ought to do something big—something that would educate, and at the same time inspire all mankind. We wanted to shake the very foundations of civilization.

It will be exhaustive, in every sense of the word.

We are fully aware that this is no small task. In fact, it means 27 years, or more, of item writing.

Our plan is to print part of the Encyclopedia each day and then let our readers clip the items and paste them in scrapbooks.

Some of the biggest men we know of will co-operate in this work—men like—

Bonaparte (Napoleon),
Boone (Daniel),
Booth (T. W.),
Borgia (Lucrezia),
Borneo (Archipelago),
And others.

The difficulties are staggering, when you consider that this great big Encyclopedia will be written on a typewriter that is getting worse all the time, and has an attachment which permits the user to write for hours and then suddenly discover that the ribbon is stuck and no impression has been made on the paper.

All we ask you to do is fill out the following coupon—

> Dept. 56g—X:
>
> You are certainly to be congratulated upon your broad vision and unselfish efforts. I am sending along this little unsolicited note of encouragement. Write the Encyclopedia or not, just as you please. Sincerely,

NONE BUT THE RARE DESERVE THE RAVE

But Senators are so depraved
They do the unbelievable
By methods inconceivable,
And thus, they always make the news
With antics droll and wild-eyed views
While members of the House remain
Ignored, forgotten, snubbed, and sane.

LEGION BEHIND AIRPORT FOR FALMOUTH

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Falmouth, Mass., Jan. 17—The aviation committee of the W. W. Wood Post, American Legion, voted to back with their full strength the proposed airport to be developed by the town of Falmouth.

This is the opening gun in a campaign to get a modern and prominent airport for this town on the south side of the Cape.

We have been talking for a long time about the necessity of one where so many out of State visitors go to spend their summers. Through the efforts of the American Legion aviation committee the entire legion body of Falmouth has declared unanimously in favor of introducing an article into the town warrant which will provide for the purchase of a plot of ground in East Falmouth for an airport.

LONG, HARD FIGHT

According to Allen C. Williams, chairman of the Legion aviation committee, it has been a long, tough fight to convince various members of the Legion that an airport is necessary for this part of Cape Cod.

Williams stated that the town aviation committee has been working practically night and day for the past six months to find a site which could be developed into a prominent airport that would be a credit to Falmouth.

We think that the action of the Legion's aviation committee in coinciding with the views of the town aviation committee to such an extent is worthy of the highest praise.

We think that in addition to Williams we should let you know who else is on this Legion's aviation committee. There is William "Bill" Denny, secretary, Edward Dean, William Colwell, and Carl Carlson.

During the past summer we had the pleasure, if we may call it that, of flying in and out of the airport, so-called, at Coonamessett ranch, which for an emergency landing field, to our way of thinking, is quite O. K. But for a permanent airport for this section it is primarily and largely out of place because of its distance from the center of activities.

Knowing "Bill" Denny as we do, and knowing his terrific interest in things aeronautical, we know that he will use all the knowledge at his command to see this project through to a successful completion.

SHER KEPT BUSY

On our way to Falmouth we stopped in at Dave Sher's field at New Bedford and there found that the business of Sound Airways was continuing at its usual brisk pace, with Dave and the head of the outfit, Ike Dawson, so busy that they really could not find the time to talk to us for any extended length of time.

But we did find out that the chief pilot of Sound Airways, Hank Olden, had flown three passengers to Newark Airport, New Jersey, in the Travelair monoplane, taking 15 minutes to refuel and then with the shades of night falling started back to New Bedford.

One hour and 25 minutes after leaving Newark, Hank set the ship down at Sound Airways field in East Fairhaven without the slightest inkling of anything out of the ordinary.

And while Hank carries on with the big monoplane, the general manager of the company, Dave Sher, has stepped out and gotten himself a State unlimited commercial license. The appropriate part of this license is that the number is two.

U. S. Railroads Must Be Linked With U. S. Ship Lines

IN instructing the Interstate Commerce Commission to recommend a system of railroad consolidations, Congress was thinking of an American transportation system.

But that system cannot end with the railroads, at the water's edge. It must be extended by an American merchant marine to the ends of the earth.

That's what the British transportation system is, and that is why for centuries British trade has domipated the world.

Fortunately, American railroads can be tied up with American steamship lines to the advantage of both. In fact, this is possibly THE solution of the American merchant marine problem.

That problem is a simple one to understand. Because American wages are higher, it costs more to build a ship in American yards and it costs more to man and operate her.

So if our ships are to compete in the international carrying trade they must have a subsidy to offset their higher operation cost. Congress hates to grant ship subsidies.

THERE is only one alternative. If some way can be found to give American ships MORE TRAFFIC to carry than their foreign rivals, the American ships can stand higher operating costs and still make money.

American railroads have the power to direct the routing of a huge volume of export traffic and, if it were to their interest, could throw this business preferably to American ships.

One way to get the railroads to do this would be to encourage them to take a financial interest in American steamship concerns, which would be considered as oversea extension of our rail lines.

Every railroad man would then become a traffic solicitor for American steamship lines.

THE hocus-pocus of foreign trade and travel could be done away with. The citizen of the humblest hamlet could go to his railroad office and get a passenger ticket or a bill of lading over an all-American route to any destination in the world.

We should have an era of ship-building unequalled in our history if it were known that the traffic power and the financial strength of the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, the Union Pacific, the Illinois Central and other great American railroad corporations were behind American steamship operators like Dollar, Munson and Chapman.

Can't the Interstate Commerce Commission or the President himself think in terms of an American transportation system as extensive as American trade, girdling the earth?

This is the fifth of a series of editorials on the proposed merger of American railroads. The sixth and last will appear tomorrow.

Prosperous Cotton Mill

Makes Money EVERY Year, in Massachusetts

THE latest annual report of the Naumkeag Steam Cotton Company of Salem adds to the accumulated evidence that this is an eccentric organization, a prodigy among Massachusetts textile plants.

For the twelve months ended November 30th, last, Naumkeag's NET EARNINGS amounted to $545,891; or $9.10 on each of 60,000 shares of stock.

Sales increased from 20,397,142 yards in 1928 to 21,058,163 yards. BETTER business, the annual report says, is anticipated in 1930.

Here is an organization "handicapped," as are all others in the same field, by Massachusetts statutes such as those which forbid the employment of women and minors more than 48 hours in the week and bar the use of female labor at night. Yet, year after year, it bobs up on the sunny side of profit and loss!

The explanation of this oddity may be found in the fact that Naumkeag management was quick to apply scientific principles to the operation of all branches of its enterprise. So much is intimated, at least, in the report of Mr. Ernest N. Hood, the treasurer:

> "This has been a year of RESEARCH. Exhaustive studies have been made of our manufacturing methods and of our sales policies, at an expense of well over $50,000. It is confidently expected that during the coming year these investigations will bear fruit, that improved manufacturing methods will result in lower costs and that a more aggressive merchandising policy will result in larger sales."

Like some of the mills of New Bedford, the Salem company, which specializes in sheetings, learned long ago the sales appeal of attractive packages and the value of advertising. It may be that what it has discovered in these directions explains its announcement that the plant at Salem will be known hereafter as the "PEQUOT Mills of the Naumkeag Steam Cotton Company."

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—Thoughts while strolling: Two more new corset shops on Madison ave. The Parisian perfume millionaire who wears black silk gloves and a red lapel rose. Claudette Colbert's trim ankles. The famous warrior — Col. Hiram Iddings Bearse. And he looks the part.

Dentist sign: "Latest and most popular magazines in our waiting rooms." Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., chatting with a corner cop. Who remembers when Lobster Newburg was Lobster Wenburg? Ellison Hoover, the artist. And the masterly word juggler William Bolitho.

Harry Rosenthal whom everybody thought just another piano player. And who suddenly became a foremost Broadway actor. Something new to attach to a lead pencil—a dingus that adds. The winter peaches—80 cents each. And an old fashioned fruit cake for $16.

A street corner accident brings a flock of photographers as quick as that. They seem to pop out of the sewers. Lots of men look like John Barrymore when they wear white mufflers. Queensware store heralds: "There is no cut glass. It is pressed." Window shop and learn things.

Frank Case's high forehead. Whatever became of Thornton Wilder, who wrote "The Bridge of San Luis Rey"? Women in ankle length skirts who appear a trifle self conscious. What-you-call-'ems who carry mustache combs. The aeroplane store on West 57th st.

What does a tennis teacher do in the winter time? Every week somebody brings out a new patented match lighter. And the thumbs are holding up bravely. A beauty salon "that blends powder to individual requirements." The steaming horses flashing around the bridle path in the park.

Nothing makes you feel so much the sucker as looking at the check for a dinner in one of the cafes tagged "ne plus ultra." The quiet dignity of a piano store. John Drew's double who manages a flower shop. H. L. Mencken standing in front of a church. And it doesn't fall down.

The prize name for the current season to this observer is Bedook Bedikes. Mr. Bedikes is in the wall paper business and came to New York from Canada.

I enjoy the flowery what-nots in the advertising of modern apartment houses. This one caught my eye today: "Duplex maisonette — with open fireplace and glass enclosed loggia. Ground floor service quarters and revolving wall library bar. Roof top terrace with electric fountain." Sounds almost like something by Michael Arlen. You know, like his: "I am young and I love women."

A cop at Broadway and 42d street is known as "the hack driver's poison." It is his job nightly to chase cruising and empty taxicabs out of the theatrical zone and he does it with a jerk of his thumb without saying a word. None is able to crash through.

A chatty taxi charioteer also told me today he found that fares deposited at the Grand Central station invariably tipped more than those at the Pennsylvania.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells

THE earthworms consume earth in great quantities and digest nutritious matter out of it as it passes down their intestines; they defecate it on the surface of the ground as "worm-castings." In rich garden soil, where worms are especially numerous, there may be over 50,000 individuals to an acre; in these circumstances more than 10 tons of earth will pass through their bodies and be brought to the surface in one year, and in 10 years this will form a continuous layer of finely divided surface soil at least two inches deep.

H. G. Wells

Snails are both male and female, but in this case the two faculties are not exercised simultaneously; the creature takes turns, being now one sex and now the other.

The edible oyster alternates slowly but regularly between male and female, and there are many cases in the invertebrates of animals which normally start their lives as male, become mature, and then at a certain age turn over and become female for the rest of their lives.

It includes among its hundreds of species the graceful, sinuous paddle-worms of our shores, the iridescent sea-mouse, the lobworm, which is often used as bait, and a number of animals which live in tubes attached to rocks, sea-weeds and the like, and feed on suspended matter, much as bivalves or sea-squirts do, by means of filtering crowns of delicate tentacles.

The third group comprises the leeches, terrestrial, fresh water, and marine. They have suckers fore and aft, and the majority live by attaching themselves to other creatures and sucking blood. A few, however, are active beasts of prey.

The leeches differ from the other two groups in a number of important respects, so that it is customary to divide the annelids into two classes, one comprising the earthworm and the more varied marine group, and the other leeches.

Sec. 5. Roundworms

THE phylum Nemathelminthes or roundworms includes a number of worms of plain, unassuming appearances, but nevertheless of great importance to ourselves because a number of them are parasitic.

The roundworms often found in the intestines of pigs, horses and men are typical of the group. They have thin cylindrical bodies, several inches long, pale buff color and tapering away at both ends.

Their anatomy shows well the simplicity of structure that is often found in parasitic organisms. Living surrounded by digested food, all they have to do is to gulp it into their own bowels and absorb it; they have no need of glands to manufacture digestive juices, and their alimentary apparatus consists of two parts only—a muscular pump, the pharynx, which sucks the juices in, and a simple intestine where they are absorbed. They can perform simple writhing movements but it may be presumed that they do not do so very often; beyond reproducting themselves and occasionally dodging an exceptionally violent peristaltic wave it is hard to see what movement they require. They possess no special circulatory or respiratory organs, their muscles do so little work that all the oxygen they need can diffuse in from outside.

It is at first sight difficult to explain how an animal which spends its life in an intestine can get any oxygen at all, and indeed it used to be thought that the parasitic roundworms depended upon a different kind of chemical mechanism for their vital energy.

But the story has now been made clear.

When the host-animal is not digesting a meal there is very little oxygen, if any, in his bowels; under these conditions the roundworms become anaesthetized by the chemical products of their own activity and sink into a drugged immobility.

But when the host consumes a meal the blood supply to his gut is increased enormously and oxygen diffuses—accidentally, so far as he is concerned—into the intestinal canal.

When this happens, the round worms revive and begin to gulp, when his digestion is over they sink into their torpid sleep.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

ALL loyal hearts are skipping beats with the peace delegation on way to London.

We are sending ninety-two assorted ambassadors to swell the total of our diplomats who have been left on the bases.

We trust they sample the bacon and bring home the rind. But history points a gnarled digit at the archives and we are about to get another protocol for the national hope chest.

Ninety-two amiable dragoons of peace do not constitute a company recruited to full war strength. We hope the boys get some enlistments on the other side.

It is the desire of the conference to limit the navies of their world to their present territory. It will be fortunate if it holds Charley Dawes' pipe down to one funnel.

Mr. Dawes will be an active member of the conference but will not wear sailor pants.

Our doves on the ark will consist of speakers, advisers, technicians, secretaries and clerks. They are taking over a carload of documents and the blueprints call for two answers to every question.

Diplomacy is a matter of avoiding the subject and switching the details. However, we have been in the magnetic field of international debates for quite some years and our working crew has instructions to play their cards close to their flowered vests.

If we can't win by fair means we will then resort to voting.

It looks like a neat, lively peace conference with our ninety-two dots on the line. If our carload of documents stay on the track we may be able to get the boys back in the shipyards by Christmas.

We believe that President Hoover is seeking the sequel to the rebus. But we believe that some expert optician has made the lens of smoked glass. We have been led to understand that this is a naval parley.

We are sending ninety-two recruits to the dis-employment bureau. And how can it be a navy affair when there ain't a professional tattooer in the bunch!

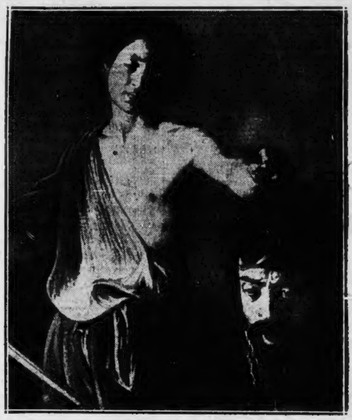
A Real Champion

Heavyweights Were Easy for Young David. Ask Goliath

(Copyright, 1930)



DAVID AND THE GIANT'S HEAD

THIS PICTURE, showing the young David holding by the hair the head of Goliath, just cut from the giant's body, is one of a fine collection of Italian pictures recently sent to London.

The picture called "a masterpiece in light and shade" is by Michelangelo Amerighi Caravaggio, not THE Michel Angelo, needless to say.

It will also appeal to others, more numerous, devoted to the "science" of fighting.

With a number of "heavyweights," nearly seven feet high, invading the United States, it is well to be reminded that long ago a small shepherd boy, David, probably a lightweight or even a featherweight, was able to dispose of the greatest heavyweight in history.

> "And when the Philistine (Goliath) looked about, and saw David, he disdained him; for he was but a youth, and ruddy, and of a fair countenance.
>
> "And the Philistine said unto David, am I a dog, that thou comest to me with staves? And the Philistine cursed David by his gods.
>
> "And the Philistine said to David, come to me, and I will give thy flesh unto the fowls of the air, and to the beasts of the field.
> "And David put his hand in his bag, and took thence a stone, and slang it, and smote the Philistine in his forehead, that the stone sunk into his forehead; and he fell upon his face to the earth."

It is a very fine account of a very interesting event, illustrated in this picture. However, any young Jewish lightweight who may think of challenging Carnera, the Italian, six feet ten inches high, weighing 269, should remember the changed conditions.

Goliath saw David, but never came near him. David killed him, striking him in the middle of the forehead with a nice round pebble, thrown with great skill from a slingshot. David had practiced on wolves, and Goliath made a better target than any wolf.

In fighting Carnera, any modern lightweight would have to come in close, and that might be unpleasant.

In addition it should be remembered that David was guided by the Lord, who had selected David's relatives as His chosen people, and did not allow the boastful giant Goliath to have "any the best of it."

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

WHEN a man writes a love-letter it is because he can't hold IN any longer, but when a woman writes a love-letter it is because she can't hold OUT any longer.

Three-quarters of a movie actress' salary is probably spent in trying to live up to hat she looks like in the pictures.

A man never takes a woman's sputtering seriously because he knows that when a kettle or a woman has really begun to BOIL, neither one makes much noise.

Love's Traffic Rules: Never crowd any man so closely in the love chase that it will JAR you if he makes a sudden turn—after another woman.

If there were no such thing as alimony many a girl would think three times before tying herself for life to a man whose kisses made her wish they could go somewhere and dance.

Even if the trailing skirts do come back, men will still have their memories of bony knee-caps and piano-ankles, to keep them from losing their heads, for a long, long time.
